AIMED AT GERMAN PEOPLE

SHOWS INFLEXIBLE PURPOSE

No Action by the Pope Pending Peace Replies

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—A dispatch to the Intransigeant from Rome says: "Vatican circles say that Pope Benedict does not intend to issue a second or explanatory note to clear up his peace proposals, as it had been reported he would do, but will wait until he has heard from the belligerents before offering any interpretation of his original communication."

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—President Wilson's rejection of the Pope's peace proposals is regarded here as the high-water mark of the war. Furthermore, it is indicative of the virtual selection of the President by the Allies as their spokesman before the world.

The note comes as a climax to the remarkable series of State documents in which President Wilson has argued the cause of world democracy against autocracy in the high court of public opinion, and accepted more and more by the people of all the allied countries as expressing their ideals.

There appears to be no doubt that the United States was selected to make answer before the world, in advance of all the others. Whether the Entente nations will send extensive replies is not known here. It is regarded as probable that they will in large measure adopt the President's reasoning for their own and send notes of indorsement.

A high official is authority for the statement that the President's reply is "in line with the Allies' views."

The general tenor of the President's reply had been anticipated everywhere, but there was no inkling of the forceful terms he would employ to say that the world could have no faith in the autocratic Government of Germany. Students of diplomacy see in his denunciation of the military autocracy a fresh appeal to the war-ridden German people to throw off their military masters and join democracy with a Government fit to deal with the remainder of the world.

Although this appeal probably will not be permitted to become known in Germany, until the autocracy has attempted to mold the temper of the people for its reception by denunciation through a Government-controlled press of what has been characterized as interference in the internal affairs of Germany, the hope is that it will fall on fertile soil.

Considering the extraordinary character of the President's communication, its immense importance in definitely terminating for the present at least all efforts to reach a compromise peace, and the assured fact that it represents the views of all of the Entente Allied Powers joined with America in the war against Germany, the time occupied in the preparation of the reply was remarkably short.

His Purpose Inflexible.

That the President's response to the Pope's overtures would be a courteous but firm declination had been generally believed, so that in this respect at least his communication will cause no surprise. The feature that is certain to fix public attention is the cold determination not even to permit the subject of peace negotiations to be broached so long as the evil and dominating forces of autocracy and militarism control the Central Powers. It is not even necessary to read between the lines of the President's response to see clearly apparent the inflexible purpose.

For this reason the President was not to be led into any discussion of the peace conditions detailed by Pope Benedict, though that field was made alluring by the Pontiff's adoption of some of the proposals laid down by President Wilson himself in early utterances. On the other hand, there was no effort to evade responsibility for an expression of view as to the bases of sound and enduring peace. For the President's response in its concluding paragraphs restates the purposes for which America entered the great war.

The radical difference that appears to exist between the Pope and the President touched this very matter of a stable and

To His Holiness Benedictus XV., Pope:

In acknowledgment of the communication of your Holiness to the belligerent peoples, dated Aug. 1, 1917, the President of the United States requests me to transmit the following reply:

Every heart that has not been blinded and hardened by this terrible war must be touched by this moving appeal of his Holiness the Pope, must feel the dignity and force of the humane and generous motives which prompted it, and must fervently wish that we might take the path of peace he so persuasively points out. But it would be folly to take it if it does not in fact lead to the goal he proposes. Our response must be based upon the stern facts, and upon nothing else. It is not a mere cessation of arms he desires; it is a stable and enduring peace. This agony must not be gone through with again, and it must be a matter of very sober judgment what will insure us against it.

His Holiness in substance proposes that we return to the status quo ante-bellum and that then there be a general condonation, disarmament, and a concert of nations based upon an acceptance of the principle of arbitration; that by a similar concert freedom of the seas be established; and that the territorial claims of France and Italy, the perplexing problems of the Balkan States, and the restitution of Poland be left to such conciliatory adjustments as may be possible in the new temper of such a peace, due regard being paid to the aspirations of the peoples whose political fortunes and affiliations will be involved.

It is manifest that no part of this program can be successfully carried out unless the restitution of the status quo ante furnishes a firm and satisfactory basis for it. The object of this war is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the menace and the actual power of a vast military establishment, controlled by an irresponsible Government, which, having secretly planned to dominate the world, proceeded to carry the plan out without regard either to the sacred obligations of treaty or the long-established practices and long-cherished principles of international action and honor; which chose its own time for the war; delivered its blow fiercely and suddenly; stopped at no barrier, either of law or of mercy; swept a whole continent within the tide of blood—not the blood of soldiers only, but the blood of innocent women and children also and of the helpless poor; and now stands balked, but not defeated, the enemy of four-fifths of the world.

This power is not the German people. It is the ruthless master of the German people. It is no business of ours how that great people came under its control or submitted with temporary zest to the domination of its purpose; but it is our business to see to it that the history of the rest of the world is no longer left to its handling.

To deal with such a power by way of peace upon the plan proposed by his Holiness the Pope would, so far as we can see, involve a recuperation of its strength and a renewal of its policy; would make it necessary to create a permanent hostile combination of nations against the German people, who are its instruments; and would result in abandoning the new-born Russia to the intrigue, the manifold subtle interference, and the certain counter-revolution which would be attempted by all the malign influences to which the German Government has of late accustomed the world.

Can peace be based upon a restitution of its power or upon any word of honor it could pledge in a treaty of settlement and accommodation?

Responsible statesmen must now everywhere see, if they never saw before, that no peace can rest securely upon political or economic restrictions meant to benefit some nations and cripple or embarrass others, upon vindictive action of any sort, or any kind of revenge or deliberate injury. The American people have suffered intolerable wrongs at the hands of the Imperial German Government, but they desire no reprisal upon the German people, who have themselves suffered all things in this war, which they did not choose. They believe that peace should rest upon the rights of peoples, not the rights of Governments—the rights of peoples, great or small, weak or powerful—their equal right to freedom and security and self-government and to a participation upon fair terms in the economic opportunities of the world, the German people, of course, included, if they will accept equality and not seek domination.

The test, therefore, of every plan of peace is this: Is it based upon the faith of all the peoples involved, or merely upon the word of an ambitious and intriguing Government, on the one hand, and of a group of free peoples, on the other? This is a test which goes to the root of the matter; and it is the test which must be applied.

The purposes of the United States in this war are known to the whole world—to every people to whom the truth has been permitted to come. They do not need to be stated again. We seek no material advantage of any kind. We believe that the intolerable wrongs done in this war by the furious and brutal power of the Imperial German Government ought to be repaired, but not at the expense of the sovereignty of any people—rather a vindication of the sovereignty both of those that are weak and of those that are strong. Punitive damages, the dismemberment of empires, the establishment of selfish and exclusive economic leagues, we deem inexpedient, and in the end worse than futile, no proper basis for a peace of any kind, least of all for an enduring peace. That must be based upon justice and fairness and the common rights of mankind.

We cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee of anything that is to endure unless explicitly supported by such conclusive evidence of the will and purpose of the German people themselves as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting. Without such guarantees treaties of settlement, agreements for disarmament, covenants to set up arbitration in the place of force, territorial adjustments, reconstitutions of small nations, if made with the German Government, no man, no nation, could now depend on.

We must await some new evidence of the purposes of the great peoples of the Central Powers. God grant it may be given soon and in a way to restore the confidence of all peoples everywhere in the faith of nations and the possibility of a covenanted peace.

AUTOCRACY A PERIL

Secretly Planned to Dominate World, Wilson Declares.

KNOW NO LAW OR MERCY

CAN GIVE NO GUARANTEES

To Deal with Such a Power Now Would Abandon Russia to Certain Intrigue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—President Wilson's response to Pope Benedict's peace proposals is a courteous but firm refusal to have any dealings with the present German autocracy. The text of the President's answer, made public by the State Department tonight, contains a scathing, even bitter, indictment of the Imperial German Government for cruelty, injustice, dishonesty, a bloodthirsty disregard of human rights.

"This power," says the President, "is not the German people. It is the ruthless master of the German people." Until that power has changed, until guarantees from Berlin are "explicitly supported by such conclusive evidence of the will and purpose of the German people themselves as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting," the Government of the United States will enter into no negotiations for peace.

There is no mistaking the President's purpose. Peace at this time is impossible in his view. The President expresses appreciation of "the dignity and force of the humane and generous motives" that prompted the Pontiff's offer, but he views it as a suggestion that the nations at war return to the status quo ante bellum, with a settlement of many perplexing problems left to be based on the principle of arbitration, and he feels that no satisfactory basis for such a settlement can be afforded while it is dependent on the promises of "an irresponsible Government."

Sought World Domination.

That irresponsible Government, in the words of the President's indictment, "having secretly planned to dominate the world, proceeded to carry the plan out without regard either to the sacred obligations of treaty or the long-established practices and long-cherished principles of international action and honor, which chose its own time for the war; delivered its blow fiercely and suddenly; stopped at no barrier either of law or of mercy; swept a whole continent within the tide of blood—not the blood of soldiers only, but the blood of innocent women and children also and of the helpless poor; and now stands balked but not defeated, the enemy of four-fifths of the world."

Men who are in the President's confidence have been saying privately that he had set his teeth in the determination to go on with the war until the German autocracy had come to an end. His words confirm all that they have said.

The President's response fairly bristles with indignant denunciation of the German Government. He is careful to make a distinction between the German people and their rulers. He holds out the hope to the German people that they will not be made the subject of revenge on account of the crimes of those who have plunged them into the bloody struggle which has come from the ambition of these men. The object of the war, says the President, is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the menace and the actual power of a vast military establishment controlled by an irresponsible Government.

Contains Message to Russia.

To have peace on the Pope's terms would merely bring a repetition of the conditions that prevailed before the war, in the President's opinion. Germany would recuperate its strength and renew its policy, and it would be necessary for the other nations to form a hostile combination against the German people.

In this connection the President sends a message of hope and cheer to the Russians. A return to the ante-bellum conditions, he says, would result in abandoning the new-born Russia to the intrigues and all the malign influences "to which the German Government has of late accustomed the world."

In the form of a question, the President says, in effect, that peace based on a restitution of Germany's power, or on its word of honor to observe treaty obligations, would be impossible. To the German people he holds out the assurance that they will be included, "if they will accept equality and not seek domination," in the peace which he hopes for and in which the American people believe, resting upon the rights of peoples, not the rights of Governments.

Moscow Council Cheers President Wilson's Message

LONDON, Aug. 28.—President Wilson's message promising the full support of the United States was read to the National Council at Moscow yesterday. A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says this was the first and only incident that brought complete agreement in the convention, all the delegates rising and cheering wildly.

MOSCOW, Monday, Aug. 27.—The second general sitting of the National Conference was held this afternoon. General Korniloff, the Commander in Chief, entered the hall in company with Premier Kerensky. His appearance was the signal for a prolonged and enthusiastic ovation. All the delegates cheered for Russia, the revolutionary Government and the army.

The Premier in introducing General Korniloff, said the Government had thought it necessary to invite the Commander in Chief to lay before the conference the situation at the front and in the army.

General Korniloff said the death penalty, restoration of which he had asked, together with other measures, constituted only a small part of what was necessary in an army stricken with the terrible evils of disorganization and insubordination. In the present mo[illegible] soldiers had killed four regimental commanders and other officers, and ceased these outrages only when they were threatened with being shot. Quite re-

GERMANY GIVES A NEW PLEDGE TO ARGENTINA

Will Pay Indemnity and Promises to Observe International Law Toward Shipping.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 28.—Germany's reply to Argentina's note embodying demands in connection with the submarine campaign as affecting Argentine shipping has been received.

The text of the note as handed to the Government by the German Minister is as follows:

> The German Imperial Government desires to maintain cordial relations with Argentina, and, to prove with facts its friendly sentiment, has decided, after a new investigation of the Toro case, to indemnify the Argentine Government.
> The Imperial German Government declares at the same time that the freedom of the seas, in which Argentine shipping would share, forms one of the objects of this war. As a consequence of the illegal acts of its enemies the liberty of action of the Imperial German Government is limited, but it willingly acknowledges the dictates of international law and will endeavor to observe them.
> The naval forces of the German Empire have received orders and instructions in agreement with this viewpoint, and the Imperial German Government is convinced that after these declarations no incident will occur to disturb the friendly relations between Germany and Argentina.

The Foreign Office this evening issued a statement, saying that after the delivery of the second note to Berlin "Germany insisted on the condition that Argentina prevent her vessels from traversing the blockade." This was refused as "incompatible with the spirit of Argentina's demands." The statement concludes:

"Argentina's claims have been satisfied in all their terms and without any restrictions."

The Foreign Minister and the President are outspoken in their indignation that an intimation of the contents of the note was given to an afternoon newspaper by Count von Luxburg before it was made public by the Argentine Government, thus preventing secret consideration of the document before the gist of the reply was generally known.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The reported response of Germany to Argentina does not surprise observers here. Argentina has been a hotbed of German propaganda, it is to Germany's interest to prevent a break with the republic.

One feature of the report from Buenos Aires concerning the German answer to Argentina's demands is that it differs from the report that came from Zurich last week that Argentina's demand had been rejected. This suggests that the German Government has sent an answer to Argentina while seeking to create an impression at home that the Imperial Government had shown its usual contemptuous attitude toward a nation smaller than itself.

The German assurances to Argentina are regarded here as not worth the paper they are written on.

Trieste Civilians Evacuate City as the Armies of Italy Drive On British Take a Mile Front Northeast of Ypres, Piercing Germans' Third Line—French Raid Champagne Trenches—Artillery Active Near Verdun.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—That the fall of Trieste before the Italian advance is threatened is the encouraging news received by the Italian Embassy today from Rome.

The message states that news dispatches from Zurich to the Italian newspaper Corriere d'Italia bring confirmation from Austrian sources that on account of the dangers threatening Trieste the civilian population has been ordered by the military authorities to evacuate the city. The majority of the inhabitants, according to the Corriere's advices, has already departed, and everything of value has been transported to the interior.

ROME, Aug. 28, (British Admiralty, per Wireless Press.)—The Italians made further progress yesterday on the Bainsizza Plateau, on the front north of Gorizia, the War Office announces. The Austrians made violent counterattacks, but failed to recover positions taken by the Italians. The announcement follows:

> On the whole battle front there were artillery actions principally yesterday. On the Bainsizza Plateau our troops, continuing their progress, have been in closer contact with the enemy. Vigorous local attacks assured for us some positions which the enemy failed to recapture, although he made violent counterattacks.
> Unfavorable atmospheric conditions greatly impeded the activity of our airplanes.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—King George has telegraphed congratulations to King Victor Emmanuel on the achievements of the Italian Army, expressing the opinion that they will exercise a far-reaching effect on the war. The King said he was happy that British guns and monitors contributed to the success of the Italians.

VIENNA, Sunday, Aug. 26, (via London.)—Monte Santo, on the Isonzo front, was evacuated by the Austro-Hungarian forces on Friday night, without fighting, Army Headquarters announced today, the Italians occupying it. The text of the statement reads:

> Italian War Theatre.—On the Carso there was no infantry engagement on a large scale yesterday. South of the Vippach Valley a night attack was repulsed. Near Biggila minor Italian advances failed.
> Fresh and heavy engagements developed in the Monte San Gabriele district, and thanks to the bravery of the defenders, among whom were Gras riflemen, Styrians and Hungarian territorials, the enemy, in spite of his heavy, sanguinary sacrifices, nowhere succeeded in piercing our front.
> Monte Santo, which was evacuated by us without fighting on Friday night, has been occupied by the Italians.
> There have been numerous engagements on the highlands of Bainsizza and Heiligegeist and also to the east of Auzza.

AUSTRIANS ADMIT PERIL.

Emperor, While at Front, Saw Victorious Italian Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—All the Austrian newspapers now admit that the Italian offensive is of exceptional importance, the daily communication from Rome to the Italian Embassy here announces.

"They speak of the difficult task of defense and do not appear to be confident of preventing the Italians from attaining General Cadorna's objectives," the communication goes on. "The clear sight and superiority of the Italian command are more evident daily. General Cadorna seems in these supreme hours to reincarnate the might and valor of the ancient Roman consuls leading the Latin legions to certain victory.

"The enemy, now in rout on the high plateau of Bainsizza, attacked and pushed back on the eastern side of the Carso, is vacillating under the continuous assaults and is trying to escape, leaving behind him great quantities of foodstuffs, guns and war materials of every description.

"The correspondent of the Tribune, describing the conquest of Monte Santo, says that this success crowns all the series of works and efforts since May on the Vodice, the ridge joining Monte Kuk, or Cucco, to Monte Santo, where the Italians for three months were subjected to an incessant fire. Before the offensive of May Monte Santo was a part of the Austrian defensive organization of the Bainsizza Plateau, which is situated between the Isonzo and Chiapovano Valleys. The enemy attempted to bar every possible access to the high plateau by establishing very formidable fortified lines resting on the strong natural fortresses such as Vodice, Monte Cucco, and Monte Santo, constituting a great defensive barrier of the Valley of Prohot.

"When Vodice fell to the Italians the Austrians withdrew the barrier on the line Monte Santo-Krobilek. Today, after the capture of Monte Santo, the chief immediate advantages obtained by the Italians are the elimination of the barrier of the Prohot Valley on the way to the Bainsizza Plateau, the freeing of the Gorizia zone of Austrians, who theretofore had been able to fire upon the city, and the isolating of the Velik-

MINNESOTA GOVERNOR BARS PEACE COUNCIL

Prohibits Meeting in the State on the Ground That It Would Aid Nation's Enemies.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 28.—Governor Burnquist late today issued a proclamation prohibiting the People's Council of America for Democracy and Peace from holding its promised meeting in Minneapolis, or elsewhere in Minnesota.

The Governor's action followed a report from the Sheriff of Hennepin County in which the latter stated that after making a thorough investigation he believed the proposed meeting would result in bloodshed, rioting, and loss of life. In his proclamation the Governor added his conviction that the meeting could only aid enemies of the United States.

Every peace officer in the State is called upon to aid in the enforcement of the order.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Military authorities here strongly favor a more aggressive policy on the part of the British Navy in attacking German submarine bases.

It is argued that if such an objective is worth a military offensive from Verdun to Flanders, costing hundreds of thousands of casualties, both the British and American fleets should go in fearlessly and destroy the U-boat nests in Belgium.

LABORITES IN ROW OVER STOCKHOLM

REFUSE TO CONFER ON IT

Henderson Pleads for Harmony—Commission Is Appointed to Consider Peace Terms.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The inter-allied Socialist and Labor conference was opened in London this morning under the Presidency of Arthur Henderson, member of the House of Commons and former Minister without portfolio.

Mr. Henderson, according to the official report of the proceedings, said:

"The conference has met to consider and determine as impartially and justly as possible the future attitude of labor and Socialism in the allied countries toward war and peace. The main issues involved in the world conflict are so fundamental, far-reaching, and vital to the future of the human race as to demand dispassionate and faithful consideration both by the majority and minority sections of all the countries represented. No satisfactory results could be achieved by any attempts of the majority to outvote the minority.

"The better course is to begin by a clear recognition of their differences in an endeavor to reach by mutual agreement a basis of war aims calculated to provide a lasting, honorable, and democratic peace. Though none of the decisions of the conference will be binding upon the Government, they would be regarded throughout the world as the considered judgment of the organized proletariat of the countries represented."

It is understood that several speeches were delivered by French delegates, the tenor of which indicated wide difefrences of opinion on many essential points, and that these became more divergent when the conference considered the appointment of a commission to deal with the Stockholm conference and to submit recommendations concerning it. The French majority, which was opposed to the Stockholm conference, is reported to have declined practically to nominate any of its members to the commission.

A commission was appointed to deal generally with peace terms.

Seventy delegates, representing Great Britain, Belgium, Russia, France, Portugal, Greece, South Africa, and Italy, are present. More than half of previous expressions, such as those contained in his address to the Senate in January, and his statement of America's aims in his note to the warring powers sent in the previous December. He does not again use the expression "peace without victory," but points out that "no proper basis for peace of any kind, least of all for an enduring peace," is to be found in "punitive damages, the dismemberment of empires, the establishment of selfish and exclusive economic leagues." These things, he asserts, "we deem inexpedient and in the end worse than futile." They must be based, he contends, "upon justice and fairness and the common rights of mankind."

Opposed to Economic War.

In some quarters here there is already a disposition to read into these expressions of the President a criticism of the agreement between the members of the Entente alliance to erect a commercial and economic wall against Germany after the war. It is also argued that the President has shown that he was opposed to any great change in the map of Europe after the war. He has heretofore indicated that he did not favor a peace based on arbitrary territorial disruption and the placing of people of one race under the domination of another race. This policy, however, bears as much on the ambition of Germany, Austria, and Turkey to keep under their control the peoples of alien races as it does upon any notice to the Allies that the United States deprecates any intention on their part to wrest territory from the Central Powers.

It might even be construed to mean that the people of Alsace-Lorraine had the right to expect that their territory would be transferred to French control, that the people of Herzegovina and Bosnia should be released from Austrian domination, and that the people of Trieste should achieve their wish to be under the authority of Italy.

One suggestion heard this evening was that the Government of Austria-Hungary, anxious for peace, might find encouragement to make overtures in the suggestion drawn from the President's note that the United States Government would not be a party to ruthless dismemberment of that empire.

Regard It as the Last Word.

From expressions heard tonight it is evident that the President's response to Pope Benedict has cheered and encouraged those who believe that the war must be carried on until the German autocracy is overthrown. The President, it is asserted, has spoken the last word, and it is useless to bring forward any further peace proposals until Germany and her partners are willing to give their people a chance to control their affairs and to furnish guarantees that will prevent a recurrence of the horrors of the present war.

The President's message was sent yesterday. Contrary to expectation, it was addressed directly to Pope Benedict and not through the medium of the British Government, which transmitted it to the United States at the request of the Papal Secretary of State.

WATTERSON COMMENDS NOTE.

No Peace Until Allies Dictate It from Berlin, He Declares.

Henry Watterson, editor of The Louisville Courier-Journal, expressed the strongest commendation of the President's reply to the Pope's peace proposal last night, and suggested that the White House make a flat official statement that no peace ever will be made by this Government with the present rulers of Austria or Germany. He declared that no peace would be made until it was dictated by the Allies sitting in Berlin.

Colonel Watterson dictated this opinion of the President's reply to the Pope: "The President is always lucid with his pen. He writes admirably and succinctly. Nothing is now wanted except an official declaration that we will not make peace with either the Hohenzollerns or the Hapsburgs. In fact, all peace talk is but the subterfuge of treason. There can be no peace until it is dictated by the Allies from Berlin."

CLING TO THE TERMS OF REICHSTAG PEACE

BELIEVE WAR'S END NEAR

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

BERNE, Aug. 8.—Switzerland is the rendezvous of nations, but the belligerent line is severely drawn. Many of the diplomatic group in Berne live at the principal hotel. The secretaries from the German Legation have a big table in one corner of the dining room, where they talk gaily at meal times. As they go in and come out, passing former friends among the American secretaries, they are stone blind, as are the Americans.

And yet Switzerland, and especially Berne, the capital, is at present a beehive of German propagandism. Politicians from Berlin, German diplomatists in the service, German business men with international connections, German-American journalists are putting out talk which shall filter through and create such impressions as are desired.

Those Germans charged with the management of this war are believers in "putting things over," or under, as the case may be. The Zeppelin and the U-boat correctly present the war mind of Germany. Nothing comes about spontaneously. Great principles count for naught. Right and justice are empty words. The race is to the swift, the battle to the strong. A lie is as good as, yea, better than, the truth if you can make it stick. The weak can do with the truth; only the strong and the clever can "make the worse appear the better reason."

That is the brand of German Kultur that one sees and feels in Switzerland and which is probably predominant in these times in the direction of the affairs of Germany. This is not to say that the whole German people have lost all sobriety, love of truth, and sincerity. But Germany is a company of discipline. There is a leadership, the people trust and obey it. It has thus happened that a leadership of lies, of power loving and self seeking, has had the support of the moral sense and virtue of a people the great majority of whom are individually sound and right-loving.

A More Democratice Spirit.

Either because it suits the German stage management, or because neither the fact nor the knowledge of it can any longer be suppressed, the impression is spreading in Switzerland that the scales are falling from the eyes of the German people. This impression comes to me, necessarily secondhand, largely through Swiss intermediaries.

There is a law forbidding communications with citizens of an enemy country. Germans come to Switzerland by the thousands. Politicians like Herr Erzberger, leader of the Catholic Party, come under a flag of truce, inviting peace parleys. Some may be acting in good faith and with all sincerity. But it is harder for a German to get a hearing than for the proverbial camel to pass through the pedestrian's gate of a city. It is the fault of the Germans themselves. They have trifled with world confidence and lost it.

What is here set down comes from German sources and must be discounted accordingly.

There has been a marked change in Germany, especially in these later months, according to this German information. The recent action of the Reichstag furnishes a character of testimony that must be accepted by all who are familiar with German conditions. It is claimed that it shows two things of enormous significance: 1. That public opinion has established itself as a force in the exact sense that it is a force in democracies, and is already more potent than the Kaiser. 2. That public opinion is for peace on terms humiliating to neither the Entente nor the Central Allies, i. e., peace without indemnity, annexation or commercial boycott.

People Fear Indemnity Stigma.

Germany's standing out against indemnities is not to be referred to financial reasons. She is not willing to put herself in the attitude to herself, to her posterity, and to the world of having carried out a wicked war. She feels keenly the isolation she has been forced into by the twenty-four nations arrayed against her. She knows that she will have to face a hostile and scornful world. But she can, and does, feel now as if her moral isolation is the result of the misunderstanding of the rest of the world.

The payment of an indemnity would make her a felon in her own eyes and those of the world. She will shed her last drop of blood before accepting such humiliating terms.

All the claims of liberalization must be made to stand up alongside the undeniable fact that the Kaiser remains strong with the people. His service to the country before the war was entered upon, his devotion to work, his religious character and the family life led by him, supplemented by the fine character of the Kaiserin, make it difficult for any sentiment against the Hohenzollern dynasty to gain headway.

Probably a majority of the people want some form of democracy, but they retain a sense of loyalty to the present sovereign. The Kaiser is personally much stronger than Pan-Germanism, which makes a noise, especially outside Germany, out of all proportion to its numbers. The Pan-German papers which are so much quoted in London, Paris, and New York are represented as journals of small circulation and influence—the most important having only about 10,000 circulation, as against, say, half a million for the largest Socialist paper.

Relations with Austria.

Relations with Austria are said to give no anxiety in Germany. The latter has an unbreakable grip on the Austrian Army. After the breakdown in the face of Brusiloff's drive the Austrian Army was reorganized by Germany which, it is claimed, has a majority of rank and file and practically all the officers in every regiment. Austria-Hungary is powerless, and if she attempted to make a separate peace, what Vienna could deliver to the Entente wouldn't be worth the offense that such a move would give to Italy.

The people in Germany are represented as being in a quiet state of mind, and ready for all sacrifices, provided only that the Government seize the first opportunity for peace without humiliation. It is claimed that there isn't the slightest danger of strangulation by blockade. Oil is coming from Rumania, and more and more will be received; and from that source will come grain later in the season. There is the greatest care in the use of munitions, but this is a matter of policy rather than necessity. In airplanes Germany is stronger relatively than a few months ago.

Paper money is in abundant supply, and serves every purpose, seeing that Germany has very little trade requiring real money to carry it on. The very poor are better off than in times of peace, as are the very rich.

Present Conditions Summarized.

To sum up the claims implied by current talk among Swiss people with German connections, inside conditions in Germany may be briefly stated as follows:

First—Bethmann's resignation and Michaelis's appointment were the result of a real political crisis arising from deep-seated and significant conditions.

Second—Germany realizes the importance of America's entry into war, and that probably the next six months will offer a more favorable time for peace than after America's army takes its place on the western front.

Third—The four-party coalition which controlled the Reichstag by a large majority represents public opinion in equal or greater proportion and the resolution adopted voices a genuine desire for peace on the terms therein promulgated that Michaelis will be obliged to adhere to or resign.

Fourth—There is a real public opinion in Germany today which while not antagonistic to is in some measure independent of the Kaiser and that is increasingly aggressive in its effort to enforce its demands. This means a distinct and definite advance toward liberal government.

Fifth—June marked the low point in food supply. Green vegetables have somewhat improved conditions and the near approach of harvest relieves the strain temporarily.

Sixth—Opinion is divided as to whether the submarine is coming up to reasonable expectations, but the majority sentiment is that the benefit of an unrestricted U-boat war doesn't offset the danger and loss by America's coming in. The press recently has been emphasizing submarine effectiveness under orders from Hindenburg, and increasing popular optimism on that subject is observable. If man-power is declining it is not visible to civilian observation. Supplies of war material are sufficient and military conditions generally have suffered no impairment recently.

Bethmann a "Jonah."

The accounts of the political crisis are interesting. There had been a growing impatience with von Bethmann Hollweg. He came to be regarded as invertebrate and inefficient, as well as a sort of "Jonah." Germany had had numerous victories which an abler Chancellor might have turned to account in bringing the war to an end. The defeat of Russia in 1915, for example; the conquest of Rumania; the showing made by the submarines; and always the war map. In these circumstances a peace should have been concluded on some favorable occasion at any time in the last two years and nine months.

From the battle of the Mare on it was clear that the typical Prussian victory by onset alone was not for this time. The German public has grown hungrier for peace. The Chancellor failed to react to the German impulse; he conciliated, discussed, postponed, paltered, trying to please everybody, pleasing nobody.

Finally public opinion working on the Reichstag brought about an untenable position for Bethmann. The four-party coalition was the direct result of popular unrest—the demand of the people for an energetic initiative for peace. There are 379 votes in the Reichstag. Of these the Centrists, or Catholics, have 91; the Socialists, 89; the National Liberals, (business men,) 44, the Progresives, 40. This coalition thus controls a large majority, but was not altogether homogeneous.

The three main causes of unrest were the desire for peace, dissatisfaction with the system of voting in Prussia and the wish of other German States to have it regularized, and dissatisfaction with Bethmann. The trouble was that all members of the four parties couldn't be lined up on all three proposals.

Enter Michaelis.

It was at this stage that Herr Erzberger concluded to "start something," and the bomb that he threw led to an excitement and stampede that consolidated the position. It was in vain that the Chancellor pulled his wires. Even the hints mysteriously set afloat that the Emperor Charles wanted him retained were unavailing.

There was some disappointment among members of the four-party coalition at the speech of Dr. Michaelis on his assumption of the Chancellorship. In his official relation with the Prussian Diet he will do all that can be done—which is to communicate the desire of the Reichstag for voting reform in Prussia. This is a matter for Prussia after all, just as it is a matter for Maryland to say who shall and shall not vote for members of her General Assembly; at least, that is the contention of those who are opposed to any change in Prussia.

Unless there is some change in the military aspect that causes a revulsion in popular sentiment, when the Reichstag reassembles in September, (or at the call of the President before that,) the Chancellor must proceed with the peace program, or the coalition will compel the Kaiser to name a new Premier. The power of the Reichstag is not direct, but as that body holds the purse strings it can, theoretically at least, dictate policy even to the Kaiser.

The food situation is represented as less acute. June was the hard month. The people stood the strain because they believed that peace was coming. The idea of peace had got abroad and was almost an obsession. The Government had spread it and the masses suffered patiently because they believed that the Government was moving toward peace.

When popular discontent over starvation and other sacrifice became menacing, speeches of allied orators or editorials from newspapers were quoted and emphasized to show that Germany must endure to the end on peril of her very existence. The answer of the Entente last December to Germany's peace suggestion had been used over and over again to show Germans that they must fight or die.

The attitude toward America is a mixture of fear and contempt, at least among the militarists who are in charge of this war. They would like to think that the Spanish and Mexican wars furnish the scale by which American capacity for war is to be measured. But when they look at American resources in wealth and population and when they turn to the direct evidence of German-born citizens in America as to the earnestness and purpose of that country, their contempt fades into fear and they quail at the prospect.

The talk now put out here is that Germany realizes that America is sure to come in with all her weight and that because of this Germany must take whatever steps for peace she has in mind within the next few months. It is declared that Germany carefully refrains from any act to inflame America toward her and thereby accelerate her preparations. It would be possible, they say, to torpedo American transports and passenger ships, but submarine commanders have rigid instructions not to touch them.

Unless compelled by circumstances, Germany will do nothing to rouse American fighting spirit and will hope either that peace can be concluded before America gets into the trenches "with both feet" or that the submarine can so reduce shipping tonnage as to make transport on a large scale impossible within the next six months except at the cost of starving England and France or cutting off supplies for the Entente armies.

GERMAN PRESS SURPRISED.

Ask Light on Kerensky's References to Offers of Separate Peace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 28, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—All the German papers express surprise at the reference in a report which they publish of Kerensky's speech to a "recent offer of separate peace" which was rejected with scorn by the Russian Government. Some journals put forward a request for light on the point.

They are equally astonished at Kerensky's statement: "A few days ago we were witnesses of a fresh ignominious and similar attempt which was directed against our allies."

Bavarian Movement to Support Terms Proposed by Pope.

Reports which have reached London from Berlin recently told of the organization by Father Wolfgruber, a Bavarian priest, of "The Peace Phalanx of the Holy Father" to comprise Roman Catholic priests throughout Germany, and, Father Wolfgruber hopes, in enemy countries as well.

Catholic laymen are also eligible for membership in the phalanx, which ostensibly will advocate peace only "on the basis proposed by the Pope."

ACCLAIMED POPE'S PLEA

But Catholic Federation Did Not Urge Its Acceptance.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 28.—Resolutions "acclaiming" the peace proposal of Pope Benedict and pledging all Catholics of this country to the war program of the United States, but containing no clause urging acceptance of the Papal suggestions, were adopted here today by the American Federation of Catholic Societies.

The loyalty resolution declares that "in accordance with the unbroken tradition of loyalty from the foundations of this Republic, we solemnly affirm our inalienable attachment to the principles of American government, and we pledge without reservation our blood and our treasure for the defense and perpetuation of our beloved country."

The Pope's proposal was spoken of as follows:

"We reverently and joyfully acclaim the action of our holy father, Benedict XV., in his proposal of a basis for the negotiation of peace between the warring nations, and we mark with pardonable pride the accord between the articles of agreement offered by the supreme Pontiff and the tentative suggestions formerly made by the President of the United States."

The committee which drew up the document was headed by the Right Rev. Joseph Schrembs, of Toledo, Ohio. It contained clerical and lay members from all sections of the United States, and it was characterized as setting forth the beliefs of the 3,000,000 members of the federation in this country.

PEACE COUNCIL IN BERLIN.

Consultations with Chancellor on Reply to the Pope.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 28.—Pope Benedict's peace note will be the principal subject of discussion at a meeting in Berlin this afternoon, in which Imperial Chancellor Michaelis, members of the German Parliament, and representatives of Prussia, Bavaria, Saxony, and Württemberg will participate. Reports from the German capital say that Dr. Michaelis will leave for Belgium immediately after the meeting to have a conference with the Governor General, Baron von Falkenhausen.

The possibility of another change in Imperial Chancellors in Germany is discussed by Georg Bernhard in the Vossische Zeitung. He says it is plainly evident already that the appointment of a minor official like Dr. Michaelis, without general political experience, was a great mistake, and that the results desired are not apt to be reached quickly under the leadership of the new administration. Parliament, he argues, must take the questions of internal reforms and peace into its own hands. Herr Bernhard still hopes that Chancellor Michaelis will see the error of his ways and avoid the necessity for another change in the Chancellorship.

Theodor Wolff, in the Tageblatt, dismisses the new Bundesrat-Reichstag committee as "a nostrum designed to soothe the cry of the German people for popular control of the Government." He attacks Dr. Michaelis's reasons for sidetracking Parliamentary reform until after the war, and says that the truth is that parliamentarism is not desired just now because it would impose real control upon the Government and end the domination of secret influences.

THINKS NOTE MARKS HIGH POINT IN WAR

enduring peace. The Pontiff looks to the restoration of conditions as they existed before the war; the President turns his back upon these, convinced that a return to the status quo ante bellum could never bring permanent peace, which can be secured only by agreement between free peoples on both sides.

Doom of Hohenzollernism.

As one official commenting expressed it, the President's response, reflecting, as it does, the views of the Entente Allies, sounds the doom of Hohenzollernism and military domination of peoples. That this can and should be accomplished without the destruction of the German people is one of the striking expressions in the President's note, when he expressly disclaims any intent to seek punitive damages and the dismemberment of empires, or even the punishment of the Central Powers after the war by gigantic economic combinations against them.

This shaft is aimed straight over the head of the army-controlled German Foreign Office at the understanding and appreciation of the German people, already manifesting many signs of a determination to assert their right to govern themselves by parliamentary methods. It is assumed here that there will follow a fierce outburst of denunciation against the attempt from the outside to dictate to the German people their form of government. But it is also believed that, as the hardships of war and misgovernment bear with ever-increasing severity upon the German people, they must in the end throw off their military masters and take in their own hands, through a representative government, the conduct of negotiations looking to a fair and honorable and permanent peace.

Active exchanges have been in progress between the President, Secretary Lansing, and the Entente Powers, mainly through the American diplomatic representatives abroad, regarding the answer to be made to the Pope's proposals ever since these were delivered to the various Foreign Offices. It seemed by common consent that to America was confided the heavy responsibility of framing and delivering the first of the replies. The propriety of this course was apparent from the consideration of the fact that every one of the Entente Premiers and Foreign Ministers who had spoken publicly on the subject of peace, had turned to the language of President Wilson's historic address to Congress and his other public utterances on the subject, as disclosing their own conceptions of the proper bases of peace negotiations. And even more potent than this consideration was the conviction that America was best fitted of all nations to deal what it was hoped would be the death blow to autocracy of the Germanic type.

Every precaution was observed to prevent a premature disclosure of the contents of the President's response. Few members of the Cabinet were informed on the subject before today's Cabinet meeting. Last night the document was handed over to the trusted telegraphers of the State Department to be sent on its way by cable to Ambassador Page in London, who was to deliver it to Foreign Minister Balfour for transmission to Rome. At the same time copies of the communication, as a matter of courtesy, were placed in the hands of the diplomatic representatives of the Entente Powers in Washington for their information.

Although the Pope's proposals were addressed to the leaders of the nations at war, which, of course, included President Wilson, and was signed by the Pontiff himself, the response was signed by Secretary Lansing. As the latter expressly stated that he was merely transmitting the President's reply, however, the method was strictly within the diplomatic proprieties.

Comment of Today's Newspapers on the President's Note

PRESS OF NEW YORK APPLAUDS THE NOTE

From The World.

President Wilson's reply to the Vatican peace proposals can be compressed into five words, "No peace with Prussian autocracy."

The President maks that issue fundamental, sweeping all other questions aside. Everything can be left to compromise and adjustment except the safety and security of civilization. There must be guarantees for that. "This agony must not be gone through with again." And there can be no guarantee while the present Government of Germany endures.

Again has the President proved himself the great spokesman and interpreter of modern democracy. His note to the Vatican is a new Emancipation Proclamation—emancipation for the German people themselves if they will accept it, no less than for the peoples that are already crushed or menaced by ruthless military power. A "peace that should rest upon the rights of peoples, not the rights of Governments," and upon "their equal rights to freedom, security, and self-government and to a participation in fair terms in the economic opportunities of the world"—that is the very cornerstone of true civilization. Unless that is won out of the blood and welter of this war all is lost, and lost to the Germans themselves as well as to the rest of mankind.

Answer to Prussian Peace Advocates.

From The Herald.

President Wilson rejects the peace proposal of the Pope, and in language that will ring around the world gives reasons. There can be no truce with Prussianism, no temporizing with evil. Peace cannot be based upon any such flimsy structure as the word of the present German Government.

Speaking not alone for the United States, but for the peoples of all nations now fighting by our side, President Wilson makes it clear that they are in this war in order to lay the foundations of an enduring peace, a peace based on justice and fairness and the common rights of mankind. For such a peace the word of the present rulers of Germany cannot be taken. The only peace acceptable will be one supported by such conclusive evidence of the will and purpose of the German people themselves as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting. No man, no nation can depend upon the word of the German Government, no agreement it could make would be of any more value than others of its "scraps of paper."

The President has answered from the great heart of the American people. It is an answer to the Pope, and, as well, to all advocates of a Prussian peace—in this country or any other.

BOSTON.

Expresses America's Attitude.

From The Herald.

We believe the President has expressed, with admirable precision, the attitude of the American people in the present crisis; they want peace, but they want it on a basis that affords adequate assurance of its lasting. We believe the war is nearing an end—an end which will secure the future peace of the world. To yield just on the edge of such an accomplishment would be a prodigious mistake. There is something in knowing when to stop. Nothing could be more tragic than to give up the fight on the edge of a momentous triumph. And in saying this, we feel that we have no eye singled to the advantage of our own country, or even of the allied group, but rather the moral health of our common humanity as it nears one of the great turnstiles.

No Peace with a "Ruthless Autocracy."

From The Post.

This reply meets expectations and forecasts; it is that which the President's utterances of recent months have made consistent; it reaches the very heart of the contention of this Government ever since the declaration of war. And that is, that there can be no peace with a ruthless and brutal autocracy that has become morally bankrupt and has impressed the rest of the world with the utter unreliability of its promises. The high motives of Pope Benedict and the desirability of a lasting peace are acknowledged by the President. But he shows in his most crystalline and effective fashion how futile and evanescent any peace would be backed only by the Punic faith of the Hohenzollerns.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Will Strike Home in Austria.

From The Republican.

With unerring accuracy President Wilson * * * touches the weak spot in any proposal involving essentially the status quo ante bellum. The world cannot trust the faith of Germany under its present rulers. Again he draws, and even more sharply than before, the distinction between the German people and their Machievellian Government, which knows neither truth nor honor nor mercy. Perhaps the deepest significance of the note lies in its appeal to the peoples of the Central Empires to assert themselves. How it will be taken in stiffly disciplined and homogeneous Germany may be doubtful, but unquestionably it will strike a vibrant chord in Austria-Hungary.

PROVIDENCE.

Epitome of Our Aims.

From The Providence Journal.

The President's answer is a state paper of great dignity and clarity. It is an epitome of the war aims of the nation; a reaffirmation of the solemn pledge the American people made with themselves when they entered the war; a renewal of their covenant with other peoples to see it through.

Mr. Wilson, acknowledging the "humane and generous motives" which prompted the message of the Pope, and fervently wishing "that we might take the path of peace he so persuasively points out," rejects the proposal on grounds that equally express humane and generous impulses, and which, besides, are logically sound. In spirit and language the moral elevation of the reply is not to be challenged.

From The Inquirer.

If Germany herself will do the bidding of highwayman autocracy, well and good. If she will undertake to govern herself and destroy the military system that has for years been a world menace, we, the countries fighting against that system, will be more than delighted. But if she will not undertake the task—if it is too great a one for her to accomplish—nothing remains but for us to do it for her. Such is the plain meaning of the President's reply to the Pope, and it ought to clear the atmosphere, not only in the United States, but in Europe. The people of Germany and of Austria now know for a certainty that there will be no halting in our preparations for determined warfare and that peace proposals are useless unless they conform to the requirements laid down by Mr. Wilson.

BALTIMORE.

Says Germany Must Be Defeated.

From The American.

With full appreciation of the sincere and humanitarian motives that inspired the Pope and sharing in his desire that the slaughter of men shall cease, this Government cannot be a party to any peace proposals that would simply mean a renewal of the war and that would give Germany ample time to prepare for it. Germany has not as yet shown a spirit that indicates any feeling of responsibility for the war, and regret for the thousand infamous deeds it has committed, deeds for which it can only atone by an open confession of its wrongdoings, forced upon it by an ignominious defeat. Only in that way, and in no other way, can Germany be brought to peace terms which the United States can consider.

Expresses the People's Will.

From The Sun.

As the United States cannot treat with the present Germany, it is useless to discuss the specific terms which the Pope has proposed, and the President wisely refrains from such discussion. The implication is that this nation would be glad to confer regarding these matters with a Government that expressed the will and purpose of a free German people, but until it is possible to deal with such a Government nothing can be gained by futile debates.

It was of the first importance that the answer of this Government to the Pope should be one that would not discourage the growth of liberal thought in Germany itself, and one that would not discourage the liberal thought of revolutionized Russia. This danger the President has avoided by the definiteness and force with which he expressed the supreme issue between this nation and the one with which it is at war.

The President has not closed the door to peace. He has shown how easy the German people may fling it wide open. His answer expresses the will of the American people.

WASHINGTON.

Germany Must Seek Peace from Within.

From The Post.

President Wilson lays bare the inherent weakness of any proposal to make peace on any terms with the German Government, this weakness being the inability of that Government to give any pledge or promise that other nations would accept. The German Government having destroyed its reputation for truth and honor, no one else can restore it. It is for Germany to seek peace from within, by setting aside the mad murderers who have run her toward ruin. * * * The United States, through President Wilson, notifies Germany that the war will go on until evidence is given to the world, by defeat or inner reform, that Germany is no longer a maniac, but a peaceable neighbor.

PITTSBURGH.

Does Not Close Door to Peace.

From The Gazette-Times.

The issue is still what it always was and it must be said of Mr. Wilson's document, it keeps the issue in sight throughout. The reply by no means closes the door to peace. * * * In that last sentence is the solution of the war if Germany cares to take it. That sentence answers the fears of the German people for "after the war." America has disclaimed any part in an intention to exact punitive damages or make an economic war follow the war of armies. This announcement opens the door to peace surely, but the next move must come from the German people.

CLEVELAND.

A Keynote for the Allies.

From The Leader.

It is a keynote which can readily be accepted for the chorus from other allied nations, which are certain to reject the Papal appeal, because, as the head of the American Republic points out, it could not lead to the goal sought by the Pontiff, whose aims are as high as his eloquence is moving. Speaking for the American people, the President declines to accept any settlement inconclusive, uncertain, temporary in its very nature. He will not give the master criminals of the Imperial German Government an opportunity to prepare for other monstrous crimes against humanity.

No Peace with Prussianism.

From The Plain Dealer.

The Hohenzollern Government of Prussia cannot give peace to the world. It can give no assurance and make no promise which civilization would be justified in accepting. The democracies cannot, therefore, discuss peace while the people of the Central Powers continue to be dominated by ruthless and faithless Prussianism. This, the substance of President Wilson's reply to Pope Benedict's peace proposal, must be the substance of every reply made by the nations now leagued to uphold human rights against the brutal arrogance of autocracy.

CINCINNATI.

"The President Is Right."

From The Commercial Tribune.

The President is right in raising the question as to whether any adjustment is effectively possible with one of the signatory parties a Government that has flagrantly violated sacred treaties of its own making, notoriously disregarded international law and convention, and shamelessly infringed the commonest dictates of humanity in the ruthless slaughter of women and children.

LOUISVILLE.

"The Pope and Potsdam Answered."

From The Courier Journal.

Beyond the consideration due the Pope there was, of course, no reason for any answer at all; for all such paths to peace as that suggested by the Vatican lead nowhere, and, as the President points out, it would be folly to take them if they do not lead to the goal proposed. "Can peace,"—he summed up the situation in one resonant question that answers itself—"be based upon a restitution of its (Germany's) power or upon any word of honor it could pledge in a treaty of settlement and accommodation?" So far as the United States is concerned, the Pope and Potsdam likewise, if interested, are answered.

ST. LOUIS.

No Peace with Junkers.

From The Republic.

The distinction between the German people and their Government is again sharply drawn, and when the President says, "We cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee of anything that is to endure, unless explicitly supported by conclusive evidence of the will and purpose of the German people themselves," he invites the conclusion that there can be no satisfactory or lasting peace so long as the Hohenzollerns and the Prussian junkers rule in Germany.

The Only Reply Possible.

From The Globe-Democrat.

It was the only reply that intelligence, justice, and patriotism, as well as mercy, could make at this time, under the circumstances that now obtain. To end the war under the conditions proposed by the Pope would be, in fact, neither mercy nor humanity, for it would be but an armistice, sure to be followed by a larger and bloodier war, if it were possible for any war to be larger or bloodier.

WHEELING, WEST VA.

No Peace With Hohenzollerns.

From The Register.

President Wilson's rejection of the Pope's peace proposals was to be expected. His answer, while courteous and dignified, is firm and to the point and means in short "no peace with the Hohenzollerns." The President's position is entirely right and he will be supported in it by this and all other civilized nations, for we would be humiliating ourselves as free people to sit at the same peace table with those rulers who have striven to crush out the life of liberty in the world and all those principles of Government which we hold sacred.

CHARLESTON.

Makes Our Determination Clear.

From The News and Courier.

President Wilson in his reply to Pope Benedict makes absolutely clear to all the world how inflexible is the determination of the United States to accept no peace which does not free the world from the curse of militarism, and his summing up of the indictment against Germany, because briefer, is even stronger and more terrible than in his great war message of April 2 to Congress.

MEMPHIS.

Notice to Absolutism to Quit.

From The Commercial Appeal.

The President cannot deal with the leaders of the German Government nor with the Emperor because they are outlaws. If the German people will decide to do away with their Junkers and their war lords and their crazy Emperor and Prince they can have peace, providing they are content to be equal with others. The President's answer to the Pope is notice to absolutism and to royal privilege that their day in governmental affairs of this world is soon to end.

NEW ORLEANS.

Thought of U-Boat Promises.

From The Times-Picayune.

The President answers that negotiations are impossible so long as one side doubts the other's good faith. This doubt, he adds, must continue while the Central Empires are ruled as they are. The President must have had in mind Germany's promises concerning submarine warfare—promises which, as the Imperial Chancellor told the Reichstag, were intended to be kept while a vast fleet of U-boats was building and not an hour longer.

GERMAN LANGUAGE PRESS ON ANSWER

"German People" Must Speak and Make Peace Possible, Says Staats-Zeitung.

From the New-Yorker Staats-Zeitung.

President Wilson has declined the Pope's peace proposals. This was to be expected. The coming event cast its shadow before in a number of expressions which had their origins partly here and partly abroad. Nevertheless, the refusal is neither abrupt nor unconditional.

The substance of the President's note is found in the words: "We cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee of anything that is to endure unless explicitly supported by such conclusive evidence of the will and purpose of the German people themselves as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting."

Does Not Show Extreme Aims.

From The New York German Herold.

With President Wilson's note the hope of peace disappears for the time being, though not entirely. The President has employed a manoeuvre which seems to us significant. The extremists of our war party have continued to demand that the Hohenzollerns must be dethroned, since it was impossible to conclude an agreement with them. We have never been able to become enthusiastic over any monarch, since we hold the republican form of government to be the best. None the less, we do not fail to perceive that if the dethronement of the Hohenzollerns were demanded the war would not be ended for a long time, since, with the chaos in Russia before their eyes, the German people would certainly think twice before it overthrew the present form of government by force.

The President now gives an indication that the extreme aims which have often been attributed to him are far from his purpose. He declares again, in a manner that cannot be misunderstood, that no war is being fought against the German people. But, on the other hand, he will treat with the German Government only when the German people has a decisive part in it. According to Mr. Wilson's view, apparently all other points can be quickly settled as soon as there is certainty that a democratic Germany has arisen.

We have no desire to cavil with the President's words, or we might point out that even among the Entente Governments there are some which are in no way more democratic than the German. On the contrary, we are glad that the President has defined his point of view much more precisely than before. The events in Germany seem to indicate that powers are at work which may bring peace nearer than we now know. We should be the last to say that Germany could not stand a considerable share of democracy. A "jerk to the left" would do no harm, and if it brought with it the possibility of an honorable peace, one might wish for it today rather than tomorrow.

LOUISVILLE.

Shows Germany the Only Way.

From the Louisville Anzeiger.

Our President has shown in his answer another way in which the war could be brought to an end. He is for a permanent peace, and cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee unless it is supported by the will and purpose of the German people themselves. Thereby he is showing another and the only way for an early peace.

The Reichstag already has given unmistakable signs of its will in that direction. Being insufficiently informed about the present trend of public opinion in Germany, in the face of the new evolutions in Russia, it is hard to say what effect Wilson's words will have upon the German people.

judging a man by his purchases

Suppose you knew nothing of a man except that he bought things of this kind:

adding machines, filing cabinets, card indexes, dictaphones, automobiles, automobile accessories, electric fans, travelers' cheques, concrete, letter-duplicating machines, time clocks, oil engines, trousers presses, life insurance, bonds, building material, ledgers, calendars, waste paper balers, railroad tickets to the mountains, asbestos roofing, steel sash, cash registers, books, high-priced wearing apparel, floor wax, and so on?

Is it very difficult to guess what kind of man buys these?

Mayor Says the General and His Staff Have Made It the Best in the Nation.

PATRIOTISM STIRS DINERS

T. P. O'Connor Asserts Persons Who Would Hurt England Also Hurt America.

The beginning of New York's ceremonial au revoir to her National Guard took place last night, when the Mayor's committee of hotel men, restaurateurs, and supply merchants gave a "sendoff dinner" at the Biltmore to Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, Divisional Commander, and his staff. Soldiers, sailors, and civilians, men and women, to the number of 400 or 500 dined in the supper room of the Biltmore, cheered the National Guard and its commander, and were diverted by volunteer entertainers from the Lambs between speeches. Regulars and reserve officers joined in the cheering which greeted Mayor Mitchel's tribute to the guard.

"Without drawing comparisons," said the Mayor, "I feel justified in saying that the National Guard of New York is the best in the country, and this is due to the work of its commanding officer, General O'Ryan, and the splendid work done in years gone by officers such as General Appleton.

For Universal Service.

"The officers and men of the National Guard represent at once the best and the worst of the volunteer system. The worst in that they have made themselves a sacrifice by their readiness to serve, their readiness to sacrifice their comfort and their time in the discharge of the obligation that rested equally on all their fellow citizens. The best, because they have borne testimony to the fact that there can always be found among the American people a group of men ready to prepare, to go forward and meet the emergency when it comes.

"We may be coming—God grant that it may be so—to a system of universal obligatory military training and service, when every man as a fundamental element of citizenship, as a prerequisite to the right to vote, shall spend a time in his early youth preparing to represent his country as a soldier. If after this war we shall evolve from the draft law a system of universal training I shall feel that we have built the greatest safeguard for the future of American democracy.

With a Mayor and a Major General of Irish descent in the centre of the head table, the committee had also provided an Irish speaker in the person of T. P. O'Connor, M. P., head of the Irish Parliamentary mission to this country, who attacked the pro-German Irish in responding to the toast, "America and Her Allies." He said that the interests of all eighteen Allies were inseparable.

Hurt One, Hurt All Allies.

"You cannot hurt America without hurting England," he declared. "You cannot hurt England without at the same time hurting America; you cannot hurt America and England without at the same time hurting Belgium; without hurting Poland; without hurting France; without hurting Italy. In other words, everybody who attacks England or France or Russia or Italy or any other of the allies of America hurts not only America's honor and security, but does his best to prevent the liberation of Belgium, the liberation of the Poles, the liberation of Alsace-Lorraine, the liberation of the Italians, serfs of the Germans of Austria, without threatening the redemption from slavery of Russia, without throwing back into the arms of Turkey the Armenians, nearly a million of whose men, women, and children have fallen victims of Turkish massacre and Turkish lust.

"Even if I thought it possible—I know it to be impossible—to purchase Irish liberty by selling the hopes of Belgium, Alsace-Lorraine, Poland, Italy, or the Armenians, I'd refuse to accept a liberty bought at so ignoble a sacrifice of the liberties of others."

Attacking the preachers of sedition in America, Mr. O'Connor said:

"You cannot with honor and decency argue that American soldiers should not be sent out of America; they have been sent out of America, thousands of them, already; and apart from the fact that the conduct of the war on a system of limited liability is impossible, the demand that no more soldiers should be sent from America is equivalent to a demand that the gallant fellows sent there should be deserted, betrayed, and left to the mercy of their German enemies."

Then he pictures the arguments of the so-called friends of Ireland who would have England defeated that Ireland might be better off.

"I have raised this ghost of an Irish race unpatriotic and disloyal to the American flag only to lay it. These men and their evil counsel will not prevail; they are beaten already. From all the information at my disposal I lay broadly down this statement, and I can do it fitly with a man of the name of O'Ryan as our guest of honor tonight, that no race in the mingled population of the United States has rushed in such large numbers, with more ardent courage to the Stars and Stripes than the race to which I belong. And when this war has been fought out the Irish will receive the same blessings and gratitude from the American people as their fathers, their grandfathers, and their great-grandfathers, who at the moment of America's peril have rushed to her defense. I appeal most earnestly to my race in this great land to defeat this awful attempt to misrepresent, to befoul them."

Mr. O'Connor expressed regret for what he called the blunders of England in her past treatment of Ireland, and expressed the hope that she would right those blunders by the treatment she would in the future accord Ireland by a generous recognition of Irish liberty.

Stirred by Sentiment.

These were the principal speeches, but the speeches were only one feature of the sendoff. Colors, music, flags, and flowers stirred the sentiment of the diners, and, while one speaker referred in tones of some regret to the fact that the only beverages were mineral water and coffie, this did not seem to disturb the spirits of the crowd. Huge clusters of American Beauty roses and little flags adorned each table; the walls were hung with the flags of America and her seventeen allies, and behind the centre of the speakers' table electric bulbs formed a design of widespread flags, with an American shield and eagle beneath them, which was turned on for a glowing moment at the close of each speech.

John J. Cavanagh, President of the Society of Restaurateurs, called the diners to order at the close of the meal, and after a tribute to the committee which had organized the sendoff, and especially to its Secretary, Charles E. Gehring, who had directed its work from a sickbed, introduced William Courtleigh, Shepherd of the Lambs, as toastmaster. Mr. Courtleigh, after referring to the guard as "a truly American institution, the bulwarak of our democracy," introduced Mayor Mitchel as "the patriotic, able, resolute American Mayor who has almost completed his term of office—I should say, his first term of office."

When the Mayor had finished, Andrew Mack sang a song about "The Man Without a Country," criticizing that individual in no uncertain terms; and then Mr. Courtleigh called on Major Wallace McCutcheon, who left the New York stage to fight in the British Army. The Major was brought up on the platform, under some protest, and soon had the audience laughing with his description of how a British naval officer prepared the passengers of a transatlantic liner against a possible submarine attack.

Then, changing his mood, he illustrated the morale of the British Army by a description of a battered battalion coming back from a successful assault at the close of a terrible day on the Somme, and marching past fresh troops, waiting to take their turn, with heads adorned with captured German helmets and singing, "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag."

Mr. O'Connor was the next speaker, and was followed by Thomas D. Green, President of the Hotel Men's Association, who wished the guard a godspeed on their way and a safe return. Major Gen. O'Ryan was called on as the last speaker, and spoke briefly, emphasizing the hard work which guard officers had put in in years past and which was now to show its results in action.

"I take it," said General O'Ryan, "that this dinner is an expression of good will which the people of the City of New York, through the Mayor and the committee in charge, bear toward the officers and men of the guard organizations now about to leave the city and State. It is natural that this feeling should exist, for the men of the guard regiments are volunteers to the last man, and they are flesh of your flesh and blood of your blood.

"And so we of the Division Headquarters are here merely in a representative capacity appearing for the officers and men of the division whom you would honor, and on behalf of those officers and men I make acknowledgments for your sentiments and thank the Mayor, the committee, and all others concerned for the agreeable form of their manifestations.

"An army is largely dependent for success upon the spirit of self-sacrifice of its personnel. Measured by this test our troops should rate high, for if there ever existed a self-sacrificing band of men it was the guard which years before there were preparedness parades and threats of war burned the midnight oil in tactical studies and hiked in the rain and sun to demonstrate them practically in manoeuvres. We have no prediction to make in relation to the accomplishment of the division, but we do promise you to try at all times and at all places to conduct ourselves as American soldiers should."

The meeting had been opened by the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by Beulah Dale Turner, and at its close the whole audience stood up and sang "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot."

TO DINE 30,000 SOLDIERS ON EVE OF BIG PARADE

With the big send-off demonstration facing them tomorrow, close to 30,000 soldiers and officers of the New York National Guard, now the Twenty-seventh Division, U. S. A., will hold farewell rallies around feast-laden boards in the armories and encampments in and about New York this evening. As guests of the city they will be dined, as were Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan and his staff at the Biltmore last night. August Silz is Chairman of the Citizens' Committee in charge of this part of the celebration.

Acting as hostesses to the rank and file of the National Guard, a committee of 100 prominent women, starting from Van Cortlandt Park, will motor to every camp or armory where the guardsmen are dining and lend whatever aid they can to make the occasion a memorable one for the soldiers. Headed by Mrs. John Purroy Mitchel as Honorary Chairman and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Active Chairman, some of the others on the committee are: Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, Mrs. Donn Barber, Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, Mrs. William Loeb, Jr., Mrs. Ernest Lorillard, Mrs. George W. Perkins, Mrs. John M. Dickinson, Mrs. Averill W. Little, Mrs. Francis S. Colt, Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mrs. Robert Colgate, Mrs. George Gordon Battle, Mrs. Louis W. Stotesbury, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, Mrs. John H. Flagler, Mrs. Arthur M. Woods, Mrs. Albert Gallatin, Mrs. Samuel Sloan, and Mrs. John Claflin.

Division Headquarters has completed all of its preparations for the big send-off parade tomorrow. It will start at 110th Street and Fifth Avenue at 10 A. M. Colonel Bandholtz, Chief of Staff to Major Gen. O'Ryan, estimated that close to 30,000 men will march. Mojor Gen. O'Ryan, with his staff, will head the parade, and Governor Whitman and other State and military officials will review the procession from a stand in front of the Union League Club. Mayor Mitchel, the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, and many prominent guests will watch the parade from a stand in front of the Astor Library.

The Twenty-second Engineers, which is scheduled to leave for Spartanburg immediately after the parade, will head the line. The following is the tentative formation of the other units which will appear in the line of march.

Third Brigade, Second and Third Regiments of Infantry; First Brigade, Seventh, Twelfth, and Fourteenth Regiments of Infantry; Second Brigade, First, Twenty-third, and Seventy-first Regiments of Infantry, Coast Artillery Corps, Eighth, Ninth, and Thirteenth Coast Defense commands; detachment of the Field Artillery Brigade, Brigade Headquarters, and Second Battalion, Second Field Artillery, First Cavalry, Squadron A and Machine Gun Troop, Signal Battalion and division trains and military police, division ammunition train, division supply train, division engineer train and division sanitary train, Third Ambulance Company, and the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Field Hospital.

With a view to handling about 2,000,000 spectators, Acting Chief Inspector of Police James E. Dillon yesterday announced that 4,000 policemen would be stationed along the line of march under the supervision of nine Inspectors. In addition to the force of regular policemen 2,000 members of the Home Defense League will help.

Inspector Dillon has issued an order forbidding spectators to use boxes, barrels, chairs, campstools, or settees of any kind from which to observe the parade.

As far as possible the police will endeavor to reserve for the relatives and friends of the soldiers the whole west side of Fifth Avenue from 110th Street to Fifty-ninth Sareet, that is, the sidewalk along the Central Park East wall. Similar reservations for relatives and friends, carrying the badge, that will distinguish them from the more disinterested spectators, will be made at the Pulitzer Memorial in front of the Plaza Hotel and at Madison Square. The badge reads:

Pass.
Military Parade.
All Please Honor.
August, 1917.
Soldier's Family.

The Mayor's Committee of National Defense appealed to the public yesterday to honor the badges and give the badge wearers wherever they appear the best places from which to observe the parade.

Major Gen. O'Ryan, who leaves with his staff for Spartanburg on Friday, received from Governor Whitman yesterday the following telegram:

"To you and your officers, and above all to the men in the ranks, in the name of the people of the State of New York, I bid godspeed. You are worthy defenders of the righteous cause to which our nation is committed. The love and hopes and prayers of a great people go with you. Ten millions of us men and women put our trust in you. Every day we shall look for news of you. Every day we shall know that you are bearing yourselves as soldiers of the Republic, doing your part to right a great wrong. We cannot fail because we know you. May the holy cause for which you contend prevail, and may the Almighty in His infinite mercy bring you home to us."

A benefit performance for the Division Headquarters troop of the National Guard will be held at the Comedy Theatre this evening, with members of the troop appearing in one of the acts. Other performances, also for the benefit of the troops, will take place tomorrow and Friday evenings. According to the management, Major Gen. O'Ryan is scheduled to deliver an address at the performance this evening, while Colonel Roosevelt and Governor Whitman will speak on Thursday evening. The program of the performance tonight will consist of a one-act play by members of the Headquarters Troop, entitled "The Inner Circle." The Washington Square Players will present two one-act pieces, "The Age of Reason," and "Humanity."

KIDNAPPED SAILORS ACCUSE DETECTIVES

GOT PAY FOR "DESERTERS"

Scheme to Defraud Government by Detaining Men on Shore Leave Is Alleged.

What is alleged to have been a plot to defraud the United States Government by kidnapping sailors on shore leave, detaining them under guard until after their time was up and then collecting the money offered for the return of a straggler or deserter, was uncovered last night when Detectives Wittenberg and McAuliff of District Attorney Swann's staff raided the offices of the Hamilton Detective Agency in the Fitzgerald Building, at 1,482 Broadway, and arrested three men found in the eight-room suite which the agency occupies.

Earlier in the day Alfred J. Talley, Assistant District Attorney, received a complaint from Captain S. W. Brewster, Judge Advocate, who produced the testimony of two sailors on trial in court-martial on charges of desertion, in which they swore that they had been arrested by a man named Eden from the Hamilton Agency and confined in an office until they had become deserters. Captain Brewster asked that an investigation be made into the situation.

When the detectives assigned by Mr. Talley went to the Fitzgerald Building they found that on one of the inner rooms of the suite occupied by the agency was lettered "Captain Harry A. Read." Wittenberg was not permitted to search the offices, according to his story, and when he asked William Hamilton, the head of the agency, to accompany him to the District Attorney's office the latter said:

"I am an ex-cop and you can't do anything to me. You'll have to walk over my dead body to get me."

Wittenberg left his partner, McAuliff, to watch while he telephoned to Mr. Talley for instructions. No sooner had he left than a man emerged from one of the inner offices leading with him two sailors by the arm.

"Where are you going with these men?" McAuliff said he asked.

"I'm taking them to the movies," was the reply.

McAuliff then placed the man, who gave his name as Joseph Glass, and the two sailors under arrest. The sailors said they were Kenneth King, 16 years old, attached to the U. S. S. Seattle, and Frank Phillips, a fireman.

Ten minutes later Detective Wittenberg returned accompanied by the reserves from the West Forty-seventh Street station and Hamilton submitted to arrest. They also arrested "Captain" Read, who the detectives say admitted that he was "merely captain of the Hamilton Detective Agency." Enroute to the District Attorney's office, Wittenberg said Hamilton boasted of his friendship with Governor Whitman and said he was attached to the latter's staff when District Attorney.

When questioned by Mr. Talley, King, one of the sailors, said that he was walking along Broadway on Monday morning on his way to the Pennsylvania Station, where he was to take the train for the point where his ship was stationed, when a man stopped him, showed a detective's shield and told him he was under arest charged with desertion. King admitted that he had overstayed his shore leave a few days because of the illness of his mother in Fall River.

He said he was taken to the offices of the agency, and after being interrogated closely by "Captain" Read he was placed under guard in one of the empty rooms of the suite. His guard, he declared, was armed with a blackjack, and threatened him with physical violence if he attempted to escape. When night time came he said he was told he had to sleep on the floor as a punishment.

Phillips was at first noncommittal when questioned. He wore a nondescript sailor's outfit and had a dilapidated hat with a ribbon of the Des Moines on it. He refused to tell anything about himself for a long time, but finally broke down and confessed that he was masquerading in a sailor's suit and was not a member of the Navy. He begged the Assistant District Attorney to spare him and promised to enlist today in the Navy if released.

Phillips said that he was seized at Broadway and Forty-second Street two days ago, but did not dare to tell his captors that he was not a bona fide sailor.

From evidence submitted by Captain Brewster, Mr. Talley said he learned that Hamilton and "Captain" Read had "arrested" a sailor named Hallett and detained him three days beyond his leave. Hallett told his superior officer that he slept on a cot in the Hamilton offices, while another sailor slept on the floor.

"According to the evidence," said Mr. Talley, "certain men grabbed any sailor they saw loitering on the streets, kept him a captive in their office, and then in due course of time made inquiry at Washington if the man was on the list of stragglers or deserters, for the return of whom rewards were offered. In the case of a straggler the Government paid $25, and for a deserter $50. When the military authorities telegraphed back that such a man was wanted Hamilton or Read immediately produced the man and collected the reward.

"Generally a sailor believes that a good policy to follow is 'the least said the better' when in trouble," so these men were not discovered heretofore.

According to Mr. Talley, Hamilton in his own behalf said that "Captain" Read was in charge of the Navigation Bureau which dealt with the return of stragglers and deserters. He exhibited several telegrams from Washington notifying the agency that a reward was offered for the return of certain sailors or acknowledging the delivery of certain sailors.

At the request of Mr. Talley the authorities of the New York Navy Yard made inquiry at Washington concerning Hamilton and Read. Late last night Mr. Talley said he had received word that nothing was known of the two men by the military authorities at the capital.

Read, Hamilton and Glass were arraigned last night in the Men's Night Court on a charge of impersonating Federal authorities and detaining men against their will. They waived examination and were held for trial in Special Sessions. Hamilton's bail was $250 and Read's and Glass's $500 each. Hamilton gave his address as 401 West Thirtieth Street; Read lives at 149 State Street, Brooklyn, and Glass at 908 East 109th Street.

AUSTRIA IS EXPECTED TO DECLARE WAR ON US

Washington Will Not Be Surprised if Aid Extended to Italy Brings Hostilities.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The possibility that Austria and perhaps other allies of Germany may soon declare war against the United States because of the financial aid given to Italy, is recognized by Administration officials.

It was carefully explained today that there was nothing in the existing situation, either diplomatic or military, that would cause the United States to take the initiative, but it was not denied that an anomalous state of affairs that might result in broadening the war did exist.

Relations of the United States with Germany's allies are defined as still a state of broken diplomatic relations. Officials hesitate to describe them as unfriendly, although admitting that they could scarcely be called friendly. The policy of extending aid to the countries fighting certain of Germany's allies, without having declared war against Germany, will be continued, and it was admitted that Austria or any other ally may perhaps not improbably construe such assistance as a warlike act.

Transfer for Roosevelts.

Officers returning from France yesterday to an Atlantic port brought the news that Major Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., had been transferred to the Twenty-sixth Regiment of the line and his younger brother, Archie, was attached to the same regiment as a Lieutenant.

Both of the young officers have left General Pershing's staff, as they preferred the line regiment, where they will see and take part in the actual fighting.

TRIESTE CIVILIANS EVACUATE CITY

ihrib from San Gabrielle and the San Daniele hills.

"The morning of the 24th, after a very intense bombardment, the Italians proceeded to the assault of Monte Santo in two columns. One, coming from the Vodice, attacked Monte Santo from the northern side, taking a line of enemy trenches and reaching the summit. The other column climbed the mountain from the western, or frontal side. After two hours the two columns met on the summit, where the church and monastery, which were built in the Middle Ages, were already in ruins, and full of corpses. The Italians passed on and through the Austrian obstructions into their caves, capturing them. These positions were well supplied with arms and materials, which the Italians got, together with many wounded men. The victorious Italians then descended into the Valley of Gargaro, clearing it of the enemy and taking many prisoners and a considerable quantity of booty. The new Austrian line is indefinite, and it is uncertain how far they have retreated, as their retirement was a genuine rout.

"The latest Austrian newspapers are describing the great battle on the Italian front as witnessed by Austrians. On the 22d Emperor Charles, escorted by the Chief of Staff, was present at the headquarters of General Boroevic, inspecting the Austrian positions on the plateau of Tarnova and the chief fortifications of the Carso. Emperor Charles was greatly impressed by the grandeur of the bombardment and by the irresistible advance of the Italian soldiers. The Emperor had before him the summit of Monte Dosso, Faiti, and Conca Bigha, then under Italian fire, which transformed them into volcanoes. Italian airplanes at the same time were flying over the enemy positions. The Emperor remained until dark and during the night took a train for Vienna."

Italy's Strength Amazes Prisoners.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 28.—The Austrians are finding it almost as hard to let go their positions on the eastern slopes of Monte Santo as to hold them.

As they retreat they are having a dreadful time trying to protect themselves from the heavy losses which both the Italian artillery and infantry are inflicting upon them. The nature of the terrain precludes the deployment of large bodies of infantry so that the attacks have to be conducted by small isolated detachments.

Meanwhile an endless stream of prisoners is flowing to the rear of the battle line. These men are astounded at the forces that Italy disposes of. They had been told that she was so near the end of her resources that she was on the verge of going to pieces and that a mere push would suffice to cause her collapse.

FRENCH RAID TRENCHES ON CHAMPAGNE FRONT

PARIS, Aug. 28.—The French official report on the progress of hostilities, given out this afternoon, refers to artillery activity on the Californie Plateau, and says that French troops penetrated German trenches at Butte de Souain on the Champagne front, and took some prisoners near Arracourt. There was considerable artillery activity on the Verdun front.

The text follows:

What promised to be a night of violent bombardment of our lines in the region of the Californie Plateau and Chevreux was checked by the fire of our artillery. The enemy found it impossible to deliver an attack. We penetrated certain German trenches at Butte de Souain, and we dispersed reconnoitring parties of the enemy at Mont Muret and near Arracourt. We took some prisoners.

On the Verdun front there was considerable artillery activity near Avocourt Wood and in the Beaumont sector. Two surprise attacks by the enemy on small French posts near Vaux and Le Palameux resulted in complete failure.

The night passed quietly on the remainder of the front.

The official communication issued by the War Office tonight, says:

"With the exception of quite spirited artillery fighting on the left bank of the Meuse there is nothing to report.

BERLIN, Aug. 28, (via London.)—General Headquarters reports the repulse of French local attacks in the Verdun sector, near the village of Beaumont.

The official bulletin says:

Before Verdun there was only slight fighting activity throughout the day, after the conclusion of the early fighting around the village of Beaumont, which has been recaptured by us. The prisoners brought in there belong to three French divisions.

In the evening the artillery duel again assumed great violence on the eastern bank of the Meuse, and in vain local attacks, which were launched west of the Beaumont-Vacherauville road, the French suffered considerable losses.

On the western portion of the Chemin-des-Dames the French, along the front of a regiment, endeavored to launch an attack at the Allemant-Sancy road. They were repulsed by our fire. South of Courtecon and southeast of Ailles enterprises by thrusting troops resulted favorably to us.

The supplementary statement issued this evening reads:

There was little fighting activity in the western theatre. Stormy weather prevailed.

BRITISH WIN MILE FRONT NORTHEAST OF YPRES

LONDON, Aug. 28.—As the result of a British attack on the Flanders front yesterday the British lines have been advanced along a front of more than 2,000 yards astride the St. Julien-Poelcapelle Road, according to the War Office announcement made this afternoon. The new positions include points within the foe's third line of defense. German attempts last night to drive back the British from their positions in the Inverness Copse on the Ypres-Menin Road were frustrated, and prisoners were taken from the attacking forces.

The British airplanes, despite heavy rains and high winds, again engaged the enemy's infantry and transport with machine gun fire.

The text of the afternoon statement follows:

As the result of our attack yesterday we have advanced our line, after heavy fighting, on a front of more than 2,000 yards astride the St. Julien-Poelcapelle Road and are established in further positions of the German third system in this area.

Early last night the enemy twice attacked our positions in the Inverness Copse, on the Ypres-Menin Road. On both occasions he was repulsed, we securing a few prisoners.

The official report given out tonight reads:

A heavy rain has fallen today. The wind at times attained a gale force. No infantry action has taken place. In spite of the rain and strong wind, our airplanes maintained contact with our infantry throughout yesterday's operations northeast of Ypres and successfully engaged the enemy's troops and transport with machine-gun fire. All our machines returned.

The Associatetd Press correspondent with the British Army in France and Belgium telegraphs:

"The British attack late yesterday southeast of Langemarck, astride the St. Julien-Poelcapelle road, has developed into a success, notwithstanding the almost impossible weather conditions under which the troops made the assault. A number of strong German redoubts were occupied and the line was pushed forward to a considerable depth over a front of some 2,000 yards.

"The offensive was launched at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, amid a heavy rain, which added to the freshets of the already swollen Steenbeke and Hannebeke Rivers, which had turned the surrounding country into bogs. Into this marshland, studded with concrete machine gun redoubts, the British plunged after the artillery had conducted a heavy bombardment and laid down a barrage. Particularly vicious fighting developed near the Springfield and Vancouver farms, two German strongholds northeast of St. Julien.

"Despite heavy machine gun fire, the British pushed forward here, driving back the Württembergers who had been sent up from Roulers to hold the German advanced posts.

"Today the battle along the section attacked yesterday had subsided into a state of comparative calm. A great storm, accompanied by rain, swept the country. At times the gale reached a velocity which uprooted trees at many places.

Only Trifling Gains, Says Berlin.

BERLIN, Aug. 28, (via London.)—The British made only insignificant gains northeast of Frezenberg in their attacks on the Flanders front yesterday, Army Headquarters announced today.

Following the text of the official statement:

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht: In Flanders a strong attack by the British in the morning at the Ypres-Menin Road broke down with heavy losses. In the afternoon the most intense drumfire was opened upon the battle zone between Langemarck and the Roulers-Ypres railway. With the use of numerous tanks and airplanes flying at a low altitude, the British infantry soon afterward advanced to the attack on this front. After a stubborn defense, our fighting troops everywhere drove back the enemy, who endeavored to give fresh vigor to his attack by bringing up strong reserves.

In the evening, under a further powerful increase in the firing, a second assault was begun against the same sector. The result of the fighting, which lasted into the night, was that, with the exception of an insignificant indentation northeast of Frezenberg, our positions were entirely maintained, and the British suffered a sanguinary defeat. The success of the day was due to the excellent conduct of the Württemberg troops and the destructive effect of our concentrated artillery fire.

DROVE AHEAD IN THE MUD.

Rain Made It Difficult for the British to Advance.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1917, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 28.—The British troops made their attack yesterday afternoon along the St. Julien-Poelcappele Road in a drenching rain. The rain itself was nothing except that it is cold for men who lie out in it at night. It is the mud that matters and in valley of the Steenbeck and the country east of St. Julien there was in the dry weather a few days ago only a thin crust above the bog between the shell-holes so that a night of rain was enough to turn it all into a slough again.

It makes it hard going for the infantry, heavy laden with the equipment of attack and worse for the tanks wallowing in this bogland, so that the Flanders area is not what the Generals would gladly choose for their battlefields in all weathers.

But the British attacked yesterday. They were not in great numbers but through the wet mists and driving rain they set out to seize some of the concrete strongholds in which a score or so Germans hid with machine guns handy and heaps of ammunition and a wide field of fire for the sweep of their bullets.

Some Yorkshire lads and others trudged over swamps of Steenbede to a road which runs from Zonnebeke to Langemarck where it is crossed by the road from St. Julien to Poelcappelle and got round two blockhouses, which had given a great deal of trouble in previous assaults. They got the upper hand at both these places and received the surrender of some forty Würtembergers among their garrison.

There was fierce fighting round other pillboxes, as the men call them, east of Cockroft, and further down the Zonnebeke road.

KORNILOFF FEARS FOR RUSSIAN ARMY

cently one of the regiments of Siberian Rifles, which had fought so splendidly at the beginning of the revolution, abandoned its positions on the Riga front. Nothing except an order to exterminate the entire regiment availed to cause it to return to its positions.

"Thus we are implacably fighting anarchy in the army," the commander continued. "Undoubtedly it will finally be repressed, but the danger of fresh debacles is weighing constantly on the country.

Warns of Petrograd Peril.

"The situation on the front is bad. We have lost the whole of Galicia, the whole of Bukowina, and all the fruits of our recent victories. At several points the enemy has crossed our frontier and is threatening our fertile southern provinces. He is endeavoring to destroy the Rumanian Army and is knocking at the gates of Riga. If our army does not hold the shore of the Gulf of Riga the road to Petrograd will be opened wide.

"The old régime bequeathed to Russia an army which, despite all the defects in its organization, nevertheless was animated by a fighting spirit and was ready for sacrifices. The whole series of measures taken by those who are completely foreign to the spirit and needs of the army has transformed it into a collection of individual groups which have lost all sense of duty and only tremble for their own personal safety.

"If Russia wishes to be saved the army must be regenerated at any cost. We must immediately take measures such as I have referred to, which have been approved in their entirety by the acting Minister of War."

General Korniloff then outlined the most important of these measures, in addition to restoration of the death penalty, which are: First, restoration of discipline in the army by the strengthening of the authority of officers and noncommissioned officers; second, improvement of the financial position of officers, who have been in a very difficult position in the recent military operations; third, restriction of the functions of regimental committees, which, although managing economic affairs of the regiments, must not be permitted to have any part in decisions regarding military operations or the appointment of leaders.

"The strength of every army depends upon conditions in the district in its rear," General Korniloff continued. "The blood which will inevitably flow during the restoration period may be shed in vain if the army, having been reorganized and prepared for battle, remains without reinforcements and fresh supplies of projectiles and equipment. I therefore think it indispensable that the measures taken at the front should also be applied in the rear."

Starvation Faces Army.

The commander went on to say that according to information at his disposal the condition of the railways was such that by November the army would not receive any more supplies. In support of his statement he quoted a telegram from the Commander in Chief of the southwestern front, saying that the shortage of bread and biscuit on this front amounted almost to famine. General Korniloff then read figures relating to the production of war materials, which he said had fallen, compared with the period from October, 1916, to January, 1917, by 60 per cent. for guns and shells and 80 per cent. for airplanes.

"If this state of affairs continues," he added, "the Russian armies will find themselves in the same state as in the Spring of 1915, at the time of the retreat in Poland, Galicia, and the Carpathians."

He expressed his firm belief that the measures which he proposed would immediately be put into execution.

"I believe," he said, "that the genius and the reason of the Russian people will save the country. I believe in a brilliant future for our army. I believe its ancient glory will be restored."

When General Korniloff concluded his speech there were prolonged cheers from every side except the Extreme Left, where several members of the soldiers' and workmen's organization remained silent. General Korniloff immediately left the hall and proceeded to a train, which took him to headquarters.

General Kaledines, leader of the Don Cossacks, representing the Council of Cossacks, mounted the tribune and read a resolution passed by the Cossacks demanding above everything, for the salvation of the country the continuation of the war until complete victory was attained, in close union with the Allies. General Kaledines proposed, with the same end in view, the following measures:

First, placing the army outside of politics; second, the suppression of regimental committees and councils and the restriction of the functions of those which may be maintained with a purely economic mission; third, revision of the declaration of soldiers' rights; fourth, reinforcing discipline by strong measures and by the application of those measures to the districts in the rear; fifth, restoration of the rights of commanders to inflict punishment.

The reading of the resolution was punctuated by cheers from the right and by some protests from the left.

Vladimir Nabonkoff, a prominent Social-Democrat, speaking in the name of the first Duma, declared the country aimed at the establishment of a strong and independent power, uninfluenced by political parties; a power which, based on democratic principles, would establish obedience to the law, civil liberty, and personal security. The speaker emphasized the absolute necessity of the independence of the high command of the army from every private influence. M. Naboukoff said the members of the first Duma repudiated with indignation all thoughts of a separate peace, and that if they were to have peace they did not desire it to be the result of German victory, but the consequence of the triumph of Russia and her allies.

M. Alexinsky made a similar declaration on behalf of the second Duma.

N. C. Tcheidse, President of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, who was received with frenzied applause by the Left and with cries of "Long live the leader of the Russian revolution," read a statement pointing out that only the active support of the revolutionary democracy would make possible the regeneration of the army and the country, and the salvation of Russia.

"The democracy," he said, "cannot be detached from the revolutionary country, and nothing but power based on support of the countless masses of the people can save the country from its critical position and give the victory over our enemies without and within."

Demands of Workmen's Council.

M. Tcheidse declared the unified revolutionary democracy recognized that the vital interests of the country and the revolution demanded the application of the following measures:

First, in the domain of food supplies, the Government, pursuing a firm policy, should maintain a monopoly of cereals and a policy of fixed prices for agricultural products.

Second, in the domain of commerce and industry, the defense of the country and the supplies of munitions demanded more radical measures for the regulation of transport and the increase of the productivity of industry.

Third, the finances required the rigorous application of laws dealing with the income tax and war profits, besides other reforms, such as the introduction of succession duties and of taxes on articles of luxury corresponding to their increase in value, with other fiscal measures. As regards loans, the Government should take strong measures to make all bear their full share.

Fourth, agrarian reforms should be introduced to prevent all usurpation of land, whether by individuals or groups of individuals or societies.

Fifth, regarding the organization of the army, the respective rights and duties of the army commanders, commission and army organizations should be defined.

Regarding the question of nationality, the Government should pass an act granting to all nationalities the right of deciding their lot, upon agreement, in the Constituent Assembly.

M. Tcheidse concluded with an appeal for support for the Provisional Government, which he said should be invested with full and complete powers.

Asked Korniloff Not to Talk.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Monday, Aug. 27, (Dispatch to The London Times.)—Late last night Kerensky telephoned to General Korniloff and conveyed to him the wish of the Provisional Government that the Generalissimo should make no statement before the conference.

I understand that Korniloff considers himself bound to tell the country the whole truth about the army, which was not disclosed in the speeches of the Prime Minister and his colleagues.

Support of Government Likely.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Declarations made by leaders of the most influential Russian parties at yesterday's sitting of the national conference gave rise to the hope that the Government would be strengthened, the Exchange Telegraph account of the session says. Although various groups in private conferences accepted scores of resolutions against the Government, they did not bring them forward. All parties agreed as to the necessity of continuing the war, the differences being as to the ways and means.

M. Tseretelli, former Minister of the Interior, said that if the Russian democracy had not brought on the revolution there would have been a separate peace long ago. He maintained that it was the sincere desire of those identified with the democratic régime to sacrifice their own interests for the sake of the country, and demanded that similar sacrifices be made by the capitalists.

Professor Paul N. Milukoff, former Foreign Minister and leader of the Constitutional Democrats, urged immediate application of the policy of General Korniloff. He said the Constitutional Democrats would give conditional support to the Government.

PARTISAN SPIRIT IS HIGH.

Impressions Gained as the Delegates Journeyed to Moscow.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Aug. 26, (delayed.) — The country is divided into two sharply opposed camps. Socialists and non-Socialists are bitterly at feud. The Socialists, as represented in the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, are clinging to power. The non-Socialists contend that the experiments of the Council have brought Russia to ruin.

Both sides have come to the conference in a determined and suspicious mood. The Socialists accuse their opponents of dark schemes of reaction. The ante-counter revolution representatives of the middle class charge the Socialists with squandering all the material and moral resources of the State, and exposing the country to military defeat and disgrace—all for the sake of an impracticable ideal.

Behind all parties stands the average man, who is influenced less by theories and party cries than by facts. One party or another may vociferously assert its claim to represent the country, but the Government, especially in a situation so tragic as the present, ought to know what the country really is thinking independently of parties. The Constituent Assembly is postponed. The need is urgent, and Government has invited delegates from all organizations that can be called representative with a view to getting at the feeling of the average man. The assembly thus composed may accept the middle course adopted by the Government as the only possible line of action for the present.

I came to Moscow in one of the special delegates' trains from Petrograd. The train was crowded with representatives of all sorts of political parties and organizations—officials, professors, workingmen, and returned refugees. The talk was vague and hesitating, with a mournful note through it all.

On arrival at Moscow we met an unpleasant surprise. The street car men had struck and so had most of the cabmen. The Maximalists had been busy. They spread alarmist rumors describing the conference as a bourgeois assembly to effect a coup d'état, and had tried to provoke a general strike. The town was full of rumors of impending disturbances. There was talk of meetings of protest, armed demonstrations, and bombs. The big restaurants were closed and it was difficult to get food. But in the end nothing serious happened. The day passed off quietly, and except for a mob of curious onlookers that surrounded the theatre in the afternoon there were no signs that Moscow was greately interested in the conference.

The conference opened at 3 o'clock in the State Opera House, one of the finest theatres in the world. The delegates numbered in all about 3,000, and crowded the building. It was an amazing and incomprehensible assembly. The stalls were filled by Deputies of all the four Dumas and the executives of the Peasants' and Workmen's and Soldiers' Councils. There, on one side, were Purischkewich and Shulgin, Rodzianko and Gutchkoff, Milukoff, and Shingareff. There, in the centre, were Cheidze and Tseretelli, and, on the extreme left, internationalists like Markoff and other semi-Maximalists of his type.

Soldiers and officers alternated with workmen and the sharp-faced intellectual Aladin, a member of the first Duma, appeared in British uniform. In the former Imperial box sat the military representatives and Consuls of the Allied Powers. In tier after tier of galleries sat representatives of the co-operatives and trade unions, merchants, and industrial associations, municipalities and Zemstvos. In the boxes sat the former Commanders in Chief Alexieff, Brusiloff, and Kaledin.

The stage was opened to its depth. Here sat Breshko, Breskouskaya, Prince Kropatkin and other veterans of the revolution. Behind them again, with impassive face and stony stare, the Buriat Ecclesiastic Dovdjieff, whose dealings with Dalai Lama used to cause such disquiet to the British authorities in India. Here and there one saw quaint peasant caftans, and a Tartar mullah was magnificent in silken robes.

The Ministers filed out and took their seats at a long table. Kerensky was greeted with loud cheers. He was in khaki, as usual, and behind him stood two Adjutants, one naval, the other military. Four Ministers spoke, and the meeting lasted five hours, but the assembly remained enigmatic to the end. There was no telling what they thought. That curious electric current that defines the feeling of a meeting was absent. There was occasional applause, but no real demonstration of united and overpowering emotion. There have been many livelier days in the Duma.

Yet the meeting was not dull. There was a curious and tantalizing sense of conditional acceptance and reservation of judgment. Kerensky was not in his best speaking form; he seemed to be hampered by the effort of speaking, not as his natural self, but as the virtual ruler of Russia. His phraseology at times was unnecessarily ornate and stilted. His assertion of his personal authority and of the unlimited power of the Provisional Government was a little forced, not in its calculated eloquence, but in its strange relation of the Premier's personality in hard and difficult conditions.

The speech was tragic. In form it was a stern challenge, an aggressive assertion of authority. In effect it was almost a plaintive appeal for support. The one passage that deeply touched the audience was that suggesting the possibility of the reintroduction of the death penalty behind the fighting line. "Part of our soul was killed," he said, "when we restored the death penalty in the army. We may have to restore it in the rear if necessary. We shall destroy our soul, but we shall save Russia."

Kerensky hinted at tendencies, but did not state a program. A searching, groping tone was prominent in his speech. In substance it was an assertion of authority, a defiance of all attempts, whether from the Right or Left, to overthrow the Government. It satisfied that enigmatic personality, the average man.

HAILED AS RUSSIA'S SAVIOR.

Moscow Accords Great Ovation to the Commander-in-Chief.

MOSCOW, Aug. 26, (delayed.)—At present the name of General Korniloff is on every tongue. His coming was awaited with something akin to fear by the extreme Left, which still incites against discipline in the army, and with open exultation by the opposition group. The latter group today made the General's arrivel the signal for a demonstration seldom accorded even to a General victorious in battle. The import of the demonstration is emphasized by the fact that not one member of the Cabinet was at the railway station, but instead there was an imposing display by the military and civilian admirers of General Korniloff.

During the morning General Korniloff's biography and his photographs were distributed free by the organizers of the demonstration. Officers went about the streets exhorting veterans of the war, and particularly Knights of the Order of St. George, to go to the railway station, explaining to them that duty compelled every patriotic man to support the "destined savior of Russia" from foreign defeat and internal disintegration.

At the station when the Russian Commander in Chief arrived was General Verkhovsky, Commander in Chief of the Moscow Military District; Mayor Rudneff, with a deputation from the municipality; a group of Socialist members of the conference, headed by M. Roditcheff, the veteran member of the Duma, as well as leaders of Moscow's industries. The sole subject of conversation appeared to be the necessity of supporting General Korniloff's demand for strong measures, including capital punishment, among the forces of disorder in the rear of the fighting army.

General Korniloff alighted from the train soon after noon, followed by a bodyguard of Terak Cossacks, gigantic Asiatics in prune colored caftans, leather belts, and vast, shaggy skeepskin busbies.

General Korniloff, who is of Cossack parentage, resembles a Japanese. He is below middle height and of medium size. He has small black eyes and a sparse Tartar beard. His manner was grave and modest as he inspected the guard of honor. He spoke to some of the soldiers and each soldier threw a flower under his feet as he passed.

As General Korniloff marched between lines of soldiers toward M. Roditcheff, the officers drew their swords and the band played the "Marseillaise." Addressing the Russian commander, M. Roditcheff said:

"Russia has all her army wants—arms, supplies, and a brilliant commander. All she lacks is a fighting spirit in her soldiers. It is you, General, who have the will and the means to restore that spirit."

After kissing M. Roditcheff, General Korniloff made a brief speech, roughly phrased, but impressive by its unpretentiousness.

"We expect from Moscow," General Korniloff said, "a message to the army. That message, I hope, will not in this grave crisis be of liberty and equality, in the name of which, falsely interpreted, Russia's people have been driven off the right track, but a message of victory and order. For myself, at any sacrifice I shall do all in my power to turn that message into reality. I believe in and I predict the resurrection of our army."

RUBLES AT LOW RECORD, QUOTED AT 18 3-4 CENTS

Depreciation More Than 63 1-2 Per Cent.—Greater Than That of Other Foreign Currency.

There was a further violent decline in exchange on Petrograd yesterday, rubles going down to 18¾ cents, compared with a normal rate of approximately 51½ cents before the war. The depreciation amounts to more than 63½ per cent., and is greater than the depreciation of any other foreign currency. Yesterday's quotation of 18¾ cents is a new low record, and represents a decline of 1.35 cents from the previous day, and compares with 21 cents quoted last week.

The drop in Russian exchange is ascribed to the unfavorable character of the news coming from the new republic. In some banking quarters there is a disposition to regard the decline in exchange on Petrograd as indicative of conditions in Russia, while other bankers assert that the business now being transacted in rubles is so small that it is very easy to shove rates either up or down. Some foreign exchange experts say that entirely too much importance is being attached to the weakness of rubles, and that the decline has relatively little significance.

It was suggested yesterday that one of the reasons for the sharp downward movement in rubles might be the fact that Japanese bankers had been selling rubles in this market instead of in London. Exports from Japan to Russia have been very large, and it is believed that Japanese interests, instead off converting rubles into pounds sterling, have been replacing rubles by dollars. It is admitted that in London the Japanese might get a slightly better rate, but it is argued that in London the Japanese could only get a banking credit, while if they sold their rubles in New York they can convert their dollar credits into gold and take the precious metal out of this country, if they desire to do so. The shipments of gold from the United States to Japan have been very substantial of late. Great Britain and practically all of the European belligerents do not permit the export of gold, but until now this country has not placed any ban on such shipments, and it is argued that Japan has been taking advantage of the free movements for getting actual gold for Russian ruble credits.

The Russian Government 5½ per cent. internal bonds declined yesterday from $198 to $192 per 1,000 rubles. These bonds have sold as high as $342. The 5½ per cent. bonds of the external loan sold on the Curb at 71¾ and the closing bid price was 70, while the 6½s sold at 80½, with a closing bid of 80. The last previous sale of the 5½s was made at 71¼ and the 6½s at 82.

TROOPS QUIT TRENCHES WHEN TEUTONS ATTACK

PETROGRAD, Aug. 28.—Russian infantry left its trenches before an enemy attack in the Boyany region and is retiring eastward, the War Office announces. The retirement was occasioned by the beginning of an offensive in the region east of Czernowitz, Bukowina, yesterday by the Germans and Austrians. The troops retreated without waiting for the attack on their trenches, which were occupied by the enemy. The text of the statement reads:

Western Front: There were fusillades and scouting.

Rumanian Front: Yesterday the enemy began an offensive from the region of Czernowitz against Novoselica, (on the Bessarabian border.) Since morning the enemy artillery has been firing against the sector of our positions between the Rakitna and the Pruth. Near Boyany our infantry, without waiting for the enemy to attack, left their trenches under pressure of the artillery fire and began to retire to the east. The units belonging to the reserve of this sector scattered. The enemy occupied the position. Following the retirement of our units the Austrians moved forward their infantry.

BERLIN, Aug. 28, (via London.)—Details of the throwing back of the Russians with the capture of more than 1,000 prisoners and six guns are given in the following statement from Army Headquarters:

Eastern Front: Front of Prince Leopold: From the Dvina to the Dniester the fighting activity was lively in only a few sectors.

On the northern bank of the Pruth, Rhenish, Bavarian and Austro-Hungarian regiments took by storm the strongly intrenched Russian positions on Dolzck height and the village of Dowan. The obstinate resistance of the Russians was also broken on the hills northeast of Dolzok in the evening after hard fighting. More than 1,000 prisoners, six guns and numerous machine-guns fell into our hands. The losses of the enemy, who were thrown behind the Rakitna sector, are heavy.

Front of Archduke Joseph: North of Soveia, in the Suchitza Valley, our protecting troops were pressed from recently captured heights by an enemy attack with superior forces.

Army Group of Field Marshal von Mackensen: In some sectors there has been lively artillery activity.

IVANOFF TELLS OF TREASON.

At Soukhomlinoff Trial Says Military Secrets Went to Berlin.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 28.—At the trial for high treason of General Soukhomlinoff, former Minister of War, General Ivanoff, former commander in Volhynia and Galicia, testified yesterday he had information showing that military secrets had been communicated direct from Petrograd to Germany and Austria by way of Warsaw.

General Velitchko, Deputy Director of the Engineers Corps, said he regarded General Soukhomlinoff as having been principally responsible for the defeats of the Russian Army. As soon as he was appointed Minister of War, the witness testified, he suppressed various councils created for the purpose of discussing questions of national defense.

Former Emperor Nicholas, General Velitchko said, could not be held responsible for the military misfortunes of Russia, as he saw everything through the spectacles of General Soukhomlinoff.

M'ADOO EXPLAINS BOND BILL IN SECRET

Tells of Plans to Meet Allies' Needs of Revenue to Direct War Strategy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28. — Secretary McAdoo was on the stand behind the closed doors of the Ways and Means Committee today for four hours, giving details of the proposed $11,000,000,000 bond issue. He will appear again tomorrow.

The Secretary gave today a great mass of financial information, much of it of the highest importance and of such character as to be held in confidence. He was questioned closely by several committee members, who said the information was necessary for the smooth passage of the bill through the House, inasmuch as many Republicans had intimated that they would not support the bill unless they had a fair knowledge of how the bond issue was to be floated and what was to be done with the money.

The Allies will have the $4,000,000,000 in allotments of half a billion a month, according to the Secretary, who dwelt on the necessity of having all the money asked for, so that the allied war strategy could be planned a sufficient length of time in advance. These allotments will start, it is planned, with October and run through June. He was not asked when "will the war end," but several times used expressions such as "if the war continues a year" or "if the war should continue six months."

The committee asked many questions concerning the way in which the interest of the United States would be protected in the loans. The attitude of members tonight indicated that that feature was presented in a satisfactory way. Nearly all the money for the Allies is to be spent in the United States.

It is likely that before a decision is reached as to subjecting the forthcoming bonds to a tax, there will be considerable more discussion. The Secretary's plan to subject income from the bonds to war taxes, supertaxes, and excess profits taxes does not have unanimous approval. Many committee members think that if the bonds are to be taxed, they should be subject to straight income taxes. A suggestion was made that it might be wise to issue half the bonds at 3½ per cent. untaxed, and half at 4 per cent., subject to tax.

One item of discussion concerned the probable cost of selling. A big appropriation for salaries and advertising would be likely to rouse some opposition in the House. One estimate is that it will take $23,000,000 to place all of the bonds. This, and other details of the bill may be laid before New York bankers.

THE LENS WITH THE FIN
A new, surprisingly simple, yet wonderfully effective principle, has been introduced in this lens. Absolutely no glare or dazzle, yet it throws the light far ahead and to the sides.

INTERBOROUGH MUST PUT IN COAL RESERVE

Service Board Orders 5,000 Tons Accumulated at 59th St. Power House in Ten Days.

MAY ASK FOR LEGISLATION

Interlocking Directors Condemned—Fear of Berwind Seen as Real Cause of Shutdown.

The Public Service Commission, at the close of its hearing yesterday on the causes of the coal shortage which shut down the subways on Saturday afternoon, issued a formal order to the Interborough to lay in a reserve supply of 5,000 tons of coal at its Fifty-ninth Street power house in ten days and to keep up that reserve. The hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

In the meantime Commissioners Hayward, Whitney and Hervey will deliberate on the question of sending the record of the hearing to the District Attorney's office. The questions involved are whether officials of the Interborough have been guilty of a criminal violation of the order of the Public Service Commission to keep its trains running without interruption from preventable causes and whether any Director has been guilty of criminal dereliction.

Both Commissioner Hayward and William L. Ransom, chief counsel for the Public Service Commission, made statements yesterday that the breakdown of subway service was due primarily to the fact that officials of the Interborough were overawed by E. J. Berwind, the coal contractor and a powerful and active Director of the Interborough, and were afraid on that account to compel the Berwind-White Company to fulfil its contract to supply the coal required by the Interborough.

May Ask for Legislation.

Chief Counsel Ransom said at the close of the hearing that a meeting of the commission would be called to plan legislation against interlocking directorates, which would prevent transactions between public utilities and firms controlled by their directors. Judge Ransom intimated in a statement that Interborough officials might have deliberately caused the shutdown on Saturday to call attention to the coal situation which they were unwilling to grapple with in any other way, because of the power of Director Berwind.

Just before the close of the hearing yesterday afternoon Vice President Frank Hedley of the Interborough and several other subway officials walked up to the platform on which the Commissioners were sitting and sought to drive home their explanations of the subway tie-up, but Commissioner Hayward said emphatically to the group:

"The whole trouble was that E. J. Berwind had you fellows buffaloed."

Mr. Hedley shook his head and others started to expostulate, but Commissioner Hayward continued:

"I have always found you a courageous official, Hedley. In my observation you have made every other company dealing with the Interborough come to time and perform its obligations to the letter, but you showed the white feather in dealing with Berwind. You would have ridden roughshod over any other company that treated you the way the Berwind-White Company did."

The testimony definitely established yesterday that a mistake of about 1,900 tons had been made by employes of the Interborough in estimating the amount of coal at the Fifty-ninth Street powerhouse, as the report of Friday night stated that there was 2,600 tons of coal in the bunkers, while the experience of Saturday showed that there was only 700 tons. It was likewise established that the Berwind-White Company had been ordered to deliver seven barges of coal last week and had only delivered two. It was admitted that the clerical error would have had no bad results, if the seven barges, or even if three barges had been delivered.

Coal Pool Not Formed Yet.

Lawyers for the Interborough established it to the satisfaction of the commission that the Interborough could not have supplied itself from the coal pool of public utilities, because this pool had not been created yet, and that they could not have borrowed enough current from the New York Edison Company, because the connecting cables between the two plants would not carry enough. The Public Service Commissioners were misled in this respect on Monday by the testimony of Vice President D. W. Ross and Mechanical Superintendent Willis Lawrence, who were not sure whether or not the Interborough could have saved itself from the shutdown, by calling on the coal pool or the New York Edison Company for aid.

E. J Berwind admitted yesterday that the contract price of $3.23 per ton for coal to the Interborough had been raised to about $3.63 per ton, and that this had been done by an agreement which had never been reduced to writing. The Public Service Commissioners allow that a rise of 10 cents per ton was justified under the contract, but deny that 30 cents per ton of the raise has any legal basis, and are now contemplating some action on the subject.

When he was first called to the stand yesterday, Mr. Berwind denied that there was the slightest probability of a second shutdown of the subways on Monday for lack of coal. Ex-Judge Ransom said:

"I suppose you would have said the same thing on Friday last."

"I would have said the same thing on Friday last," said Mr. Berwind, "with the information that I had."

"And you would have said the same thing on Saturday?"

No Coal Seized for Navy.

Q.—Now, reference was made at yesterday's hearing to a claim on the part of Mr. Hedley that the reason why this coal was not delivered, and could not be had on Thursday or Friday or Saturday, had been that the Government had seized this subway coal or coal designed for the subway. I read you this statement, which appears from The Associated Press, in Washington, under yesterday's date, as follows, and ask you whether, to your knowledge, it is or is not an accurate statement of what in effect happened? [Reading.] "Washington, Aug. 27. Statements that the New York subway tie-up Saturday was due to the seizing by the Federal Government of the company's coal were characterized today by Dr. Harry A. Garfield, Coal Administrator, as absurd, when he was told of them. At the Federal Trade Commission's office it was said that Dr. Garfield was the only official having authority to order seizure of such coal. The committee, it was said, knew nothing of any such action. Quite incidentally it is rumored that any attempts to embarrass the regulation of the coal crisis will be met with prompt action. This comment, it was said, is not to be interpreted as applying particularly to the statements made by the New York traction officials." Would you say that that was or was not an accurate statement? A.—Garfield's statement is accurate. I will tell you how the Government business is done—

Q.—It is an accurate statement? A.—I mean it is accurate in the sense that they did not go over and physically seize coal, but this is what happened. The Government are fitting out a large number of vessels here to carry troops, and they issued an order that we were to ship 25,000 tons, give 25,000 tons to the Government within a certain time, which has still some time to run, and we were—that we furnish of that 25,000 tons, 23,000 tons, or 22,975 tons, leaving 2,025 tons still to be delivered in the next four weeks. Then, they came along and ordered the army transports—ordered four or five thousand tons, and the Navy Department three or four thousand tons, to be delivered last Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, with the statement from the Secretary that if the coal was not forthcoming they would take care of our properties, and direct us to divert any coal which may be en route to New York for this purpose of supplying these orders, and any other orders we might have; that we must not interpret that order if they state 25,000 tons; that they reserve the right to commandeer any quantity of coal if they choose to order, they could take it within any time, within that period. In other words, there was no amount stipulated, and they could call for it. I want to make it clear.

Gets More from Edison Company.

Later, to show that the Berwind-White Company had not profited at the expense of the Interborough, Mr. Berwind stated that he was supplying coal to the New York Edison Company for $5.25 a ton, or $1.62 a ton more than he is now charging the Interborough.

Assistant General Manager George Keegan of the Interborough divided the blame for the shutdown between Superintendent Willis Lawrence, in charge of the Fifty-ninth Street powerhouse, and the Berwind-White Company. He said that Mr. Lawrence was the responsible head of the department which had made the error in estimating the coal on hand. He said, however, that this was not a clerical error, but that some mistake had been made in the method of estimating, as the error had started at the beginning of the month, and grown steadily in the daily estimates until it had become a miscalculation of 1,900 tons on last Saturday.

Mr. Keegan and other officials said that it would be a mistake to attempt to guard against a shut-down by connecting the Interborough power plants and the New York Edison plants with cables which would make it possible to divert surplus current to take care of the subways in case of a power house breakdown. He said that this would involve the expenditure of millions of dollars and that the danger which it would avert could be prevented by the simple expedient of keeping the coal bunkers full hereafter. He said, also, that the breakdown on last Saturday was the first of the kind in the joint life of thirty years of the two Interborough power houses, and that the one mishap was not a sufficient cause for precautionary measures costing an enormous sum of money.

Plenty of Coal Here.

"The plea that Mr. Berwind or the Interborough could not have procured coal in the open market has been proved specious. There is plenty of coal here; the price, however, is higher than Mr. Berwind's contract with the Interborough. When the other coal company, the Consolidation Company, did not have coal to deliver to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, it was required to go into the open market and buy coal at $1.25 over its contract price and deliver it to the I. R. T. Company.

"The wisdom of public operation may be debated in this town, but not a great deal is likely to be said about the surpassing efficiency of private management, except perhaps in bringing an interlocking Director to a sense of his contractual and public obligations.

"Of course the vice and dangers inherent in Mr. Berwind's dual status were all developed in detail before the Legislative Investigating Committee in 1916. Senator Thompson and Colonel Hayward pointed out fully the impropriety of this interlocking situation. Yet he has not changed it, and no one has compelled him to change it. His term as Director and his coal contract expire next year. The course pursued by men like Mr. Berwind presents the greatest obstacles to a fair, reasonable, patient co-operation between public service corporations and the public; he engenders a great store of bitterness that sooner or later stands in the way of real interests of his company."

MAYOR SUGGESTS CITY SEIZE SUBWAYS

Commissioner Hayward Points Out Impossibility of Annulling Operating Contract.

Mayor Mitchel suggested yesterday, in a letter to Acting Chairman Hayward of the Public Service Commission, the annulment of the contract with the Interborough, and municipal operation of the subways, if the Interborough failed again to provide itself with a coal reserve and caused another breakdown. His letter follows:

Dear Mr. Hayward: Under the contracts between the City of New York and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, the Public Service Commission exercises certain important powers on behalf of the City of New York, particularly those relating to the enforcement of the contracts. I am pleased to learn of the vigorous attitude adopted by the commission in its inquiry into the failure of the Interborough Company to render service on the subway last Saturday.

Under the contracts now in force for the operation of the subway, the Interborough Company covenants with the city during the time of the lease to "operate the railroad carefully and faithfully according to the highest known standards of railway operation," and to operate a minimum number of trains at all hours during the day. These provisions were violated on Saturday, and as your investigation has disclosed, this was due to the failure of the company to have a sufficient amount of coal at its power station to operate the plant.

In addition to the regulative power of the commission, the remedies afforded by Chapter 1 of the contracts for a breach of their provisions are drastic, giving the city power to take possession of the railroad and equipment and operate it itself, or to enter into a contract with some other person for the maintenance and operation of the railroad; or even to terminate the contract, and in the latter case the company is liable to the city for all damage by reason of the default. While I do not think it necessary to exercise those powers at the present time, I suggest that your commission, as successor to the Rapid Transit Commission, notify the company of the default and that in case of repetition or failure to provide an adequate coal reserve, the commission, upon behalf of the city, give the notice of contemplated annulment provided for in the contract.

I have had a hurried investigation made of the coal situation, and find that, notwithstanding the unusual conditions produced by the war, the city has always been able to get a sufficient quantity of coal to carry on all of its activities. In no instance has any activity been stopped or curtailed because of a lack of adequate coal supply. At times the city has been obliged to pay a high price, but it has secured the coal, and my investigation indicates that the coal company obligated by contract to supply coal to the Interborough Company could have secured, can now, and can in the future secure an adequate supply of coal if it is willing to pay market prices. These facts confirm the evidence brought out by the commission at the hearing yesterday. Very truly yours,

JOHN PURROY MITCHEL.

Commissioner Hayward refused to discuss the Mayor's letter.

Britain and France at Our Request Will Send Specialists as Advisors in Camps.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—A group of French or British army officers, specialists in various details of trench warfare, will be attached to National Guard and national army camps under plans worked out by the War Department to expedite training troops for special conditions they will meet at the front. French and British Governments have been asked to detail officers, and probably eight or ten will be assigned to each of the thirty-two camps.

The foreign officers will not come in direct touch with the American troops. The training will be done entirely by the American officers of the companies, regiments, or brigades, but the American officers will have the opportunity of consulting with their foreign associates who have had actual experience at the front with control of artillery fire, bombing attacks, machine guns, and coordinating movements of infantry in attack or on defensive operations.

There will be men who have learned under fire the lessons of maintaining telegraph or telephone communication; others whose specialty has been coordination of airplane observation with the movements of the infantry; others who have been highly trained in observation balloon work, and so on through the list of highly specialized military subjects that have been developed in three years of trench warfare.

Learning these lessons of co-ordination of forces is vital to the efficiency of the American troops when they face the Germans across "No Man's Land."

Angry Over Gerard Honor.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 28.—The ire of the Berlin Zeitung am Mittag has been raised to a high pitch over the conferring by King George of the Knight Grand Cross of the Bath upon James W. Gerard, former United States Ambassador to Germany.

"We always have known," says the newspaper, "that Ambassador Gerard was England's representative—at least as much as America's—in Berlin."

50 RUSSIAN SAILORS FIGHT OUR SEAMEN

MANY SHOTS WERE FIRED

And Ten Russians Were Hurt—Officers of Both Navies Exchange Apologies for the Affair.

Fifty Americans sailors and marines engaged in a fight last night with about fifty sailors from a Russian warship on the Brooklyn waterfront, and as a result five Russian sailors were arrested and about ten others were sent to their ships' hospitals to have wounds dressed. About 100 shots were fired by the Russians and Jerry O'Shea, a quartermaster on a merchant ship, was sent to the Long Island College Hospital with a wound in his leg.

Early in the evening Policeman Samuel Blythe from the Hamilton Avenue station heard sounds of disorder in a saloon near the waterfront, and he found that Russian sailors there were becoming belligerent under the influence of liquor. He advised them to return to their ship and started them on the way to the pier where their ship was moored. He pushed the men through the iron gate just as a party of American sailors from other ships moored at nearby piers came along to enter the same gate.

The Russians knew that some of the German liners now in the service of the American Government were tied up nearby and when the American sailors sought admittance at the gate the Russians barred it and began to shout taunts at the Americans whom they believed to be Germans. Hearing the word "German" and other badly translated insults uttered in a strange tongue that they believed to be Teutonic the sailors decided to go over the top of the fence after men they in turn supposed were Germans. The first man who went over was knocked unconscious and a second fared no better. Suddenly the entire party of American sailors went over simultaneously and the Russians fled toward their ship, hurling stones, bricks, and other missiles at their pursuers.

Hearing the cries of their associates other sailors on the Russian cruiser rushed to their assistance, until about fifty Russians were driving the American sailors back toward the gates. Many of the Russian sailors brought rifles from their ship and a spatter of rifle fire attracted sailors on the American ships. They heard their comrades call for help, and about fifty American sailors and marines evaded their officers on the decks and charged the Russians.

The men were punishing one another severely when about thirty police reserves from the Hamilton Avenue police station arrived to stop the riot. The police used their night sticks, but they were badly pummelled before they were able to drive the sailors back to their ships, where officers had organized guards of men to take charge of them. Before they left the police sought the five Russians who had caused the disorder and took them to the police station. Two were charged with felonious assault after the wounded quartermaster had been found lying in the yard, and three were charged with a violation of the Sullivan law when weapons were found on them. Two ambulances with four surgeons were called from the Long Island College Hospital, but they took only O'Shea away. Minor wounds were dressed by the ship's doctors, and all the men engaged in the fight were placed under arrest by their officers.

Russian officers sent messengers to the officers of the American ships to apologize for the struggle, and the American officers apologized for the part their men played in the affair.

"Oh, well," said one Russian officer, "I am sure the Germans lost, anyway."

RAIN AND DRIVING GALE DAMAGE BRITISH CROPS

LONDON, Wednesday, Aug. 29.—The London morning papers feature as a matter of serious national importance the disastrous effect of the weather on the crops. The unfavorable harvesting weather has now culminated in a savage gale of a velocity at times of a hundred miles an hour and accompanied by sweeping deluges of rain.

The damage caused by the storms extends virtually through the whole country, though the havoc is greatest in the western counties, where the crops are heaviest and where the grain fields in many instances are now little better than tangled masses of discolored straw and sprouting ears.

The Times in an editorial says that the results of the disastrous weather of this, the wettest August in twenty-five years, discount seriously the more optimistic mood about food supplies which had been gradually gaining ground. The paper adds that recent estimates of the harvest in the United States and Canada are more favorable than the earlier calculations, "but that it is a treacherous source from which to draw much encouragement."

The Times anticipates that the rough weather at sea will prove to have favored the submarines, enabling them to sink more ships, and concludes: "Food economy is more essential than ever. There should not be the slightest slackening of the rigid self-restraint demanded of each individual."

LABORITES IN ROW OVER STOCKHOLM

The conference is not to vote but to consult and, if possible, to agree on a policy to be followed in regard to the international Socialist conference at Stockholm. If it proves impossible to reach an agreement the different sections will put forward their own views at Stockholm.

The chief subject for consideration by the conference is the war aims of the Allies. A report on this subject has been drawn up by the Executive Committee of the British Labor Party, as well as by the French Labor Party, and an effort will be made to reach an agreement.

A number of resolutions have been submitted for discussion. The Independent Labor Party asks that the principle that minorities as well as majorities shall be represented at Stockholm be recognized by the conference. The British Socialist Party presented a statement setting forth that there is common responsibility for the war, and that reparation must be from a common fund contributed by all the belligerents. The statement demands the return of conquered territory, including the German colonies, and calls on the working people to intervene and end the war. Other declarations refer to the future of Alsace-Lorraine.

The sessions of the conference will be private. Reports of each day's proceedings will be issued.

PERSHING TIRELESS AND CALM IN TASK

Adds to Sound Health the Ability to Do His Work Without Worrying.

UNMOVED BY DIFFICULTY

Eager in Preparations for Campaign, but "Will Never Do Anything Rash," Said Joffre.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

PARIS, Aug. 14.—It is doubtful if any other man has been more in the public eye of Europe these last few weeks than General John J. Pershing. The English and French public have watched General Pershing with the interest that centres in the head of one of the greatest movements the world has ever seen.

America will shortly be asking, if she has not already, how Pershing is measuring up to the work of leadership. THE NEW YORK TIMES dispatches have indicated the preliminary success achieved by him. As a diplomat I doubt if he is surpassed in the service of any country.

He begins with the advantage of looks, though he has none of the drawbacks of masculine pulchritude. If a sculptor were commissioned to make a heroic statue to represent West Point he couldn't do better than take General Pershing as his model. Nor is he merely a military figure. His personality is equally typical of American strength and manhood.

These personal attractions and graces are used with a naturalness which won Paris instantly. I doubt if there is another man of any race who at this moment could bring to bear a greater influence on a Paris crowd if occasion should demand. It may be set down as a certainty that in all dealings with the French public and in his relations with the statesmen and Generals the American commander will "do his country proud."

No less promising are what may be called his business methods. He is devoted to his work. He never tires of the routine, and he never worries. He is a perfectly healthy normal man. There is not an iota of morbidity in his composition.

During the period when there was misunderstanding and miscarriage in the censorship I had frequent occasion to talk to him and must have expressed my sense of grievance with considerable emphasis. He encouraged me to do so. One day I said to him:

"General, you have enough responsibilities; I am not going to worry you with fault-finding about the censorship."

"Well, if you are letting that idea trouble you dismiss it," he replied with a smile. "I don't let anything worry me. I try to do a good day's work, and when it is finished I go to bed. And what is more, I go to sleep."

A wonderful doctrine if a man can only live up to it. And General Pershing does, absolutely. Perhaps it is largely a matter of sound health. His one sensitiveness is there—he would rather almost be accused of dereliction than to be thought ill.

Perhaps that is a survival of the farmer boy's pride of strength. The farmer boy is always bobbing up in Pershing. Linn County, Missouri, would be proud to see the evidences of her early imprint on the man whose farming now consists in an occasional look from the window or the porch at the most beautiful garden in all Paris—for such is the garden of the great house that Odgen Mills has lent the General. This is a garden, Linn County must know, not for vegetables, but for flowers, trees, and green grass. It is behind the Rue de Varenne in the very middle of Paris.

General Pershing's "don't worry" policy is part of a philosophy that he has worked out and that he practices in his daily life. He believes in difficulty as the very stuff of opportunity. A man that could chase Villa while enduring Carranza and still keep his temper and serenity has a right to be considered a seasoned optimist. Even war-worn Europe seems pretty good after Mexico, of which it has been sung:

More rivers and less water.
More cows and less milk.
Further to look and less to see than any other country in the world.

General Pershing has a right to his view of the relation between difficulty and opportunity. If he should become a great General, a deliverer of civilization from the onset of Hun barbarism, history would put him alongside Lincoln and Grant in respect to early hardships and their influence on his development.

When the President's address of April 2 reached Mexico and was read by General Pershing at his headquarters, he couldn't restrain his enthusiasm. There was no self-seeking in his feeling; he hadn't then the faintest idea of commanding the European forces. He was deeply stirred by the great address when he read the pregnant and eloquent sentences, and jumping to his feet gave his feelings full vent in the presence of the soldiers and newspaper correspondents who happened to be in his headquarters.

"I'd rather live today and have some part in these great things," he said, "than to have lived and occupied the highest station at any previous time in history. We are going to establish democratic institutions in the world for all time and every man who can have a share, however small, in the work, may be proud."

Such is the type of the man. Whether he possesses the diversified abilities, whether he can be the many different kinds of man necessary for carrying on to the end, remains to be seen. He has the gifts of diplomacy and of organization.

General Pershing is sound, cautious, considerate. He has a good heart and an abundant sense of humor. Marshal Joffre said to me: "General Pershing will never do anything rash. He will consider first and act afterward." You can put this over against what an English statesman with American associations said to me the other day about a great executive position: "We want a man for that job who is willing to take a chance on spilling the beans."

GIANTS BUNCH HITS TO DEFEAT PIRATES

PERRITT EARNS VICTORY

Twelfth Regiment Sees Local Team Bombard Visitors and Win Game, 7 to 3.

The Giants beat the tailend Pittsburghs at the Polo Grounds yesterday by a score of 7 to 3. Ordinarily it shouldn't be a difficult task for the league leaders to feast on the cellar club, but the dog days show their effect on the Giants, and they lack the aggressiveness which made them the terrors of the circuit earlier in the season. With the Phillies coming on with such a rush as they have shown during the last couple of weeks, the Giants' once wide margin of leadership has been cut down to nine games, and the future is not as secure as it was a while back.

The Giants' greatest asset—their talent at bunching hits in a concentrated attack—came to the surface again yesterday after a long slumber. They fell on Burleigh Grimes so hard in the fourth inning that the fusillade went all the way through the batting order, and five hits and as many runs was the result. After that Carlson relieved Grimes, and the Giants' batting spree was subdued.

Pol Perritt experienced little trouble except in a couple of innings, when the Pirates threatened. Two hits was the limit of their hitting in each of these sessions, the fourth and the seventh, and at all other times Pol was on his very best behavior.

There was a quickening martial air at the game, for the Twelfth Regiment, under Colonel Reginald Foster, filled up the grand stand back of third base and whooped things up every time they got a chance. Every ball that was fouled into the grand stand was thrown among the soldiers, and they collected quite a number for future use.

Rariden Performs Feat.

Bill Rariden, who is working overtime these days at his catching duties, performed the star circus play of the game when he climbed over the wire of the backstop and caught a foul fly off Carey's bat, a feat which hasn't been seen here since Ray Schalk of the White Sox did it. Another bright fielding bit was made by Herzog, when he robbed Hans Wagner of a hit in the seventh by knocking down a ball that was sailing to right field and threw the aged Pittsburgh gentleman out at first base.

Grimes was feeling generous in the first inning, and gave the Giants a run, together with a lot of encouragement, which they seemed to need badly. Burns walked. Robertson, who has been pushed up to No. 2 in the batting order, whacked a long screamer to right, Jackson making a good running catch. Kauff grounded out to Hans Wagner, putting Burns on second. While Grimes was serving them up to Zimmerman he unraveled a wild pitch, which bounced off his catcher's feet to the field boxes, Burns skipping all the way home.

In the first half of the fourth the Pirates began to take liberties with Pol Perritt. Carey singled to left, and went to second while Burns was juggling the ball. Boeckel laid down a perfect bunt and beat it out to first, while Carey went to third. Boeckel then started to steal second, and the Giants promptly forgot that Carey was on third, or on earth even. While Rariden was tossing out Boeckel Carey scored, without as much as a murmur of objection from the Giants.

Giants Victor in Fourth.

The Giants must be weary by this time of being tied every few minutes in almost every ball game they play. They went on one of their real old-fashioned rampages in their section of the fourth, and made a merry-go-round of it before they called a halt. Robertson started off by beating out a roller to third, and he rushed all the way home when Benny Kauff pumped a twobase hit off the left-field fence. Zimmerman whizzed a liner through short just out of Ward's reach, and Benny went to third.

The Pirates infield then played in close, and no one dared to stir while Fletcher was being thrown out at first by Ward. Herzog rolled an easy hopper to Pitler, and Jake took the occasion to try out his throwing arm. He made a peg to first which closely resembled a bowler trying to roll a big ball down the alley. Hans Wagner placed his whole frame in the spot where he thought the ball would roll, and how it ever got by him no one knows. Anyway, the ball rolled to the field boxes and Kauff and Zimmerman chased home.

Herzog stole third and Holke got a pass. The two then worked a neat double steal, Herzog scoring as Holke slid into second ahead of the ball. Rariden died at first, and Perritt soaked a single through third which sent Holke home. Burns planked a two-baser off the right-field wall, and Robertson, up for the second time in that same inning, filed to Bigbee for the third out. Grimes was missing when the next inning came around, and Carlson finished the game, and allowed the Giants one run.

Carlson did more than his share of effort to try to win the game in the seventh. After Herzog had made his spectacular play retiring Hans Wagner at first, Pitler walked, and went to third when Schmidt rapped a single to right. Carlson soaked a single to left, which sent Pitler and Schmidt over the plate.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO ACT.

Delayed Decision in McGraw Repudiation Case Promised Today.

Today is to be a more or less important occasion in the annals of the National League, for it is promised that at a special meeting to be held this morning the League will announce its decision on the McGraw repudiation appeal. This happened so long ago that it was generally believed the National League had forgotten it. It will be recalled that Manager McGraw was credited with numerous interviews reflecting on President Tener and the National League.

It will also be remembered that when the League called Manager McGraw to account he emphatically denied that he had given out the interviews. The case was reopened and several reporters told of McGraw approving the statements credited to him and which were afterward printed. The New York manager still denied sections of the interviews and said he never read them over when they were given to him for approval. For several weeks the members of the League have been digesting the testimony given at the hearings and the verdict will be given out today.

VAUGHN SHUTS OUT ROBINS.

Fred Mitchell's heretofore harmless Chicago Cubs turned tail yesterday at Ebbets Field and gave the Robins a taste of their own medicine. Aided by the left arm of big Jim Vaughn and a decided lapse from brilliant playing by the Robins, the Bruins managed to pull through with a 2 to 0 victory before it came time for them to collect their bats for the evening.

The fact that nine sound wallops were made off his delivery goes to show that Vaughn wasn't exactly hit-proof, but, backed with superb support from his teammates, he was absolutely run-proof. On only one occasion was he really in danger of being scored on, and this great opportunity, in the fifth chapter, when the paths were crowded with eager Robins, went unheeded. That was the one big fault with the Robin batsmen yesterday, they were totally lacking in timely base hits.

Another thing that smacked of a return to the form they showed in games not long ago was the loose and faulty fielding the team gave to Leon Cadore. While he was hit at times effectively, he was entitled to better support. Errors by Myers and Olson let in the first Chicago run in the fourth frame, and after another had been earned in the next session ,an error of omission by Daubert threatened to let in another in the sixth. A snapy and unusual double play, however, which ended with Deal being nipped at the plate, downed the Brooklyn fears that had been awakened.

In the fourth things began to happen. To start the frame, Hy Myers fumbled a bad bounder, and Cy Williams was safe, to advance to second on Deal's sacrifice. After Kilduff had popped to Olson, Elliott rapped an easy grounder at Ivan, who threw low to Daubert, allowing Williams to score as the ball went to the grand stand.

In the fifth another Chicago tally was recorded when, after Flack had fanned, Mann singled to left. On Zeider's single to the same territory Mann went to third. The double steal was then brought into play, and Mann was called safe at the plate on a close decision by Umpire Rigler, Zeider taking advantage of the wrangling over the play at the plate to scoot to third. That was as far as Rollie got, for Cadore fanned Merkle and Williams in order.

Up to the fifth inning the Robins were easy for Vaughn. They bunched three hits, filling the bases with Zach Wheat, Krueger, and Cadore, but Olson, with a chance to redeem his bobble of a short time before, lifted an easy pop fly to Merkle.

TRIPLE PLAY FAILS TO SAVE YANKEES

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—The White Sox made it three in a row over the Yankees here this afternoon, when they took the final game of the series by the score of 4 to 3. What proved to be the winning run was forced over the plate by Caldwell in the sixth inning. With two out and Schalk on first after his single, Caldwell handed out passes to Leibold, McMullen, and Eddie Collins. This game ended the Yankees' Western trip, the record being three victories and eight defeats.

A triple play by the Yankees in the third inning was the feature. With the bases filled as a result of two singles and a fielder's choice, Joe Jackson lined to Baker. The latter, after tagging third for a double play on Leibold, threw to Gedeon and caught McMullen off second base. Two fast double plays by the home team and a diving catch of a line drive by Baker were other fielding features.

The Yankees drove Claude Williams off the hill in the sixth inning and made it unpleasant for Faber in each of the succeeding innings. In the ninth they had runners on first and third when Gilhooley ended the game with a grounder to Risberg. High led with the stick, getting three hits.

The White Sox got their first run in the third inning. Williams walked and Leibold singled to right, Williams taking third when Gilhooley fumbled. McMullen's single to right sent Williams home. After Eddie Collins grounded to Caldwell and Leibold beat the latter's throw to third, Jackson hit into a double play.

Two more runs came over in Chicago's half of the fifth. After Faber had fanned, Leibold singled to right, reached second on McMullen's hit to the same field and scored when Collins made it three in a row to this section. Jackson's single to left chased McMullen home.

The Yankees had a good chance in the fourth, but Risberg grabbed Gedeon's liner with second and third occupied and none out, and his toss to Collins doubled Pipp off second. In the sixth, Donovan's men counted twice. High singled to left, Gilhooley fanned, and when McMullen threw poorly after fielding Peck's grounder, High reached third. Pipp's single scored High and put Peck on third. Gedeon's sacrifice fly to Felsch scored Peck.

The Yankees added one in the eighth. Gilhooley walked, went to third on Peck's single to centre and scored when Pipp grounded into a double play, Collins to Risberg to Gandil.

U., which will be held on the athletic field of Washington University at St. Louis, this coming Friday, Saturday, and Labor Day, closed last Saturday, and show that there will be little difference in the annual fixture because of the war. When the A. A. U. decided to run off its championships this year there was a pessimism felt by officials of the organization throughout the country, which amounted almost to doubt as to the success of the national championship games, because of the large number of this country's athletes who have enlisted in one branch or another of the United States service.

This feeling was dispelled recently with the announcement from Adjt. Gen. McCain at Washington that the War Department would lend its aid in making a success of the title games insofar as it lay in its power, by granting furloughs or leaves of absence to enlisted athletes, when the leave did not interfere with any army orders. With this liberal attitude on the part of the officials at Washington the A. A. U. officials are now able to announce that only two of the champions will not be on hand to defend their titles.

In talking over the coming championships yesterday, Secretary-Treasurer Frederick W. Rubien expressed confidence in a great meet. "Judging from the entries that have been received during the last week," said Mr. Rubien, "the championships at St. Louis, I feel sure, will prove a great success. Practically all of the champions crowned at Newark last year will defend their titles. One or two have retired from athletics; one has been working on a farm all Summer and has not had time to train, and Tom Halpin, the quarter-mile champion, had the misfortune to pull a tendon while training for the championships.

"Only one, or perhaps two, will be kept out of the championships because of the war. I do not mean by this that our athletes have not volunteered their services to their country, because they have. Almost one-third of the prominent athletes who will compete for championship honors are in the service of Uncle Sam and have obtained furloughs in order to defend their titles or win one."

Nineteen events are on the program for the junior championships, which will open the meet on Friday, and the same number of track and field tests are down for the seniors for Saturday. In addition, the all-around and relay championships will be held on Labor Day, making in all a total of fifty-three events for the three days' sport.

A nominal admission fee is to be charged and already the indications are that the games will be a huge success from this standpoint. The demand for tickets has been so great that extra bleacher seats have been constructed on the field, which will seat comfortably 8,000 persons. This will bring the total capacity of the field up to 38,000. All the receipts of the meet are to be donated to the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Among the country's prominent athletes who will compete are Fred Kelly of Los Angeles, the Olympic hurdles champion; Walter Hummel of Portland, the quarter mile hurdles champion; Don Scott of New Orleans, half-mile champion; Ted Meredith, the Olympic 800-meter champion, and world's record holder for the half mile; John W. Overton, formerly of Yale, the present inter-collegiate cross-country champion, and national champion and recordholder for 1,000 yards indoor; and Andy Ward of Chicago, the national sprint champion. These are a few of the more widely known athletes throughout the country who are in service and have obtained furloughs to take part in the championships.

Others not so widely known perhaps, but possessed of ability that will make them formidable contenders in the title struggles are: Clinton Larsen of Brigham University, Utah, who has cleared the bar in the running high jump at 6 feet 7⅞ inches; George H. Goulding of Canada, national champion and record holder in the two and three miles walk; Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C., the national five-mile champion; Dan Ahearn, national hop, step, and jump champion; George Bronder, national javelin champion; Pat Ryan, national hammer throwing champion; Matt McGrath, national 56-pound weight throwing champion; Villar Kyronen, former five-mile national champion; C. J. Stout, former two-mile conference champion, who recently ran a mile straightaway in 4:11 2-5; Joe Irish of the Chicago A. A., who recently did 23 feet 6 inches in the running broad jump; Waldo Ames of the University of Illinois with a record of 0:14 4-5 in the 120-yard high hurdles, and Jim Lincoln, metropolitan javelin throwing champion.

ADD ATHLETES TO TEAM.

Milne and Walters to Make Trip to A. A. U. Games.

Gordon Milne of the Loughlin Lyceum, junior metropolitan champion at 220 yards, and K. Walters of the Paulist A. C., who ran a good race in the senior 100-yard championship last Saturday, have been added to the team that will represent the Metropolitan Association in the National A. A. U. track and field championships at St. Louis Friday.

This announcement was made yesterday at the local offices of the A. A. U., when it also was made known that the largest entry of recent years had been received for the all-around championship, which will have ten competitors. This is three more than answered the call last year. The athletes are: Nathan Tycer, New Orleans; L. Karimo, Detroit; P. F. O'Connor, New York; L. McMasters, Pittsburgh; Fred Kelly, Los Angeles; J. Howard Berry, Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia; Harold E. Barron, Meadowbrook Club, Philadelphia; Avery Brundage, Chicago, present champion; Joe Irish, Chicago, and Harry Goelitz of Chicago.

JACKSON BEATS MOONEY.

West Side Boxer Stays Limit, but Easily Is Outpointed.

Willie Jackson, the Bronx lightweight who jumped suddenly into fame several months ago through his one-round knockout victory over Johnny Dundee, last night outpointed Joe Mooney, the west side boxer, in a ten-round bout at the Pioneer S. C. The Bronx lightweight, outweighing Mooney six and one-half pounds, earned the honors in all of the ten rounds, but he was forced to extend himself to the limit. Mooney, although buffeted about continually by Jackson, exchanged blows willingly with his heavier adversary when the opportunity presented itself. Jackson's cleaner, more effective, and more frequent blows earned the Bronx lad the honors.

WHITNEY JUVENILE TRIUMPHS AT SPA

Happy Go Lucky Takes Adirondack Handicap When Tracksend Quits in Race.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Aug. 28.—Harry Payne Whitney's colors were carried to the front this afternoon in the Adirondack Handicap for two-year-olds by Happy Go Lucky, a son of Hamburg and Wonder, who showed great improvement over his previous races. The victory was one of the most popular of the waning meeting, because Mr. Whitney has had little success this season, especially in the two-year-old division, in which he generally is very formidable here.

Though the real top-notchers did not accept the weights allotted for the feature event, there was a field of high-class youngsters to the number of a dozen. The weights had been so nicely adjusted that 16 to 5 could be obtained against the equal favorites, Jack Hare, Jr., and Kashmir, while 5 to 1 was quoted against Happy Go Lucky, the comparatively short odds being accounted for by the recent improvement shown in his trials by this son of Hamburg.

It did not take long to settle the issue so far as first place went, for though Tracksend broke in front and took the track from the rail position, Happy Go Lucky outran him in the first furlong with Jack Hare, Jr.,—the top weight—in close attendance to the end of the backstretch. For a few strides, rounding the far corner, it looked as though Jack Hare, Jr., had speed enough to overhaul the Whitney crack, but Robinson let out a link and Happy Go Lucky slipped away to a lead of four lengths in negotiating the turn.

It was a stern chase then for Jack Hare, Jr., and the winner never was threatened. A new contender came into view when Butwell made his run with Matinee Idol, and squeezing through on the rail just managed to get up in time to take the place from Jack Hare, Jr., by a nose, the pair being two lengths behind Happy Go Lucky.

The thrills lacking from the big race were provided in the following event, a spin over the mile course under claiming conditions. It also gave an opportunity to that much abused plater, Sam McMeekin, to prove his gameness. Sam McMeekin, which twice has refused to leave the barrier since the meeting began, ran under the urging of Jimmy Butwell, the most determined race he has ever participated in. At the finish, with his sides showing the marks of Butwell's spurs, he was a nose in front of Blue Thistle with The Grader only another nose back.

It was The Grader which supplied most of the opposition for Sam, and from the lower end of the back stretch the pair ran locked together with Butwell doing his utmost to hold the rail position. Sam showed a disposition to sulk entering the home stretch and The Grader drew almost clear, while Blue Thistle came up on the outside to join the struggle. For the last eighth of a mile these three ran with first the nose of one in front and then another in the lead by the same margin. In close quarters on the rail Butwell never stopped riding the favorite and Sam McMeekin also rose to the racing spirit long enough to snatch the verdict.

MISS ROSENTHAL SURVIVES.

Defeats Opponent, 6 and 4, in Women's Western Golf Tourney.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Miss Lois Stumer of the Ravisloe Country Club, Chicago, 16 years old, and Miss Frances Hadfield of the Blue Mound Club, Milwaukee, 17 years old, were successful today in the first match round of the seventeenth annual championship of the Women's Western Golf Association at the Flossmoor Country Club. These young golfers overcame seasoned players, Mrs. D. Gaut of Memphis losing to Miss Hadfield two down, despite a medal score of 87—one under par. The Milwaukee girl covered the first nine in 40 and came home in 46 for an 86. Miss Stumer defeated Miss Ethel Chatfield of Sycamore, Ill., in nineteen holes.

A surprise of the day was the defeat of Miss Ernestine Pearce, who tied at 92 with Mrs. Samuel Kunstadter of Idlewild for low net in the qualifying round, by Miss Vida Llewellyn of Lagrange, 4 and 2. Mrs. Kunstadter barely escaped defeat, winning from Miss Louise Fergus of Glenview by only 1 up.

Mrs. Fred C. Letts, Jr., Indian Hill Club, Chicago, handily overcame Mrs. H. R. Kasson, South Shore, 3 and 2, while Miss Elaine Rosenthal of Ravisloe, North and South champion, disposed of Miss Corella Lukens of Edgewater, 6 and 4. Miss Rosenthal scored a 43 on the first half and was only one over fours for the five holes played of the second nine.

Miss Rosenthal will meet Mrs. Kunstadter in tomorrow's play.

Charles S. Garland, junior champion, again defeated Marshal Allen of Seattle, 6—4, 6—1. In the men's doubles, John R. Strachan and R. Lindley Murray defeated Fred B. Alexander and Harold Throckmorton, 6—4, 6—3.

IMA JAY WINS RICH POUGHKEEPSIE RACE

Jess Y. Captures the 2:13 Trot After Six-Heat Brush at Grand Circuit Races.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Aug. 28.—Ima Jay, the favorite, owned and driven by Harvey Ernest, today won the Poughkeepsie, a purse of $3,000, for 2:11 trotters, the feature event of the opening day of the Poughkeepsie Grand Circuit meeting. Royal Mac, driven by Thomas W. Murphy, won the first heat, showing a remarkable burst of speed in the home stretch and overtaking Ima Jay, which was leading. Ernest sent Ima Jay out in the lead when the word was given in the second heat and setting a fast pace, the mare was never headed. Murphy again challenged in the last furlong, but Royal Mac did not respond. The time for this heat was 2:06¼, the fastest of the race. Ima Jay won the third heat in a driving finish from Bacelli with Royal Mac third.

The 2:13 trot went six heats before Jess Y., the popular choice, was returned a winner. Indira won the first heat and the American Girl the second. A costly break in the third caused the latter to be shut out, Jess Y. winning. Jess Y. also won the fourth handily and had a substantial lead in the fifth when she went to a break in the stretch, Cox winning with Coastess Mobel. The final heat was comparatively easy for Jess Y.

In the special pacing race between Butt Hale and Russell Boy the latter showed too much speed for Murphy's young horse and won handily in 2:04 and 2:08.

"Take Autocar Reliability as Matter of Course"

Robert Gair Co., folding box manufacturers of Brooklyn, say of their Autocars: "They do an immense amount of work very satisfactorily. One Autocar, for example, makes two trips a day up to Piermont, N. Y., 120 miles for the day's work. It carries heavy loads of paper to our Piermont mills, over steep grades and often hub-deep in mud. It always gets there and always gets back and Autocar reliability is something we now take as a matter of course."

The unmusical plays of George Ade had always a leaning toward musical comedy, which was his native genre; and now the best of them, having leaned a long time, has fallen. Or rather, Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse have pushed it over, to music by Jerome Kern.

The plot, which always was a trifle light, falls easily within the scope of the sketchier stage; and the characters, which used to seem not so much human beings as illustrated comics from a college funny paper, are well within the range of song-and-dance acting. In a word, the new show at the Longacre has kept most of the quality of the original and added a very welcome investiture of melodic song and dance, gay costumes that are yet in excellent taste, and—last but not least in pulchritude, a chorus. Pulchritude has long been the word for choruses, as camouflage has become the monicker of curtain speeches.

Ah, the chorus! Learning rests lightly on the massive intellect of co-eds at this fresh water college. Digging Greek roots has not sullied the fair white symmetery of their hands, and abnormal psychology has left their hearts unclouded by any Freudian emotional complex. And how they do manage to dress on an undergraduate income! Radcliffe and Barnard have much to learn in the matter of Domestic Economy from this fresh water Atwater out in Indiana. One of them, unnamed in the program, but enshrined in the eye where fancy breeds, danced in a way that is rare, even upon dance-mad Broadway.

Jane, the college widow, who lured the star half back from the rival college, to the ruin of his affections and hers, was very capably played by Edith Hallor. Her Junonian smile invited, and her double-barreled searchlights swept the utmost depths of the ungraduate soul. When it came to siren stuff the whole college knew they could "leave it to Jane." Bessie, the athletic girl, whose tan showed up deplorably in an evening gown, but whose rooting in the stadium did marvels, was played by Ann Orr with abundant dash and vigor. But the surprise of the evening was the college waitress, Flora, played, sung, and danced by Georgia O'Ramey.

She is the severe young person of the townspeople, relentless in collecting her mother's board bills, who refused to be beguiled by persiflage, saying: "I've met so many of you college comedians I haven't a laugh left in my system." In the hands of Miss O'Ramey she developed into a grotesque comedienne, after the order of Pacquerette, but with an air and a comedy method quite her own.

Utterly regardless of her native good looks, she pulled the most delightful mugs; and, equally heedless of her trim figure, she allowed herself to be thrown about the stage alarmingly. But her great success, and the comedy hit of the evening, was her song about Cleopatra, as seen from the point of view of rural Atwater.

She made those poor Egyptian ginks

and the manner in which Cleopatra did it Miss O'Ramey illustrated with surprising Egyptian dance and gesture.

All the old familiar characters were there. Stub, the busy undergraduate, was played by Oscar Shaw; Silent Murphy, the big centre rush, whose patent leathers alone extorted a word from him, was played by Thomas Delmar; Bub, the hayseed freshman, who was metamorphosed before our eyes into a college sport, was played by Olin Howland—all capital performances.

In brief, the evening was one of inoffensive gaiety, lively music held well within bounds, rare good taste in scenery and costume, and capital singing, dancing, and acting. Managers Elliott, Comstock, and Gest have dealt liberally and wisely with their public, and have every prospect of superabundant return.

About 600 Delegates Expected at State Conference, Opening Today.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Suffragists from all over the State are taking possession of Saratoga Springs tonight, preparatory to the opening of their campaign conference here tomorrow morning. The town is bedecked with the suffrage yellow and purple and with banners predicting overwhelming victory for the suffrage amendment at the polls next November.

The delegation from western New York, which is motoring from Buffalo, is due early tomorrow morning. The delegation from New York City, headed by Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse, State Chairman, is to be here as soon as possible after the Hudson River steamer Trojan, chartered by the delegation, docks at Troy tomorrow.

Patriotism will be the keynote of the conference. The suffragists will point to the part they have played in getting the State ready for defense.

James W. Gerard, ex-Ambassador to Germany, who was scheduled to speak tomorrow night at the mass meeting, telegraphed today that serious illness would prevent his being present. Governor Whitman will speak then instead of Thursday. Other speakers will be Mayor Mitchel of New York City and Congressman Charles B. Smith of Buffalo.

It is expected that about 600 delegates will attend the conference and about 400 visitors.

As the steamer Trojan moved away from her pier at Canal Street last night Mrs. John Humphrey Watkins, suffrage Chairman of Manhattan, pulled a halyard that sent aloft on the bow flagstaff the flag of the Suffrage Party. As the flag fluttered overhead under the Stars and Stripes 200 members of the party cheered and waved "Votes for Women" banners. This ceremony marked the departure for the Saratoga Springs convention.

Among those who sailed were Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Chairman of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party; Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, Treasurer; Mrs. John Blair, Publicity Chairman; Mrs. Raymond Brown, Organization Chairman; Mrs. Victor Morawetz, Chairman of the Speakers' Bureau; Dr. Katharine B. Davis, Mrs. Frank Bethell, Mrs. William Belknap of Westchester, Miss Alice Morgan Wright, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Helen Leavitt, Mrs. Louis Slade, Mrs. Charles Noel Edge, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Ella A. Boole, President of the New York Women's Christian Temperance Union; Mrs. William G. Willcox, and Mrs. Henry Bull, Chairman of the sales department.

DEFER ANNOUNCING PRICE FOR WHEAT

Commission Said to Have Reached a Conclusion, Subject to President's Approval.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—After a session which lasted until midnight the commission of twelve members, headed by Dr. Harry A. Garfield, selected to fix the price to be paid for the 1917 wheat crop, announced that no formal statement would be made for several hours. It is understood that the commission, after many hours of debate, came to a definite conclusion, but wanted the approval of President Wilson and Herbert C. Hoover, Food Administrator, before making the findings public.

It is reported that the price for the best grade of wheat will be between $2.15 and $2.30 a bushel, as predicted in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning. The members of the commission having pledged themselves not to discuss their deliberations, nothing in the nature of confirmation of this report is obtainable at this hour.

WHITMAN EXHORTS LABOR.

Opposes Lowering Protective Laws in Speech to Federation.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The New York State Federation of Labor opened its annual convention here this morning. An address was made by Governor Whitman, who reviewed in brief the labor legislation of the last year in this State and discussed the relation of labor leaders to the State and National Governments in war:

"It doesn't make so much difference in what particular occupation or employment or activity we may be engaged," said the Governor. "The outcome is going to concern us all most vitally. If we are to gain our real measure of efficiency we must not permit our people who are engaged in industrial pursuits to become apprehensive that the standards erected for their protection will be set aside; and we must not permit them to have cause to feel that the war's burdens and sacrifices may rest most heavily upon the shoulders of those least able to bear them. We should not disregard the errors of other nations with respect to the suspension of their labor laws.

"Voluntary and enthusiastic service on the part of our wage earners will result in a volume of effort and support of far greater benefit to the State and the nation than can be derived by forced labor under conditions and during hours now prohibited by law.

"Today the American workingman is fighting for the workingmen of all the world, for all the people of the world. It is not on the battlefield alone that this war is being fought; it is being waged in the workship, in the factory, and on the farm as truly as in the trenches."

Addresses of welcome were made by local labor leaders and responses by federation officers.

M'CORMICK'S BOARD TO TIGHTEN EMBARGO

State and Commerce Departments Will Be Relieved of Many Details.

BIG ORGANIZATION PLANNED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Vance McCormick, Chairman of the Administrative Board of the Exports Council, and his co-workers, all of whom are said to believe firmly in a strict rationing of neutral countries contiguous to Germany and her allies, are reported to be in complete control of the exports policy under the proclamation issued yesterday by President Wilson. With the approval of the President, it was said tonight, they would carry their convictions into effect.

A thorough and painstaking survey of the needs of neutral countries will be made in addition to the work which may have been done in the past under the supervision of the Department of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce. Some of the agents who have been at work may be retained, but it is said that others also will be engaged.

This cource, according to the view taken here tonight, makes Mr. McCormick a virtual exports dictator. The State Department and the Department of Commerce, it was said, would be relieved of much of the power which they have exerted.

Mr. McCormick began today to broaden out his organization and prepare to make it one of the largest and most important branches of the Government service. He will have at his command the information of the various branches of the Department of Commerce, but it is said that he intends to supplement these records with the results of extensive researches by his own agents.

Strict Survey of Licenses.

So sweeping were the conditions of the President's proclamation that it was apparent at once that many thousands of applications for licenses would have to be passed upon each week, a work that would demand a Governmental agency with greater resources than the Department of Commerce.

Under the McCormick régime it is understood that every application for a license, however unimportant it may appear on its face, must undergo the closest scrutiny. It is believed that in this way the Government will come into possession of facts concerning its exports trade which may prove of the greatest value. Any lead indicating that a firm is attempting to aid Germany and her allies will be run down, and the information placed in the hands of the Department of Justice.

As a preliminary step in the tightening of the embargo, it was made known today that there would be the closest investigation of all applications for the export of steel and sulphuric acid, even if it was specified that they were wanted for the manufacture of munitions. This policy will gradually be extended to all other commodities. At present no steel is permitted to leave American ports for other purposes than munition making, a complete embargo having been ordered by the President on shipbuilding steel.

In view of the developments it seemed probable today that there was little chance for any of the European neutrals contiguous to Germany and her allies, with the possible exception of Switzerland, to obtain commodities from the United States for some little time. Later it may be decided to permit small quantities of foodstuffs to pass to these neutrals, but every pound that goes into the countries will be watched by United States Government agents, and the first evidence that the drastic rules and regulations of the United States Government are being violated will be the signal for a complete shutting down.

Mexican Trade Involved.

It is understood also that the export question as it involves shipments of arms and ammunition into Mexico has been placed in the hands of Mr. McCormick and his Advisory Board.

Working with Mr. McCormick, who was named on the Advisory Commission as the representative of the State Department, are representatives of the Departmnt of Commerce, Agriculture and the Food Administration. It has been stated that his selection was at the suggestion of the White House.

The Exports Council, which is composed of Secretary of State Lansing, Secretary of Commerce Redfield, Secretary of Agriculture Houston, and Herbert Hoover, Food Administrator, will remain in existence and will be ready to provide information if asked for it by Mr. McCormick's organization.

Col. Roosevelt Views Devil Fish.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt paid a visit to the American Museum of Natural History yesterday afternoon, and had as his guests Russell J. Coles of Danville, Va., and Dr. Flavel S. Luther, President of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. Mr. Coles was the host of the Colonel on a devil fish hunt off the coast of Florida last Spring, and some time was spent in viewing the specimens presented to the Museum by Mr. Coles. Luncheon was served in the Directors' room. Mr. Coles will prepare a paper soon dealing with the value of shark meat as food and the skin of sharks for use in the manufacture of leather.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

William Faversham has completed the cast that will appear with him in Dion Calthrop's new play, "The Old Country." Jane Houston will play the leading feminine role, and other parts will be taken by Maud Milton, Katherine Brook, Cecilia Radcliffe, H. A. Tonge, Edwin Cushman, James Galloway, Robert Forsyth, Hallet Thompson, Herbert Belmore, and P. J. MacCord.

The Colonial Theatre is being redecorated, and when it is reopened late next month it will be one of the most luxurious houses on the Keith circuit.

"Rambler Rose," the musical comedy in which Julia Sanderson and Joseph Cawthorn will be seen here shortly, was produced last night in the Apollo Theatre, Atlantic City.

John Philip Sousa was unable to attend the Hippodrome premiere last week so he decided to celebrate the successful production of the new revue in Philadelphia, where he is playing his annual engagement at Willow Grove. Mr. Sousa arranged the score of the new show for his band and played the numbers at last night's concert.

The title of the new Century revue will be "Dillingham and Ziegfeld Miss 1917." Rehearsals will be begun next Monday.

Before sailing last week for London Albert de Courville, the English producer, arranged with the Shuberts to present "Maytime," in association with them in the British capital next Spring.

Adolf Bolm's ballet company will offer a new program tonight at the Booth.

MINE WORKERS ASK FOR WAGE INCREASE

MOVEMENT COUNTRY-WIDE

Letter Urges Colliers to Continue at Work and Forego Strikes as Patriotic Duty.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 28.—A substantial increase in the coal mining scale will be asked by the United Mine Workers of America, an invitation to the coal operators of the central competitive field having been extended late today to meet the miners' officials here on Sept. 6 to discuss an increase, according to a statement issued by William Green, International Secretary Treasurer of the miners.

Mr. Green said this decision had been reached at a conference of international officials of the union and Presidents of the districts of Illinois, Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, and Indiana, composing the central competitive field.

"It was decided to ask the operators for a joint conference for the purpose of having them agree to increases in the mining scale," Mr. Green explained. "If it is necessary to go further and present the claims of the United Mine Workers for an increase in wages to the Federal Government, so it will agree to increase the selling price of coal sufficiently to allow an increase in the mining scale, this will be done."

The letter of invitation to the operators says that recent developments in the coal industry have caused a pronounced spirit of unrest among the mine workers. Referring to the miners, the letter continues:

"They are of the opinion that they should receive an increase in mining prices so that their earnings would keep pace with the constantly increasing cost of the necessaries of life. They look to the coming Fall and Winter with keen apprehension. It is more than taxing their earning capacity to supply themselves with the necessaries of life.

"In so far as producing an adequate supply of coal in order to meet the national needs is concerned, they are willing to respond in the fullest and most patriotic manner. They only ask in return a wage scale commensurate with the present high cost of living."

The letter then gives the date of the conference of operators and miners and says that at that time the miners wish to present their request for an increase and their reasons therefor.

The conference here today was attended by John P. White, President; Frank J. Hayes, Vice President, and Secretary Green, of the international organization, and the following district Presidents: John Moore, Ohio; Phillip Murray, Western Pennsylvania; Edward Steward, Indiana, and Frank Farrington, Illinois.

A letter to officers and members of the United Mine Workers, also mailed today, explains the action taken at the conference, and urges that in the meantime the mine workers continue to work and refrain from engaging in strikes and cessation of work for any cause.

"You are a part of the great service army of the nation. You owe the Government at this time the best service of which you are capable. Nothing is more important to national success and national superiority than an adequate supply of coal," the letter to members of the order says.

While the conference Sept. 6 is for operators of the central competitive field only, according to the statement of Mr. Green and the letter to mine workers, it is the intention of the union to ask an increase for all its members in the United States.

SOFT COAL MEN FRAME PRICE REVISION PLEAS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Representatives of the bituminous coal industry in various parts of the country met here today to discuss Government prices and work out a plan they may ask the new coal administration to put in effect, to guarantee a fair profit. It was learned that in a number of instances operators would ask for readjustments on the ground that the present range of prices would force many mines to close down, with an attendant slowing up of production.

There was no open rebellion against the ruling of the President and Federal Trade Commission, and while some hinted that a serious condition might arise if the Government refused to give relief asked, it was evident that the operators were willing to hold off for a short time, pending negotiations, before considering more drastic action to obtain readjustments.

There were a number of operators in town today, including many from the Alabama, Tennessee, and Kentucky fields, who were predicting that rigid enforcement of the present price scale for bituminous coal at the mouth of the mine would cause 40 per cent. of the mines in those territories to close down. Some of these men suggested that an effort might be made to get the Government agencies to provide for the operation of these mines on a cost plus basis that would give the operators a guarantee of "living conditions."

CHINESE TROOPS OFFERED.

Three Generals Ready to Supply Men to Fight in France.

PEKING, Aug. 23, (Delayed.)—Generals Lo Pei-ching, Lung Chi-kwang, and Ku Chin-tan, commanding 50,000 troops of Yuman, Kwei-chow, and Kwang-tung Provinces, have offered forces for service in Europe.

The Provisional Governors of Yuman and Kwang-tung have given official recognition of Peking's declaration of war against Germany, apparently having been reconciled to the Government of the Acting President, General Feng Kwo-chang. The hostile movement in the southern provinces is now plainly a fiasco.

Eighteen provinces have approved the project for a National Council, which probably will be established within a fortnight. The press generally is urging China to present an undivided front to the enemy.

NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, AUG. 29, 1917.

WE WILL NOT TRUST THE KAISER'S WORD.

To the Pope's proposal that the Allies meet Germany in a friendly and mutually trustful negotiation the President answers that there is no one to negotiate with. On one side there are men whose words can be taken, on the other are men whose words cannot be. The negotiation would result in scraps of paper. The most frightful thing Germany did was not to invade Belgium; it was to destroy what the President calls "the confidence of all peoples everywhere in the faith of nations and the possibility of a covenanted peace." A covenant, a mutual promise, implies belief on the side of each party to it that the others will keep their word; but there can be no covenant with "the ruthless master of the German people," the "irresponsible Government which, having secretly planned to dominate the world, proceeded to carry the plan out without regard either to the sacred obligations of treaty or the long-established practices and long-cherished principles of international action and honor." When that Government went morally bankrupt, it left a vacancy on the other side of the peace conference table. There is no one there; there is no one whose word we can take. The German people can fill that vacant place if they will; but until they give us a negotiator whose word is as good as ours we cannot exchange pledges over that table.

For peace all the nations long as ardently as does the Pope; but "it would be folly to take the path of peace he points out if it does not in fact lead to the goal he proposes." It does not lead to that goal. It leads instead to miseries far greater than those through which the world is now passing; it leads to endless war and endless preparation for war. What brought this war upon the world? The plan of that "irresponsible Government" to "dominate the world." Today it stands "balked but not defeated." All it asks is a cessation of its unsuccessful war, so that, profiting by the mistakes it has made, it can plan better for the next one. How can that next war be averted? Only by destroying that plan "to dominate the world," by destroying either the power or the desire of the German Government to accomplish that domination. "This agony must not be gone through with again"; but gone through with again it surely will be if its cause, the ambition of Germany for world domination, is not destroyed now.

A peace on the basis of the status quo ante "would make it necessary to create a permanent hostile combination of nations against the German people." Instantly upon the restoration of the status quo every nation would have to begin devoting all its energies to militarism on a scale never dreamed of before. All of us, even such nations as Brazil, would have to give over the paths of peace and build great standing armies against the time when that irresponsible Government should renew its attempt at world domination. To support these armies such a burden of taxation would have to be laid upon us as the world has never seen; the product of toil and the return of capital would be soaked up in a great sponge of taxation, and the old days when workingmen and capitalists got some return for their labor and investments would be looked back upon as the Golden Age. Indeed, this path does not lead to the goal which the Pope proposes.

At present there is no longer in the world a belief in "the possibility of a covenanted peace." But it can be restored. The alternative to a covenanted peace is a dictated peace, a peace dictated by victorious nations to a beaten Germany. That will come unless Germany shall see her error in time and open the way to a covenanted peace. There can be no covenant with her present rulers; she cannot get a covenanted peace by offering a conference table at which, by winks and nods and innuendoes, she hints that her enemies can get a slice of booty, too. She can get a covenanted peace by producing negotiators on her side with whom we can covenant.

From that path the President removes the obstacles which the German rulers have pretended to see in it. They need not fear, he tells them, that we shall seek for an impairment of their sovereignty, for punitive damages, for economic revenge after the war. The German people have been taught that we seek the dismemberment of their empire, but those who tell them so will not be able to stop these clear declarations of the President from entering German minds, if, as is to be hoped, they are published there without distortion or emasculation. His words should explode that fortification of pretense which the "ruthless master of the German people" has built up to protect that people from the truth. Despite the chorus of abuse and vilification with which German organs of opinion have met each of the President's war utterances, it has not escaped observation that when the chorus dies down his words eat their way into the German mind, and it will be so with this utterance. They will know, when that inevitable chorus has had its usual exercise, that he speaks the truth; that they stand in no danger of dismemberment, of punitive damages, or of economic ruin; that all they have to do to get the peace they want is to drop their talk of territorial bargaining and "give and take" as a basis of peace, and show a willingness to rest it on "justice and fairness and the common rights of mankind."

But we will not listen to pretenses that their present rulers have come round to such a frame of mind. We are done with trickery and broken oaths. We cannot put our children to the hazard of a promise from perjured lips. We will not lead them into a quicksand. We will not, to save ourselves another year of war, pretend to trust a promise we know to be false and get out of our difficulty by shackling them permanently to militarism, standing armies, and monstrous taxes. The President offers peace to the German people, but none to men who would accept the offer with a lie in their mouths, none to men whose treaties, he says, "no man, no nation, could now depend on." We do not seek their ruin, we seek our safety and our children's. That safety we will not trust to the dice box. "We cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee of anything that is to endure." The German people can save themselves by assuring our safety, by giving us men with whom we can negotiate. They can do this by restoring our confidence in "the possibility of a covenanted peace." They can do it when they destroy their autocracy and give over its and their tyrannical ambitions. If they are blind, and will not restore "the possibility of a covenanted peace," then nothing remains but to set our hands steadfastly to the task and bring this agony to an end by a dictated peace.

LAW FOR SEDITIONARIES.

The Board of City Magistrates has found a sensible and practical means of dealing with open-air seditionaries. The City Magistrates hold that the spouters of sedition can be punished, upon due evidence from the police, under the statute defining disorderly conduct. "The reviewing courts have repeatedly determined," says Chief Magistrate McAdoo, "that any conduct in public places which, in the opinion of the Magistrate, tends to provoke a breach of the peace, even going so far as 'by word, look, or action,' comes under that offense."

The streets are for the use of all citizens, in their lawful occasions. Any limitation of free circulation on them, any temporary obstruction of them, limits for a few the right of all. A permit for a public meeting on them is not a permit for disturbance or disorder. Now to many in the crowds, the charm of the German auxiliary assemblages which, under many names, are addressed by orators of various degrees of coarseness or subtlety in emitting sedition, is the prospect of a fight, of a riot, of the excitement of physical encounter. Breaches of the peace, batteries, and worse are sure to result in the present state of the public mind.

There is the usual hypocritical talk among the anti-patriots of the right of free speech and of public assemblage. Those rights are conditioned by circumstances. When a country is fighting for its life, when the national will is fixed implacably on victory, the dissentient minority can hardly expect to howl its unpopular opinions from the common streets. There has been a good deal of free speech in Boston, but a meeting on the Common to denounce our French allies in 1778 would have raised a goodly crop of broken heads. A meeting of the Friends of Southern Freedom in Union Square in April, 1865, would have been dangerous to its participants, and if there were any abolitionists in Vicksburg or Richmond during the civil war, they knew enough to refrain from public speech.

The potentialities of grave trouble exist in these street-corner harangues. We are only at the beginning of the war. When the nation, like KIPLING's Irish Regiment, has "seen its dead," when our soldiers are falling for the cause which the itinerant preachers of sedition are doing their worst, directly or indirectly, to defeat, the public anger might take severe forms. The origins of disorder should be repressed now, before they have time to grow into something worse.

OUR TRAINED CITIZENRY.

In preparing to make the weight of this nation felt on the battle fronts we have had little time to spare for parades and the kind of military pageantry which always stirs the popular feeling. In fact, the popular feeling has been in need of no extra stirring. The sentiment of the loyal citizens, who form a majority so huge that in a survey of the country the disloyal and the poltroons would seem negligible, has been keyed to the war pitch since April. The people of this country are self-possessed and quiet, but they are wide awake. As a whole, they have only contempt for the pacifists and other propagandists who vainly try to obstruct war preparations. Nevertheless it was wise and timely to set apart a day for New York to express its appreciation of the fine spirit of its National Guardsmen who are nearly ready for training behind the battle lines. Tomorrow's parade of a full division of the National Guard, preceded by the divisional headquarters staff and Major Gen. O'RYAN, will be such a military spectacle, in its significance, as this city has not seen in more than fifty years. While the soldiers who will parade have not yet had their war orders, all are going immediately into camps where they will undergo intensive training, preliminary to their departure for European ports.

The town seems filled with soldiers. The olive drab uniforms are seen everywhere, on the streets, in the restaurants and theatres, but we have had as yet no military demonstration on a large scale. When tomorrow 28,000 or more men, carrying their full packs, march from 110th Street on Fifth Avenue to the Washington Arch, they will be saying farewell in the ancient military way to their homes. Leaves of absence will be rare in the next few months, and after that time the soldiers will be occupied in the grim business of war. Parents, sisters, sweethearts of the men in line will crowd the stands and windows along the line of march and make up a large part of the throngs on the sidewalks. Though a small number of men, in comparison with the millions involved in the military operations which now occupy most of the world's attention, 25,000 is a goodly number to be drawn from the civilian life of even the largest city, and at least that number of the men who will be in the line are residents of New York who have been engaged in many activities. They are truly citizen soldiers. Some of them, a fairly large proportion, have had good military training, all have learned at least the first rudiments of soldiering. They fitly represent the patriotism and the brawn of this metropolis. They are of widely varying origin, descended from natives of many European States. There are men of German descent among them, loyal citizens of the Republic whose sole allegiance is to the United States.

It will be a day of great rejoicing, but the undercurrent of feeling will be serious. These soldiers know, and so do their relatives, that war is not child's play, and that they are taking their places in an army organized for work and not for show. It must be borne in mind that, besides these three brigades and the extra troops, some of the city's National Guardsmen are already at the Southern camp, and that many others are attached to the Forty-second Division in camp at Mineola. But the remainder is sufficiently representative. The people who watch this march of five hours on the principal avenue will get a very clear idea of what loyalty, the martial spirit, and the will to win have made of our citizen soldiery.

THE WAR REVENUE BILL.

Senator LA FOLLETTE introduced into the Senate yesterday amendments to the War Revenue bill providing for excess-profits taxes of from 38 to 76 per cent. The La Follettian theory of taxation is expressed by La Follette's Magazine thus:

> The forces of autocracy are lined up against the forces of democracy. This time, however, the little group of "willful" Senators who opposed the conscription of men are fighting valiantly for the conscription of wealth. Members of the Senate who so enthusiastically voted for the conscription of men are now declaiming on the danger to this country of doing anything to "disturb business" or property.

Taxation that disturbs and discourages business, that tends to dry up the sources of taxation, is disapproved by all students of taxation not of the La Follettian school. The little group of willful men in the Senate, having fought conscription, now fights the means of making it effective. Obstruction and delay are the weapons of that group. Senator TOWNSEND of Michigan, an advocate of higher excess taxes than were agreed upon by the Senate Finance Committee, sees the game. He is among the signers of the petition for closure of the debate on the bill. He says that, while he is not in favor of all its details, he wants the Senate to vote on it. So does the country.

There is no purpose of "throttling debate," as Senator BORAH intimated. There has been interminable talk on the bill. The excess-profits tax is an irresistible temptation to Senators who, like HIRAM JOHNSON of California, confuse political economy with rhetoric and cry that "when we conscript the blood of the nation, we must conscript the wealth coined from that blood." With his singular notion of the origin of wealth, no wonder Senator JOHNSON proposes a flat tax of 73 per cent. on excess profits. Doubtless he is surprised by his own moderation.

Presumably in reliance upon the all-saving excess-profits tax, the Senate yesterday rejected the amendment for a one-cent tax on letters and postal cards. It would have yielded $50,000,000 a year. It would have been easy of collection and generally distributed. Possibly, as in the case of the stamp tax, the Senate does not like to think in terms of mere millions.

It is to be hoped that the Senate will reach an agreement speedily upon an excess-profits tax, not too severe, not likely to impair industry or to drive out of business the concerns working on a moderate margin. It is not wise or safe to go too far at first. Resources of taxation must not be exhausted.

NO HELP FOR THE ENEMY.

Those northern European neutral countries which sent commissions here to ask for shipments of food have a reply in the President's proclamation concerning exports. This officially and publicly announces rules which really have been in force since July 15, so far as neutrals are affected, and it so increases the number of products then named that nothing essential is omitted. Even gold and bullion are, or soon will be, included, for there have recently been exports of gold which were not explained by trade conditions. Germany will not receive American gold by way of neutral countries, in loans or as pay for coal. Mr. WILSON sets forth clearly our Government's policy in the following words:

> Our own domestic needs must be adequately safeguarded, and there is the added duty of meeting the necessities of all the nations at war with the Imperial German Government. After these needs are met, it is our wish and intention to minister to the needs of the neutral nations as far as our resources permit. This task will be discharged without other than the very proper qualification that the liberation of our surplus products shall not be made the occasion of benefit to the enemy, either directly or indirectly.

It should not be overlooked that products in the long list may still be sent to the neutrals "at such time or times, and under such regulations and orders, and subject to such limitations and exemptions as the President shall prescribe."

So far as can be learned, licenses for exports to those countries have not been granted since July 15, with the exception that Sweden has exchanged a cargo of wheat for one of rye, and it is reported that Switzerland has been permitted to take small quantities of grain. Negotiations for the release of thirty Dutch ships are pending. It is expected that they will be allowed to depart with their cargoes of wheat upon condition that two-thirds of this grain shall be used for the suffering Belgians. But they must unload the fodder grain which was put on board with the wheat.

There is evidence that the neutrals need imports of food. Their new crops, like Germany's, are deficient, and they have sold to Germany much more than their people could spare. But they keep on selling to our enemy, whose submarines have sunk nearly 1,000 of their ships, with 700 sailors, and this country will not fill the gap. We shall not assist Switzerland in feeding Swiss residents in Germany or the prisoners from the armies of our allies who are held in that country. Every day there is new proof that Germany's need of imports, food and war material, from the neutrals is greater now than at any time in the last three years. For lack of cotton cloth, paper must be used to cover the dead in coffins, want of food causes riots and strikes, and all the church bells have gone to munition factories. The President's proclamation says to the world that Germany will receive no American food, cotton, or war metals. We shall not help her to kill our soldiers.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They're Not Reluctant to Serve.

To what seems to be, and so far as reported is, the unanimous as well as the earnest advice of the medical profession that the more advanced students in the medical schools be exempted from immediate draft as soldiers, only two reasons for refusal to act on that advice have been given. The one that comes from the Secretary of War is that by no legal interpretation of the statute as it stands is there warrant for the exemption of a professional class, as such. The other is a computation whereby the Provost Marshal General figures out that as only one-fourteenth of the 12,000,000 men of draft age in the country are to be called out, the number of medical students to be taken is so small that their removal from the schools is not a matter of sufficient importance to demand, at a time like the present, any interference with the prompt raising of the new armies.

As for the first reason, its cogency is indubitable. Nobody is asking, however, that the law be violated; the request is that it be so changed as to bring it into closer accord with the purpose of a selective draft, which is to put as many men as possible in positions where their several abilities can be best utilized, not for their own advantage, but for that of the nation.

To the Provost Marshal General's argument, The New York Medical Journal replies that while his computation is correct as regards the whole population, it is wrong when applied to the medical students. Almost all of them are in perfect health, almost all of them are citizens, and almost all of them are unmarried. As a result, almost all of them who are called before the examining boards will be passed for service. Not one-fourteenth, but a much larger fraction, will become good soldiers, indeed, but no better soldiers than others of like intelligence and strength, while their years of preparation to be doctors and surgeons will have been wasted.

Nobody is asking for these young men, and they are not asking for themselves, the privilege of permanent escape from military service and its dangers. The desire simply is that they may wait until they have attained competency to do for the army the highly specialized work for which they are preparing. After they have been graduated, neither in nor out of their profession will there be any thought of freeing them from the common obligation resting on all good and loyal citizens.

A Lesson Needed by Critics.

Mr. HOWELLS, in the review by him of HAMLIN GARLAND's autobiography which appeared last Sunday in THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW, put in words of characteristic charm a principle or theory of criticism too often violated by critics as much less wise as they are less kindly than the dean of American letters. "I ought, perhaps," he wrote, "to have found fault with it, but in calling it unique I did not mean to call it faultless." Then, after something of explanation, he adds: "There is little blame that I could give it, and that only in certain unimportant details which I should be ashamed to have touched upon in my sense of the great praise due it."

It was the opportunity to give deserved praise that Mr. HOWELLS valued, not that of emphasizing excuses for finding fault. This is, or at any rate must have been in the past, an unusual attitude for the critic's mind to take, for if it were or had been a common one the verb "to criticise," which ought to mean only "to judge," would not have come to have, as it does, the next to exclusive connotation of condemning. And Mr. KIPLING is not alone in having noticed that "the youngest critic" is apt to be more severe than his elders in the profession, and to take in the hurling of thunderbolts at the object of his remarks vastly more pleasure than in decorating it or him with laurels, roses, and other honorific herbs.

The example of Mr. HOWELLS is commended, not only to all young critics of literature and art, but also to all citizens who undertake to pass judgment upon their neighbors or the appointed authorities. In this category we would include those patriotic but irritable citizens who are frequently minded to criticise the Washington Administration for its conduct of the war. Too often they ignore the great results already achieved and lay much stress upon minor details of neglect or mismanagement.

Discipline Linked to Efficiency.

General PERSHING, as a soldier with a record made in more fields than one where the practicalities of war alone counted and its nonessentials could be ignored, more safely than carpet warriors could tell the American troops in France that to salute correctly and to dress in strict accord with regulations are not trivial matters, but matters of great importance. Of course he did not mean that other things—courage, for instance, and the intelligence that creates initiative and readiness in meeting sudden and unexpected emergencies—were not more important.

Between the two classes of qualities, however, there is, the General insists in his latest orders, no incompatibility. On the contrary, he says in effect, they go so well together that in the absence of the one the chances of finding the other are—well, not many. Indeed, he goes a little further than that, for he writes:

"The Commander in Chief presents this matter of uniform and saluting as one in which the pride of every member of the American expeditionary forces compels to neatness, smartness, and attention to personal appearance, which in all armies invariably accompany discipline and efficiency."

Americans are suspected, and even accused, not infrequently, of expecting to attain efficiency without discipline, or of letting the former be decreased out of a national dislike for the latter. There is something of basis, probably, for both the suspicions and the accusations, but the faults are not irremediable and war will cure them as nothing else would. That is one of war's few merits.

A FRENCH WOMAN'S APPEAL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the Paris Echo, a paper which I am accustomed to read, I often find extracts and even whole articles from your New York newspapers. These articles are an evidence of the esteem and interest which you feel regarding the French people. It is this esteem and this interest on your part which make me bold enough to address a request to you.

We have in France a class which is called the bourgeoisie, and which suffers more than any other from the bitter trial of the war. No one pays any attention to it, and it dares not encroach on its small income. If a lady wishes to work she must apply to the shops, which in most cases exploit her, for it is not customary to see society women working.

Nevertheless, in face of the trials which we have to undergo, Frenchwomen who are skilled in all kinds of manual work would be happy to find some American sisters who would be willing to help them by providing a market for them. We are able to produce some very beautiful things and would be glad of an opportunity to prove it.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A young man away from home and friends for the first time in his life writes to me from France:

> I have been here six weeks and have not yet received one line from home, although I know my mother writes to me constantly. I used to be the happiest fellow in camp when the postman hove in sight. Not so now. I have been disappointed too often.

Out of thirteen letters which I have written to the same boy he had received up to Aug. 8 but four.

From Massachusetts a mother writes to me:

> Poor Ned has not received a single package of the many we have sent him and only one letter in two months. He is very blue over it.

Other friends of the ambulance boys under the American Red Cross in France tell the same story. Is the fault with the Red Cross or with the postal service? Or are German U-boats making a specialty of Ambulance Corps mail bags? Somebody ought to find out.

An Ex-Confederate Tells of Its Courage as He Saw It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It might be inquired as to what an antiquated high private in "Lee's Miserables" could have known specifically of any part of the military career of an Irish regiment serving on the "other side" in the civil war. I will tell you.

The appellation "Fighting Sixty-ninth" is in nowise a misfit. The writer served with Kershaw while he was successively Colonel, Brigadier, and Major General; and it happened that this identical Sixty-ninth Regiment repeatedly haunted our front on diverse battlefields throughout the "disagreement."

On Sunday, July 21, 1861, the Irish regiment filed out of a wood at Bull Run, bearing the most prodigiously large American flag I have ever seen carried in an infantry line. As the Sixty-ninth, followed by the Seventy-first, the Seventy-ninth New York, and the Fourteenth Brooklyn emerged into the open field 300 feet in front of the Confederates, they received the salutation of our first volleys, and immediately halted in line of battle, taking up the argument. This conflict continued with stubbornness until the "break" of the afternoon.

I recall that Corcoran, Colonel of the Sixty-ninth, and Wood, Colonel of the Fourteenth Brooklyn, were captured, and that Colonel Cameron of the Seventy-ninth was killed. But these details are irrelevant at this time.

Again, around Richmond a year later the Sixty-ninth rose before us at Malvern Hill; again at Antietam and elsewhere; and, in fact, all the way along to the end of the war.

But the real fame of the Sixty-ninth seems to have been won at Fredericksburg in the frightful action in December, 1862. Kershaw's South Carolina brigade was holding the celebrated stone wall at the base of Marye's Hill against the sixth charge in mass which had been made that day. This forlorn and fatal assault was made by Meagher's Irish Brigade at the close of the short early Winter afternoon.

Paralleling the stone wall only a hundred yards away was a sudden declivity across the battlefield and extending several hundred feet. This depression was so suggestive of some degree of temporary escape from the Confederate musketry fire that each of the five masses of attack had faltered there; for to rise a foot or two to the elevated area next our works would have been to project directly past a most obvious "dead line."

From their position on Stafford Heights these Irishmen could see that not a soldier in all those five assaults had spanned that deadly depression. Thus, when it came the turn of Meagher to attempt to smash the Confederates in the dark of the evening his men, with cheers and yells, leaped to the higher side and dashed for the stone wall.

It is historical that they might have done this almost unperceived by the Confederates; but their terrific racket on realizing the great feat thus accomplished drew an instant and most deadly response from the crouching muskets of Kershaw's troops, who were aligned behind the wall, presenting eight ranks of men to meet this not altogether unlooked for effort at surprise.

Of Meagher's 1,200 Irishmen 1,000 were killed or wounded within the twenty minutes consumed in the unusual combat. It was an awful slaughter.

As soon as the firing ceased, General Kershaw ordered details over the wall to help the poor fellows piled in heaps along our front, and the moans of many of whom it was agonizing to hear.

Fifteen feet from the wall I stumbled in the darkness upon a poor fellow breathing out his life through a lung wound. He declined help, for he knew he was doomed. He was the nearest soldier to our work, though others were scattered not very far behind him; but all these were already dead.

Stooping at his side, I asked, "What's your command?"

"Sixty-ninth New York, Meagher's Brigade," he gasped, and soon after was dead.

Of the 12,000 Federal loss that day, 7,000 lay in front of our line, which was less than 400 feet in length.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The answer to the submarine is the submarine merchantman. We should begin the construction of a fleet of such ships at once, and, which might be as important, let Germany know that we are building them.

The German mind is full of stuff about submarines. The moral effect of such an announcement in Germany might bring things to a crisis sooner than otherwise. The German rulers know that the submarine is their last card. J. R. BELKNAP.

THE AWAKENER.

O land, anathema to all the world,
Whose barbarous deeds have rocked the very earth
And Amity from her high throne have hurled,
Have slain fair Commerce and have strangled Mirth,
The dullest prophet can foretell your fate,
Though, for your downfall, men impatient wait!

The tale of your dark crime appalls mankind,
Once awed by your achievements and your skill.
Now you have grown a madman, furious, blind,
Your seeming aim to ravage and to kill,
Distorting Science to a purpose base,

Yet through the very harshness of your deeds,
Your labored ingenuity of guile,
You prove the spur that this great Nation needs!
We'd lounged indifferent far too long a while.
You rudely waked us from complacent dreams,
Yet was your act more kindly than it seems!

Lo! Up and down this wonderful great land
Has gone a conscious thrill of strength and might!
Now active grow each brain and heart and hand,
Where once was merely mildew, sloth, and blight,
And each one finds new pressing tasks to do,
Stung by the lash that's wielded well by you!

In workshop, field and garden, clattering mill,
The plain home kitchen, land and sea and air,
In chemist's laboratory, on the timbered hill,
You've started action, effort, everywhere.
O Germany, the land now held in scorn,

ANSWERS A DRAFT WAIL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When an admitted "shouter for war" like the "married man who has been drafted," who wrote of his woes in last Sunday's TIMES, finds that war may be "disconcerting" to his private affairs, or "not always pleasant" in its effects to his friends or family, and writes that he might "not be consulted" in the deliberations of a draft board, there appears to be a possibility that this man may have an exaggerated individualistic point of view on the subject.

I am under nearly opposing circumstances to the "shouter for war," except that I live in a similar district in New York, and would not be surprised if it were the same one. It is, as he describes his own, part middle class and part slums; furthermore it filled its quota by examining only a small percentage of men.

I am single, have no dependents, and am apparently physically fit. Doubtless the Draft Board will accept me when my turn comes. I am by no means a shouter for war, (with a Liberty bond in my pocket rather than a flag on my coat lapel,) but when I am called I positively will not "feel sore," except on one condition. That condition is that they don't let the men like "Shouter for War" out of the draft because of "inconvenience" to their family affairs.

It honestly appears to me that this man is trying to "hide behind women's skirts," if that obnoxious term can ever be applied truthfully. One thing I admire in him, and that is his frankness. He says:

"I and other married men and our families are being made to suffer privation ranging all the way from discomfort to want." Does he think that most men called to war do not suffer? What does he think of those men with two or three children who have been called in small Connecticut towns?

He expresses "a genuine desire to do something to help beat the Germans," but evidently it must be something that won't inconvenience him. His wife must not think of being a stenographer again. That, evidently, had not been the family plan, and although the Germans must be beaten, it must not trouble any one at home. Although he believes in the "War for Democracy," the wife and mother cannot possibly change their living standards to exist on the combined pay of a good stenographer, $1,700 a year of a Second Lieutenant, and $4.50 a week from outside sources, minus only expenses for tobacco, writing paper, and odds and ends, which "Shouter for War" insists every good soldier must have.

The "man who is sore" says that his board "swept in every man who looked reasonably fit" and then announces that he magnanimously has no objection to this procedure. He is very fit, and would be taken anyway. All right, go right ahead, he evidently reasons, and take anybody that can possibly get by the physical test, even if he isn't exactly in shape, so long as you don't take everybody "reasonably fit," from the angle of dependents. I suppose he believes it all right for the New England draft board to accept a man with a glass eye, who has now appealed to the Governor of his State, as long as the same board did not take any man with a wife who might be inconvenienced by doing the work she was accustomed to before she married.

I am absolutely unable to understand how a man who makes the profession of the first following paragraph can appeal from the mildest of war's inconveniences as voiced in the second. I am just quoting the words of "Shouter for War" from different parts of his story.

> When America entered the war I saw the hopes which I had cherished since the Lusitania was sunk and since the Bryce reports on Belgium were published realized at last.

> It is rather disconcerting for a man struggling with his own economic problems to find that an exemption board has, without consulting him, saddled him with the support of his aunt, whose son has been drafted, whose husband has been called to the colors.

The sinking of the Lusitania was a crime and the ravages of Belgium were worse, but neither evidently could justify an American "Shouter for War" helping the mother of a relative who left to defend America against the enemy in a war in which the shouter glories.

"Shouter for War" makes his assertions like a man. But I think they indict him as what is at best termed a "squealer." I don't believe he is a slacker, or would be; he just magnifies his own troubles, and thinks the Exemption Board is "picking on him." Now, here is my status, and if any one thinks I am a squealer or anything else I won't feel "sore" for his saying so:

I recently was graduated from a local university after four years. I am in business in New York. I have been engaged to a girl for more than a year. I am not over-enthusiastic about the war, although I believe the Allies must win, and Americans must do their part. I see little glory in military affairs. But when my number is called I will not claim any exemption. If I am not called right away, I will be married, but the girl and myself both agree that I will not claim exemption even then, for any reason—and she would certainly have to earn her living if I went to war.

"Shouter for War" probably thinks I am one of the "guys they ought to get first." Well, I have ambition, and plans, and every other thing he has, except a desire to get out of the draft because of "inconvenience." The conscription law was put over as democratic and giving every one as fair a chance as gambling devices and the law of chance can provide. The cards were played in the big glass jar at Washington, and evidently the "Shouter" drew a pair of queens while I have three jacks in my hand. Should he get his ante back just because he is feeling sleepy and doesn't care to play this round? It probably would "inconvenience" him. F. G. P.

An Appeal for a Struggling Mother.

Toiling long hours into the night, Mary G., then but a young girl, labored for years over the artificial flowers which, while giving much pleasure to others, meant to her only a meager existence and a constant backache. Then, with her good husband and her own home, came release from the killing work. It was all a thing of the past, Mary thought, and though she was not so strong as she had been, good care and happiness did much to wipe out the past. With her two fine boys life seemed full of promise and her husband's sudden death was quite beyond her comprehension.

It was then, when the burden of supporting her boys fell upon her, that Mary felt the full penalty of her years of exacting toil. At 38 she is worn out, suffering from acute heart disease and failing eyesight—both directly traceable to the work of years before. To help this broken mother keep her home and her boys and regain some semblance of health, the Charity Organization Society asks for $300, which will provide food, rent, and good care for the rest of the year. Gifts sent to the office, 105 East Twenty-second Street, will be gratefully acknowledged.

COMMITTEE VOTES HIGHER PROFITS TAX

DONE AS A COMPROMISE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—To meet objections to certain features of the War Revenue bill the Senate Finance Committee tonight reached a tentative agreement intended to placate advocates of drastic conscription of wealth. The committee practically agreed to augment the tax on excess war profits by $300,000,000, making an aggergate levy upon those profits of $862,000,000.

This tentative agreement was reached after a prolonged conference at which Chairman Simmons again urged compromise. While most of the members of the committee considered the $562,000,000 tax on excess war profits now carried in the bill as sufficient at this time, they realized the urgency of some agreement that would dissipate the violent opposition that threatened to tie up the measure for an indefinite time.

As framed by the Finance Committee, the levy on excess war profits is approximately 26 per cent.; under the tentative agreement reached tonight the average levy would be about 45 per cent. While Senator Johnson of California wants a 73-per cent. levy and others demand 80 per cent., it is believed that the compromise will prevail.

The necessity of quick action to save the War Revenue bill from being radically amended became apparent today when the Senate, by a vote of 39 to 29, discarded the House provision, backed by the Finance Committee, of a raise in first-class postal rates from 2 to 3 cents an ounce. This action came as a sharp surprise to Senator Simmons, sponsor of the bill. By eliminating the increase the Senate threw out a $56,000,000 annual levy. To make it up the Finance Committee turned to excess war profits.

While discarding the extra postage tax, the Senate, on motion of Senator Hardwick of Georgia, retained the Finance Committee's proposal for free postage for soldiers writing home, whether from France, or from camp in their own country.

La Follette Offers Amendments.

Senator La Follette offered eight alternative amendments to the Revenue measure. He hopes that some one of them will be accepted. His proposed levies begins with a flat tax of 76 per cent. on war profits, bringing a yield of $2,280,000,000. The amendments run down, by stages of 4 per cent. to 48 per cent. with a yield of $1,440,000,000. Senator La Follette bases his estimates on assumed war profits of $3,000,000,000 for this year.

Senator Borah of Idaho favors a levy of 80 per cent. and expects to offer an amendment to that effect. He figures that the corporations will put away $4,500,000,000 in war profits this year. He advocates a tax yield from them of $3,000,000,000, which would raise the aggregate of the War Revenue bill to $4,500,000,000.

The Senate occupied the day with debate on the proposed postage increases. Senator Weeks of Massachusetts opposed the contemplated raise in second-class postage from one cent to one and one-quarter cents a pound. He argued that to raise newspaper postage now would work a severe hardship to the smaller publications.

"While I have been in favor of increasing the second-class rates, I do not think this is the time for it," said Senator Weeks. "This great industry is now laboring under serious embarrassment because of war conditions, its expenses having mounted greatly.

"If the Government has given a subsidy to the newspapers in a low rate of carriage through the mails, it is the fault of the Government, which wanted the newspapers distributed. Having permitted a great business to be developed under this mail system, is it fair or reasonable to change it at the time when the industry is encountering its heaviest possible burdens?

"Every one from the President down who has had anything to do with the revenue legislation has reiterated that taxes ought to be levied so that they would not materially damage any enterprise. This legislation would materially damage the great newspaper industry.

Substitute Plans.

Senator McKellar of Tennessee urged his substitute for the second-class postage section, leaving the present cent-a-pound rate operative within 300 miles, and increasing the rates by zones beyond. Senator Smoot declared the McKellar plan would bankrupt many publications.

A new substitute provision drawn and indorsed by the Post Office Department was presented and supported by Senator Hardwick of Georgia. It would leave unchanged the present rate in the first and second parcel post zones, but establish a graduated system of increased rates on advertising portions in other zones. It would raise $14,520,000 additional revenue next year, as compared with $3,000,000 proposed by the pending bill, and $12,000,000 under Mr. McKellar's amendment.

Senator Brady introduced an amendment for a tax of $1 per $100 cash value of second-hand automobiles and motor cycles costing less than $2,000, in lieu of the bill's provision for a 10 per cent. tax reduction on each year's use.

RUSH FOR SHIP LICENSES.

New York Exporters Think Embargo Will Stop Nearly All of Trade.

Shippers here declared yesterday that a drastic readjustment of outgoing trade from this port to neutral Europe would follow from President Wilson's latest embargo proclamation, which prohibits after tomorrow the exportation of all articles of commerce to the European neutrals except under special license granted by the Export Administrative Council. Shippers having relations with Scandinavia, Holland, Spain, and Switzerland thought that practically all of New York's export trade to the countries named would come to at least a temporary halt.

As soon as the full purport of the proclamation was understood there was a rush to the local offices of the Export License Bureau at 11 Broadway. The bureau, which had moved from the Custom House at the close of business on Monday, was hampered because carpenters had not completed the remodeling of the offices, which had formerly been occupied by the German Consul General. P. K. Condict, head of the local office, and his assistants handled the crowd of applicants for licenses and the seekers for information to the best of their ability. While a large number of applications to ship commodities to the European neutral countries were received, it was understood that comparatively few licenses were actually granted, the bulk of the applications being referred to Washington for final disposition.

While Mr. Condict refused to make any statement regarding the bureau's action, steamship representatives and exporters generally left the offices with the conviction that licenses would be granted only in the most urgent cases and after thorough investigation. Many shipments scheduled to leave here today or tomorrow will be held up, and sailings delayed. It was believed that in some instances vessels already laden and whose cargoes were destined for neutral European ports would have to unload.

Latest available statistics of Custom House shipments to Scandinavia and the other continental neutrals showed yesterday that shipments of meat and fats were at a minimum, the bulk of these products going to Entente countries. Pickled beef shipments in June to the Netherlands amounted to 3,048,058 pounds, valued at $347,741, but July statistics showed little or nothing in the meat line shipped to any of the other European neutrals.

SEDITIOUS DISORDER BRINGS 30-DAY TERM

JUSTICE SNITKIN ASSAULTED

Russell Dunne, the speaker who assailed the Jews in a speech in Madison Square last Saturday afternoon and precipitated a fight, was sentenced to one month in the workhouse by Magistrate McQuade in Men's Night Court last night.

Dunne's defense was that he didn't aim his disparaging remarks at Jews, and he and his witnesses laid great emphasis on the allegation that he had not mentioned the word "Jew," but after hearing the testimony of a score or more of witnesses, the Magistrate found Dunne guilty.

"Let this be a warning to you," said the Magistrate, "and to those like you who use your methods. We don't want men of your kind in this country. You are sentenced to one month in the workhouse, and I hope it will teach you a lesson."

As he was leaving the court building, Justice Leonard A. Snitkin of the Municipal Court, who had caused the arrest of Dunne, was attacked in the corridor and severely beaten, being struck repeatedly in the face. The uproar attracted a number of policemen and detectives, and two arrests were made by Detective Deitch. The prisoners gave their names as Charles McGee of 304 Tenth Street, Brooklyn, and Jerome Mullen of 484 Ninth Street, Brooklyn.

The courtroom was crowded almost to suffocation and the pronouncement of the verdict brought a round of cheers from the auditors. Many Jews present were in military uniform.

The witnesses for the prosecution said that not only did Dunne refer to Jews by name, but that he did so repeatedly. It was said that he often directed his abusive remarks to "button-hole slackers," and then said: "Do you get me?" One of the remarks credited to him and which was resented by Joseph Friedlander, a soldier, was: "They are the people who will be selling lemonade behind the lines while the other people are fighting." Irving Weinzweig of the Warheit was among those who testified to Dunne's offensive statements.

When Dunne's action in speaking as he did Saturday afternoon made it too hot for him in Madison Square he was escorted to a waiting automobile more than a block away by a cordon of policemen. Because they refused to arrest him charges have been made against the Sergeants in charge. Justice Snitkin of the Municipal Court was one of those who insisted upon Dunne's arrest, and it was through his activity that Dunne was later arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct in that he had tended to incite a riot.

Dunne has been for some time in the habit of making inflammatory speeches in which he has tried to stir up religious prejudice. He traveled around in his own motor car and had a considerable following who acted as claquers at his meetings.

WILL DEFY MAGISTRATES.

Friends of Irish Freedom Declare Attacks on England Will Go On.

John D. Moore, National Secretary of the Friends of Irish Freedom, declared last night that at its meeting tonight at Thirty-seventh Street and Broadway, speakers would continue their attacks on England in spite of the opinion of the Magistrates that such action constituted a breach of the peace.

"We are going ahead with our meetings notwithstanding the choke-free-speech statement of Chief Magistrate McAdoo, which is plainly inspired by Mayor Mitchel," said Mr. Moore. "We never quit."

In a message to Magistrate McAdoo Mr. Moore said:

"No Board of Magistrates appointed by a pistol-shooting Mayor is going to repeal the Constitution of the United States. You might as well understand that now.

In a letter to Mayor Mitchel Mr. Moore accused him of putting up "a plain, ordinary job." "You are Mayor of New York," he wrote, "simply because you are John Mitchel's grandson.

The American Defense Society yesterday sent a letter to Chief Magistrate McAdoo praising him for the decision of the Magistrates that the laws are sufficient to cope with seditious street speaking.

Frank E. Wolfe, one of the foremost Socialists of the Pacific Coast, sent a telegram to the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy yesterday condemning all pacifist propaganda.

The People's Council wrote to Local Union No. 3 of the Bookbinders, asking support for their propaganda. D. T. Davies, Secretary of the union, sent a reply to the council, in which he said:

"Your communication of Aug. 17 has been received, and in reply wish to say that when the same was read at our meeting which was held Friday evening, Aug. 24, it was the wish of our members that said communication be thrown in the waste basket. We are at a loss to know by what authority our name has been placed on your mailing list, and you are hereby instructed to cancel same immediately."

BAILEY WAIVES IMMUNITY.

Witness in Reynolds Investigation Now 'Satisfactory,' Says Prosecutor

Frank Bailey, Vice President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, who refused to sign a waiver of immunity before the special Grand Jury investigating the purchase by the city of Rockaway Park and Coney Island properties, changed his mind yesterday and signed the waiver. Clark Jordan, his attorney, said in his behalf:

"Mr. Bailey refused to sign a waiver because he was not a lawyer and did not understand the significance of the paper. Now that he knows, and inasmuch as he has nothing to conceal, he has gone before the Grand Jury and told everything he knows. My client is a public-spirited man, and has nothing to hide."

Assistant District Attorney William Harmon Black admitted that Mr. Bailey was making a very satisfactory witness. It was on his testimony that ex-Senator William H. Reynolds was indicted on a charge of perjury arising out of his appraisal of the Seaside Park tract. Assistant District Attorney Kilroe, who has made an examination, said he had learned from the books of the State Tax Board that in 1912 ex-Senator Reynolds swore that Dreamland Park was not worth the $470,000 which had been paid for it. Two months later, according to Mr. Kilroe, he declared under oath that the property was valued at $1,500,000.

GERMAN PARTY ADDS WOMEN TO COMMITTEE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 28, (via London.)—The National Liberal Party, which has in its ranks many sympathizers with the Pan Germans and Conservatives, surprised Germany on Saturday by a sudden fit of modernization. At a meeting of the General Committee of the party a memorial by the National Liberal Women's Society of Cologne was submitted, asking that all women's societies be represented in the Central Committee of the National Liberal Party.

Much to the surprise of the women themselves, the Executive Committee voted for their admission, and granted them full-fledged representatives.

Suffragettes Out on Bail Again Taken Into Custody.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Ten women carrying banners of suffrage colors and extracts from President Wilson's speeches were arrested late today in front of the White House. Six of them were the banner carriers out on bond pending appeals granted yesterday from police court sentences of $25 fines or thirty days in jail imposed for a similar demonstration.

All were bailed to appear tomorrow for trial.

NEW LIBERTY LOAN POSTERS

The exhibition of Liberty Loan posters at the galleries of the Art Alliance of America, 10 East Forty-second Street, includes more than 150 works submitted in competition for the prizes offered by New York bankers and the Federal Women's Liberty Loan Committee.

The first prize of $150 for the poster "having the highest artistic qualities combined with the power to induce subscriptions" goes to B. Hoyt's figure of Liberty in armor, with the inscription, "Your Gold is Liberty's Armor." The artistic quality is unquestionable. The fine drawing and restrained color are notable among garish and commonplace designs, and the fact that it does not attract attention from a distance is balanced by its power to hold attention at closer range. The real difficulty with it is its complete neglect of its special function, to enlist subscribers to the second issue of Liberty bonds. This fortunately can be remedied by adding to the legend and making it more readable by strengthening the lettering. It would have been a pity to rule out a distinguished piece of work for its lack of the qualities that can easily be taught and that are only important as adjuncts to a fine design.

The second prize of $100 goes to S. Tama for a poster that has every characteristic of an effective announcement card. The design is a large key, clever in pattern, including the letters "U. S." and a suggestion of the Stars and Stripes without impairing its practical key character or giving a look of foolish ornament. It dashes boldly across a gray background and a bit of crimson ribbon fastens a tag to it. The lettering in black and white is strong and easily read, and informs the observer that the Liberty bonds is the "Key to Peace" and that he should buy one. It is a straightforward, firm drawing, excellent in spacing and in the arrangement of the three tones employed—quite the best poster in the exhibition, all things considered, and one that should be used for the good of the country.

The competition has brought out very few original ideas and the work in general is feeble, although a fair number of competent posters could be chosen from the group. The exhibition lasts only through Thursday of this week, as on Friday the prize posters will be sent to the Treasury Department in Washington for the final selection of those to be purchased.

LUSTGARTEN LOSSES GROW.

No Word from Missing President Leads to Belief He Is Still Alive.

No word was received yesterday as to the whereabouts of William Lustgarten, the missing head of the Tax Lien Company of New York, who disappeared on Aug. 16, leaving the affairs of the company in a tangle and a series of letters in which he threatened to "drop into New York Bay." The expert accountant, under the direction of F. C. Leubuscher and Seth Sprague Terry, the receivers, is still at work on the books. While no official statement was forthcoming as to the amount that it is charged has been misappropriated, there is a belief among some of the creditors that when the final account is made it will be disclosed that the liabilities of the Tax Lien Company are in excess of the $700,000 mentioned in the receivership petition.

WHEAT IN MONTANA MAY STILL BE HIGH

I. W. W. HINDERS FARM WORK

"Wheat in Montana this year is this high despite the dry weather in June and July," said the Rev. Dr. L. J. Christler, known in his diocese as the "Bishop of All Outdoors," last night as he stood to his full height of six feet three inches and stretched his arm up as far as he could reach. "But the total crop in bushels will be no larger than it was last year," he added, "because wheat is something like a man's talk—the longer it is the less valuable. All the wheat seemed to go to stalk, and if the rain had come in July the heads would have filled up so that Montana would have had enough to feed the world, and she would have been, indeed, a 'Treasure State.' Instead, there was a drought, and, while the crop will be small in comparison to the acreage under cultivation, the total output will be no smaller than it was last year."

In telling of the crops in his diocese, which covers 50,000 square miles, from the "Buffalo Hump" of the Missouri River at old Fort Benton, across the rolling thousands of fruitful acres to the Canadian line, and is known as the Milk River Valley Mission field of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the Bishop said that the farmers in his section had seeded twice the acreage they had had under cultivation last year, and the influx of settlers to the Fort Peck and Fort Assiniboine reservations had more than doubled the acreage.

"But the farmers who combined 'muscle grease with brain dust' will not suffer a loss because of the drought," said Bishop Christler. "Those who doubled and tripled their acreage so that they could not till the land properly will harvest only enough grain to cover the seed they planted. Those who planted only a moderate crop were able to give it care during the dry weather and although their crop may be only half of the total of last year, their financial return will be the same because of the increased price.

"Farmers fear they will have trouble in getting labor to harvest the crop, too, because of the activities of the I. W. W. in the copper mines at Butte, but since a little of their own philosophy was applied to the reds conditions have become better. The laborers will demand higher wages, but we will be able to get the crops in.

"Just as the war is affecting Montana by forcing the prices of her wheat up she is giving up another of her crops, a crop that is finer even than her wheat—and better wheat grows nowhere. Montana was one of the first States to fill her regular army quota. She has exceeded it far now. And in the diocese of 'All Outdoors' the farm lads have pleaded to get into the selective draft army rather than to get out of it. And this will probably make the gathering of the second finest crop more difficult now, although most of the wheat is in the shocks now, waiting for the thresher."

In traveling over his mission field of 50,000 square miles once a month, Dr. Christler has watched the crops because of his interest in the agricultural development of the State. He was a member of the Legislature and wrote an act for the establishment of a State Bureau of Publicity and Agricultural Development—for he believes that it is only necessary to tell farmers about Montana to make them want to live there. And he believes that prosperity and a well-fed feeling in a farming community is conducive to godliness and religion.

Dr. Christler has come to New York to address the men of Company M of the Third New York Infantry, for he was a member of the company known as "Wheeler's Rifles" when he was rector of St. Peter's Church in Auburn, N. Y., before he went to Montana about 1905

"But I am anxious to get back to the diocese of 'all-outdoors,'" he said last night, "out where I can take a deep breath without filling my lungs with débris from new subway excavations, and where I can move my elbow without hitting somebody in the chin—for you know there are only two things in Montana higher than I—the mountains and the wheat."

WHITNEY WARREN HONORED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Whitney Warren has just been made a commander of the Order of the Crown of Italy by the Italian King.

The honor was conferred at the time of the last allied conference in Paris and the decoration was officially handed to Mr. Warren yesterday.

It is the first time during the war that this decoration has been conferred on a civilian.

EXTRACTS OIL FROM SHALE.

Convict Inventor Pardoned in Order to Work Out Discovery.

CARSON CITY, Nev., Aug. 28.—The discovery of a new process for extracting oil from shale has won a pardon for A. H. Crane, who was serving a term in the State prison for burglary.

Crane devoted all his spare time to chemistry, and recently announced that he had found a process by which oil could be extracted from shale at small cost. The Warden of the prison called his process to the attention of the Government, which sent an expert to investigate it. Crane was granted a pardon by the Parole Board yesterday in order that he may perfect his process and superintend the erection of an extraction plant.

The Federal expert informed the Parole Board that Crane's method of extracting oil from shale will be of almost incalculable value to the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—A report on the process for extracting oil from shale, said to have been discovered by A. H. Crane, has been received by the Bureau of Mines. The bureau received a letter from Crane several weeks ago, in which he made statements that warranted investigation; and accordingly Director Manning of the bureau sent an oil expert. The expert's report is now being studied, but no conclusion has been reached.

The bureau is leaving no stone unturned to discover the way to extract oil from shale. Officials did not know that Crane was in the penitentiary until after the expert reached him in the West.

AMBULANCES FOR ITALY.

Robert Underwood Johnson Asks for Funds to Buy Them.

Robert Underwood Johnson, of the American Ambulance in Italy, with offices at 14 Wall Street, an outgrowth of the American Ambulance in France, said yesterday that there was urgent need for an ambulance service in Italy. He said there are in Milan eighty American ambulances, that can be purchased at $1,500 each, or for $2,000 with service. Five such were obtained on Monday through the aid of contributions received from California. The statement continues:

"By arrangement with the organization in Wall Street and in entire subordination to it, an informal Committee of American Poets is being organized to promote this movement. For the time being Charles Hanson Towne, editor of McClure's Magazine, 19 West Forty-fourth Street, will act as Secretary and I will act as Chairman and Treasurer. The poets and other authors of America and all others who love Italy, will be asked at once to contribute to this special fund and solicit for it, and contributions from any source will be welcome. Checks should be sent to me at 70 Fifth Avenue."

SOLDIERS' LIBRARY WINS SUPPORT HERE

The Library Trustees of New York met yesterday afternoon to organize for the handling of the city's share of the $1,000,000 fund which is to be raised to provide library facilities for the soldiers and sailors during the war. The meeting was presided over by Frank A. Vanderlip, Chairman of the National Library War Council.

The fund will be raised by the American Library Association and the city's share will be $250,000. It is planned to raise this sum by a one-day drive in the latter part of September and in the effort it is expected that more than 5,000 volunteers will give their services. As a first step a Committee of Organization was appointed. This consists of William W. Appleton, Theodore L. Frothingham, Edwin H. Anderson, Frank P. Hill, and Miss J. F. Hume. The next step will be the announcement of a New York City War Council, which will be composed of twenty men in the five boroughs.

"The thirst for reading on the part of the men in the various camps is very great and the task of satisfying that thirst is one that we have to meet," said A. F. Hoffsommer, Field Director of New York City. "Contrary to the belief of many persons the men, we have learned by experience, do not turn to lighter works of fiction, but rather to books of learning, scientific books, religious books, and books that deal with important subjects, such as political economy or the law. The work of meeting all these demands is going to be carried out."

Among those who spoke at yesterday's meeting and told of the plans of the circulation of books to the soldiers were Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education; J. I. Wyer, Jr., Chairman of the War Service Committee of the American Library Association; Mr. Hoffsommer and J. L. Clarkson, representing the Young Men's Christian Association. Among those present and who pledged their co-operation to the movement were Edward W. Sheldon, Lewis Cass Ledyard, William W. Appleton, Justice Samuel Greenbaum, William A. Leonard, William A. Duncan, Frederic R. Halsey, Matthew S. Dudgeon of Madison, Wis., a member of the War Service Commission; Henry W. Taft, Morgan J. O'Brien, John Henry Hammond, Henry Fairfield Osborn, Cleveland H. Dodge, J. P. Morgan, Elihu Root, Theodore E. Vail, David A. Boody, and Frederic D. Pratt.

NAME ANTI-STRIKE BOARD.

Settlement Provided for All Labor Disputes Involving Longshoremen.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Peaceful settlement of labor disputes involving longshoremen was forecast today by the appointment of a board representing the War Department, the Shipping Board, the Longshoremen's Association, and the principal carriers to handle all disputes and appoint local boards in principal cities.

The union scale of wages, hours, and conditions in each port will be adopted as the standard. The decision of the national commission will be binding on all parties, and in all cases work will continue without interruption pending the action of any local commission or the decision of the national commission.

The War Department appointed Walter Lippman, Assistant to the Secretary, as its representative; the International Association appointed T. V. O'Connor of Buffalo, N. Y.; the Committee on Shipping of the Council of National Defense appointed P. A. S. Franklin. The Shipping Board's representative probably will be Vice Chariman Stevens. Mr. Franklin will sit with the commission in cases involving overseas shipping; H. H. Raymond, also of the Shipping Committee of the Defense Council, will act in coastwise shipping disputes.

H. N. GRIEB, AVIATOR, DEAD.

Young New Yorker Dies in Paris of Pneumonia Following Injuries.

PARIS, France, Aug. 28.—H. Norman Grieb of New York died Sunday of pneumonia following injuries received at the Aviation School. Grieb was 22 years old and a Yale undergraduate.

H. Norman Grieb was the son of William G. Grieb, President of the Ajax Rubber Company of 1,796 Broadway. He sailed from an American port in May with the Yale medical unit, his father said last night, but upon his arrival in France he joined the French aviation service. He had received his pilot's license and had been detailed to active duty at the front, but was injured when his machine met with an accident. This fact was communicated in a brief cable to Mr. Grieb, though he was daily expecting a letter from his son from the hospital explaining the circumstances of the accident. Mr. and Mrs. Grieb have another son, Harold, who is also in France. He is 20 years old.

EVERT J. WENDELL DIES IN FRANCE

ONCE A FAMOUS ATHLETE

Ex-President of Legal Aid Society Succumbs After an Operation to Relieve Diabetes.

PARIS, France, Aug. 28.—Evert Jansen Wendell, once a famous Harvard athlete, later a woolen commission merchant, who devoted the last twenty years of his life to the service of the youth of America, died here today in his fifty-eighth year, at the American Hospital, following an operation to relieve diabetes, which his physicians said had been brought on by overexertion. Mr. Wendell came here early in August to aid in founding the American College Union of Paris, but was stricken soon after his arrival and removed to the hospital.

Mr. Wendell was noted both here and in Europe for his activity in amateur track and field athletics, as well as for his philanthropic work. He was a man of independent means and able to devote his entire time to these objects, which virtually became his life work. He made an unusual record at Harvard as a sprinter, taking seven championships in the intercollegiate games in 1879, 1880, and 1881, the dash distances varying from 100 to 440 yards. His interest in athletics continued after graduation in 1882 and he became an official of the Intercollegiate Association, the Amateur Athletic Union, and the International Committee of the Olympic Games.

Not many years ago residents in the block in Thirty-eighth Street between Fifth and Madison Avenues were occasionally scandalized at the goings-on in front of the Wendell residence. An average of twenty boys would gather in front of his door every morning, all uninvited, but more or less comforted by the knowledge that Mr. Wendell understood them. The accepted proceeding was for them to write their name and trouble on a piece of paper furnished by the maid and then wait at the basement door until she took it upstairs. It had been judged best for them to wait outside, since one or two "rough-houses" consequent on their increasing numbers, fell little short of bedlam.

The relief they sought was in different forms. Frequently it would be a card of admission to one of the lodging houses conducted by the Children's Aid Society or its farm at Kensico preparatory to finding a home in the West. Often it was money to buy a stock of newspapers, or more immediate relief. Mr. Wendell devoted much time to taking parties of boys to the Far West for the Children's Society, in company with Robert N. Brace, who was in charge of placing out work of the society. They took advantage of these trips to visit boys formerly placed, and over whom the society kept a lookout until they were of age.

Mr. Wendell was born in Boston during the civil war and later became connected with the firm of Jacob Wendell & Co., woolen commission merchants. He was a brother of Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard and Mrs. Wendell-Baker of this city, who is prominent in child-welfare work. Mr. Wendell's body will probably be brought to America soon for burial.

When the news of Mr. Wendell's death reached this city yesterday the Manhattan Council of the Boy Scouts of America adopted resolutions in his memory.

SAY BISHOP BARRED ANTHEM

Veterans of Foreign Wars Ask Why Star-Spangled Banner Was Stopped

The Veterans of the Foreign Wars of the United States, now in convention at the Hotel McAlpin, displayed considerable warmth yesterday when the statement, vouched for by an investigating committee, was made that Bishop David H. Greer had forbidden the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The committee reported it had found grounds for the complaint made by two officers of the veterans, who are members of the congregation of the Cathedral, that Bishop Greer opposed the playing of the national anthem in the Cathedral because it created an enthusiasm for war which he did not like. After the report the veterans sent the following telegram to the Bishop, who is at Northeast Harbor, Me.:

"This organization, consisting of war service veterans, in convention assembled at Hotel McAlpin, have before it a report that you instructed your organist at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine to desist from playing "The Star-Spangled Banner." Please advise your reasons for so doing by wire at our expense."

William Voorsanger of Pittsburgh, a member of the Resolutions Committee who investigated the charges, said that, after finding Bishop Greer was out of town, he had seen a man describing himself as the curate of the Cathedral, who said: "That is right. Bishop Greer issued those orders because "The Star-Spangled Banner" created a sentiment of war, to which he is opposed."

Yesterday's session of the Foreign War Veterans was devoted largely to a discussion of resolution providing for the enlargement of the enrollment list to include men in the army, navy, and marine corps who will be made eligible for membership by the European war. The section of the resolution which met with approval provided that men of the army, navy, and marine corps shall be eligible as soon as they land on foreign soil or in foreign waters. A section which would have admitted to membership American citizens who are now serving in the great war under other flags was sent back to the committee for revision. In opposing this, A. Carlson of Baltimore insisted that no man who served under any flag but that of the United States should be eligible to membership.

The veterans presented a new field ambulance to the United States Army yesterday. It was fully equipped for service and was turned over to the Government by Albert J. Rabing, Commander in Chief. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, the delegates assembled at Chelsea Pier, Twenty-sixth Street and the East River, where they made a trip on boats around Manhattan Island.

An appraisal of the estate of Representative Michael F. Conry, who died March 2 last, shows that he left $13,417, which went to his wife, Elizabeth T. Conroy. He had cash amounting to $9,071 and securities valued at $3,940.

CAMP UPTON KEEPS OFFICERS AT HOME

It Is Not Ready to Receive Men Who Were to Report There Today.

NEW ORDERS TO BE ISSUED

10,000 Men, Working on Cantonments Near Yaphank, L. I., Will Have Them Open Sept. 5.

The 1,500 officers of the Reserve Corps who were under orders to report at Camp Upton, near Yaphank, L. I., for duty today received orders late yesterday afternoon to delay their departure until further notice. The quarters for the officers are not ready, and new orders directing the officers when to report will be issued, it is hoped, within the next few days. All officers have been requested to report by letter to Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell at Camp Upton today, and to give an address where they can be reached at any time within the next few days.

The order delaying the departure of the reserve officers for Camp Upton was issued from Governors Island by Colonel E. E. Booth, General Bell's Chief of Staff. Colonel Booth's announcement read as follows:

Due to unforeseen delays in construction work, the contractor is unable to finish a sufficient number of buildings to accommodate the officers directed to report Aug. 29 at Camp Upton for duty with the Seventy-seventh Division. Therefore, all officers belonging to the Seventy-seventh Division will delay reporting in person until further notice.

All these officers will report by letter to the commanding General, Seventy-seventh Division, Camp Upton, N. Y., giving their city and street address, where orders giving the date when they will report in person will be mailed to them later.

Colonel Booth said that the order was issued to save the 1,500 young officers from unnecessary inconvenience. All of the men affected by the order are graduates of the Plattsburg officers' training camp.

Immediately after the order was issued Major Haskell, on the staff of General Bell, asked General Passenger Agent Howard M. Smith of the Long Island Railroad to instruct all ticket agents to inform officers who appeared for transportation that the date for them to report had been set forward.

It was pointed out at Governors Island that the orders to the reserve officers will not in any way interfere with the official organization of Camp Upton next Wednesday, on which day New York City's first contingent of selective draft men will report for duty. About 1,950 draft men will report Wednesday.

Major O. K. Myers, U. S. A., in charge of construction at Camp Upton, made the following statement yesterday with reference to the delay in completing the buildings needed to house the officers and men of the Seventy-seventh Division of the national army:

"Twelve weeks are allowed for the construction of an ordinary camp. The clearing of the land here is a factor which makes it different from ordinary camps. We have been working on the camp for seven weeks, and we have five weeks left. The first quota of 2,000 men is scheduled to arrive here Sept. 5. We will not alone be ready to receive 2,000 men on that date, but we will be ready to receive 12,000 men. The last quota of this draft is scheduled to arrive here about Oct. 5, and the camp will be finished before that date."

More than 1,000 reserve officers will report for duty at Camp Dix, near Wrightstown, N. J., today. Most of these officers are from the Officers' Training Camp at Madison Barracks.

The National Security League announced yesterday that, in accordance with instructions received from Adjt. Gen. H. P. McCain of the War Department, it has shipped to the 33 National Guard and National Army camps 75,000 copies of the English-French phrase book, which it announced some time ago it would supply to the American troops going to France.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Aug. 28.—Although 10,000 men are now employed in constructing Camp Upton at Yaphank it is believed that it will take nearly three months to complete the work. It is estimated that the cantonment is now less than 50 per cent. completed, although the contract calls for its completion by Sept. 5. The Thompson-Starrett Company, the contractor, had great difficulty in obtaining sufficient help during the first two months after the work commenced. Hundreds of men left daily during the hot weather. About fifty of the barracks that will house the soldiers and ten big warehouses have been completed and the big tract of wild land is being rapidly cleared.

ARMY TAKES OVER AMBULANCE WORK

All Drivers Who Serve in France Must Enlist in the Hospital Corps.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—The American Field Service, with 1,100 men in the ambulance branch and 800 in the transport branch, is to be taken over by the American Army, the ambulance branch going under control of the medical service and the transport under that of the Quartermaster General.

The first steps in the transfer were taken today when representatives of the medical service left to visit the thirty-four ambulance sections along the front and invite the men to enlist for the duration of the war under the same conditions of service as are now existing. Those who do not accept the invitation may return home and will be replaced.

Colonel Jefferson Kean is in general charge of the ambulance service, which will continue, as before, to minister to the needs of the French Army.

The taking over of the American Field Service, with its ambulance and transport branches, and the American Red Cross ambulances in France by the Medical Corps and the Quartermaster General's Department of the United States Army, has put a stop to the volunteering of men in this country for ambulance service. Henceforth any one who wants to drive an ambulance must enlist as an ordinary private in the hospital corps, by application to the Surgeon General in Washington.

Eliot Norton, who has acted for the American Red Cross as representative of that organization's ambulances in France, popularly known as the Harjes-Norton sections, has received the following cablegram from his brother, Richard Norton, who has been in Paris in command of these ambulances:

Colonel Kean has arrived with orders to take over Red Cross Ambulance Service and Field Service, and militarize them. I and all my staff have resigned. We shall do our best to help Colonel Kean during the period of reorganization. Send no more volunteers. All men desiring to do ambulance service must enlist by application to the Surgeon General at Washington. Colonel Kean's present intention is to enlist the rank and file as ordinary privates. Present section leaders will probably be offered the rank of Lieutenant. No man over 40 or under 18 will be accepted. All must enlist for the duration of the war, which of course includes the period of demobilization after the cessation of hostilities.

Mr. Norton said that he had no information aside from that contained in the cablegram. He did not know whether the statement that no men under 18 or over 40 would be accepted would operate to exclude men outside of the age limits now serving; if it did, he said, it would eliminate his brother and a number of section commanders who were over 40.

CITY'S FIRST DRAFT GREETED AT DINNER

"My Heart Goes With You," Says Mayor Mitchel, at Big Celebration.

LOCAL BOARD 170 HONORED

"The United States Won All Her Wars," General Hoyle Tells Men Who Are Going to the Front.

The first of the sendoff dinners for New York City's drafted men was given last night. At the celebration of the Local Exemption Board 170, with headquarters at 126th Street and Lexington Avenue, Mayor Mitchel, Deputy Attorney General Roscoe S. Conkling, in charge of the draft in New York, and Brig. Gen. Eli D. Hoyle, commanding the Department of the East, told the drafted men they ought to be proud of the chance they have to serve the Stars and Stripes.

Local Board 170 claims the distinction of supplying the highest percentage of fighters from men called of any district in the city. With a quota of 153, it has certified 232 men out of a total of 497 called. The dinner was given by the Harlem Board of Commerce and Harlem business men in Hollywood Hall, 41 West 124th Street. About 150 of the drafted men of the district were present.

"I want you men to look for a moment on another side of army life," said General Hoyle. "Don't take it too seriously or with a gloomy air of impending disaster. It's a bully good life. I have spent forty years under the flag, and I wouldn't trade my army experience for all the gold in the world. You are going where truth and honesty are required above all things. It's a life that lifts you above petty things. There is a pleasure in the army life unknown to those outside of it. If you get the right viewpoint in entering the service, you will be happy. Put your heart in your work, and remember all the time that the United States has won all her wars. Remember there are two things God always looks kindly on—one is the army mule and the other the United States. If we had to fight the whole world we would win."

Mayor Mitchel was greeted cordially.

"I consider it an honor to meet you men," he said. "The time has come when the United States must defend the rights of the world. It is time for United States troops to enter battle on foreign soil to prevent the conflict from coming to our doorsteps.

"For some time we have been trying to make the United States strong. We were catapulted into this war, and we have not had time to develop universal military training. The draft is the most democratic application of the law of universal service.

"I believe you will not be the last called to the colors; others will be called, I fear, before the war is over. I view this draft not so much as a discharge of duty, but as a high honor, an opportunity of earning for yourself a place in American history. You are going in the vanguard of an army for human liberty. You are going to be associated with the finest group of men I have ever met, the men of the regular army and the men of the National Guard. They have a little lead on you, but after a short time you will all be on an equal footing and unified into a coherent army of the United States. You will have the honor of fighting by the side of the heroes of the Marne and other great battles of this war for liberty.

"I wish I could have gone over there. It may be ordered different, but my heart goes with you."

Deputy Attorney General Conkling said that the dinner made history in that it told good-bye to the first of New York's drafted men.

"New York City is no slacker," said Mr. Conkling. "Instead of being pestered with requests for exemption blanks, as I was at the beginning, I am now besieged with men who want to get in, even if their local board exempted them. The draft in New York City has passed the stage when every one was trying to get exempted. The reason at first was that New York didn't realize the wisdom of the draft. Now that it has, it is all for the draft.

"I have had scores of young men come to my office recently and ask to be advanced in their standing in their districts so that they will be sure to go. A young man came to my office this afternoon, said he had been rejected because he was under weight, then asked, 'But why in hell can't I go and fight? I'm all right.' I had to tell him I was sorry, but I didn't write the law."

There was tremendous cheering when during the dinner a detachment of thirty men of the Seventy-first entered the hall in uniform.

Besides Mayor Mitchel, Mr. Conkling, and General Hoyle, those at the speakers' table were Erwin Kurtz, Chairman of Board 170; the Rev. Maurice H. Harris, William S. Bennet, W. M. Chandler, and Phillip J. McCook, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense.

The 224 men who filled the quota of District 64, whose headquarters were at the Commercial High School, Albany Avenue and Bergen Street, Brooklyn, were the guests of the members of the Exemption Board and of business men of the district at a dinner given last night at Feltman's, Coney Island. Speakers at the dinner were George E. Brower, Chairman of the Exemption Board; Justice Edwin L. Garvin of Special Sessions, Colonel Walter H. Chatfield, U. S. A., retired, and Colonel George H. Williams of the British Recruiting Mission.

OHIO FILLS ITS QUOTA FOR REGULAR ARMY

State Has Furnished 9,581 of the 200,691 Men Who Have Enlisted Since April 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Pennsylvania led in Monday's recruiting for the regular army, turning in 147 men who were accepted and raising its total to 22,289 since April 1. Illinois and New York were tied for second place in the day's work, each with 81 recruits. Since April 1 the army has taken in 200,691 recruits, or nearly 17,000 more than its war strength.

With the recruits taken in yesterday Ohio joined the States that have filled their quotas for the regular army. The daily statement issued by Adjutant General McCain follows:

WAR INSURANCE BILL CALLED TOO LIBERAL

May Cost Nation $2,500,000,000, Congressman Parker Says—D. P. Kingsley's Objections.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Absence of a quorum of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce late today delayed the ordering of a favorable report on the Administration's Soldiers' Insurance bill. Chairman Adamson expects a quorum tomorrow, and says the bill will go to the House with no substantial changes.

Representative Parker of New Jersey today, in an executive session of the committee, argued against the section of the bill providing for cheap insurance for enlisted men of the army and navy, the only argument heard from a member of the committee against this feature, by which soldiers and sailors, and army and navy nurses may buy insurance up to $10,000 at $8 a year per thousand.

Mr. Parker's argument was that the cost would swamp the country. He figured that if 250,000 men were killed or wounded the United States might have to pay $2,500,000,000. On the other hand, it is expected that the report from the committee will estimate the cost of the bill at $600,000,000. War Department experts believe that a fair estimate of insurance taken out under the bill would be 25 per cent. of the enlisted force, taking an average of $2,500.

Large insurance companies have placed before Congress the view that some of the bill's features are unfair. Darwin P. Kingsley, President of the New York Life, wrote Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, member of the Council of National Defense and a proponent of the insurance bill:

"As the bill now stands all these men, and women, too, whether they have actually seen service or not, can, after the war, transfer what in its incipiency is a term insurance contract into any other standard form of insurance at a rate which the bill does not make clear, but which Mr. McAdoo says will be the 'net' rate. The bill says these future payments shall be prescribed by regulations, which I submit gives some one a very dangerous power.

"But the point I want to make is this: Why should the general public be taxed to provide insurance after the war for a group of men and women the great majority of whom during the period of war may not have made any more sacrifices or been any more patriotic than the rest of the community, and who after the war, if not covered by the earlier sections of the bill, can hardly establish a claim to being a privileged class? If the term insurance were continued for a year or two beyond the end of the war and stopped there the provisions made would be in the aggregate vastly beyond anything done by a nation before and probably all that justice can fairly demand."

FIND EXEMPTED MEN ARE FIT TO FIGHT

MORE DRAFT CALLS ISSUED

Quotas Are Not Yet in Sight in Many Districts Throughout the City.

The District Board certified yesterday to the 189 local boards in New York City the names of the men who will comprise the quotas from those districts to report for duty at Camp Upton, L. I., next Wednesday. Final orders for their mobilization will be issued by Deputy Attorney General Roscoe S. Conkling today.

The re-examination of the 650 men exempted as physically unfit by Local Board 102 began yesterday in the offices of the medical division of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, at Twenty-third Street and Madison Avenue. About 100 were examined, and a considerable number were found to be physically fit for service and will be so certified to the District Board. Under instructions from Washington the examining physicians declined to make public the number.

The members of Board 102 were at their headquarters, still in charge of the draft. Dr. Max Gottesman, a member of the Board, was asked to explain the unusually large number of men exempted.

"It is safe to say," he replied, "that not over 40 per cent. of the men of military age on the east side are fit for military duty. This is due to a lack of proper nourishment and the lack of clinics to administer to their physical needs."

Dr. J. H. Mittelman, another member, said the board had examined one man who was six feet six inches tall and weighed only ninety-seven pounds, while another man rejected was under five feet and weighed more than 250 pounds.

Many local boards, whose quotas have not yet been obtained, are sending out calls for additional men to report for examination. Board 65 in the Bronx posted a call for about 700 men to report for examination. The district's quota is 257 men, and last night's report showed that it is still about 150 men short. Board 108, Hester and Essex Streets, has summoned all men whose numbers are from 931 to 2,000. This board also needs about 100 men.

Only one man was obtained by Local Board 74, in Public School 21, at McKibbin Street and Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday, out of 104 men examined. Forty-six were found physically defective and fifty-seven claimed exemption. The name of the man accepted was Boris Lovett of 191 Pulaski Street.

The District Board, which meets at 10:30 o'clock this morning, is expected to hand down decisions in about 500 cases. The board now has seven subcommittees working on exemption appeals and industrial claims, and two more committees will probably be named this week by Charles E. Hughes, Chairman of the board.

ENLISTED MEN TO GET MANY COMMISSIONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Enlisted men of the National Army, National Guard and Regular Army will have every opportunity to fit themselves for commissions, it was learned today. This is in line with the fixed policy of the Government to take no more officers or officer candidates from civil life after the training period of the second series of officers' camps has been completed. Thereafter all additional officers needed will be taken from the ranks of the various branches of the war army.

To carry out this plan, it has virtually been decided to establish an officers' school at each of the divisional training camps. Men from the ranks who show special qualifications will be sent to these schools. With the staffs of French and British officers of experience on the firing lines on duty at each camp as advisers, an unusual opportunity for lecture courses will be presented.

The divisional officers' camps will make the third series of such camps arranged by the War Department to provide men to command the enormous force being raised for the war. No line commissions will be granted to men from civil life after they are started, except that a few men who failed to gain admission to the other camps through loss of their orders in the mail or some other mischance, may get another opportunity in the third series.

Secretary Baker pointed out today, in reply to a question as to whether the European divisional army organization adopted for the war would be continued after the restoration of peace, that with the exception of the officers of the regular army and a few men of the old regular enlisted force, whose enlistments might not have expired at that time, the entire war army would pass out of existence. There is no provision of law for continuing it beyond the end of the war.

The question of establishing a continuing military policy of universal service has been debated to some extent recently. The impression prevails among many members of Congress, however, that it would be unwise to take up this question now. If the war is long it may become necessary to provide for the registration of new classes which reach the military age of the Selective Service bill each year and possibly also to exempt men now registered who may pass beyond the maximum age limit before the war ends.

League Drops Mayor Thompson.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Mayor Thompson is no longer a member of the General Committee of the Chicago branch of the National Security League. The Nominating Committee at the annual election held at the Union League Club today failed to present his name. A member explained that "the views of William Hale Thompson are not in accord with the principles or tenets of the National Security League."

A Remunerative Use of Money

War conditions have caused many of the strongest corporations to place on the market short time bonds and notes. Many of these securities are selling to yield from 6 to 7%. They are considered sound, have good markets and present unusual opportunities for a conservative and remunerative use of money.

We will, on request, be glad to make specific suggestions.

Stocks Break Wide Open and Close at the Bottom—Little Support.

Until Congress has made up its mind on the extent to which the new War Tax bill will provide for excess profits taxes on business, and the increase in income taxes, the stock market may be expected to sell off on each new estimate of the amount of money which must be supplied to carry this nation through its first year of war. Under prevailing conditions there is no incentive for investors to buy stocks. Yesterday's sharp decline, which was intensified at the close, was largely due to the startling figures from Washington of the probable extent to which financing must be done to pay this year's bill and provide several billions for the Allies. What buying there was consisted mostly of scale orders for stocks each ⅛ down. That kind of support tends to retard a falling market, and, of course, eventually helps to bring about a recovery, but it is not enough to prevent successive declines as people give way to fears that the Government is going to overreach itself in levying new taxes.

The taxation question is exerting a depressing influence upon business, and while it remains unsettled fewer and fewer new enterprises will be started. The situation seems to call for the transfer of the all-important work of drafting new finance measures from the floor of Congress to the hands of a committee of experts, whose recommendations, after approval by the President, should be submitted to the Senate and the House for enactment. It is no wonder that industry is being cramped by its inability to provide new capital to allow of the expansion which must take place before war business can be handled when the Senate is voting on amendments of the La Follette style to tax excess profits as high as 76 per cent., as against the 26 per cent. carried by the original bill. The point was made yesterday by an international banker of broad experience that sooner or later—and preferably sooner—the President must appoint a financial Hoover as the head of a committee to lay out a comprehensive scheme looking to the mobilization of the country's taxing and borrowing power, to the end that both sources may be used to the best advantage. This banker made the point that it is just as important that the financial conduct of the war be intrusted to a board of strategy as it is to have such boards in control of the movements of the army and navy. A committee of five, composed, perhaps, of two bankers, two economists, and a bond authority, could bring order out of chaos and lay out a comprehensive plan for the raising of revenue and loans that would free business and the investment market from the shackles of uncertainty.

The question of the shape the new War Tax bill is to take is the dominating factor in aiding the operation of professional traders who have been taking advantage of the depression in recent weeks. The price-fixing problem has been relegated to the background. That may be, perhaps, because there are not lacking indications that the Government will allow the payment of fair prices in order that there may be excess profits to be taxed. It is the impression generally held in financial circles that the basic price of steel will be between $65 and $70 per ton, and of copper between 22½ and 25 cents per pound. Any price fixed, and particularly just now the bituminous coal figures, are subject to revision as conditions change.

Yesterday's declines were larger than those of other recent weak sessions. To some extent they were aggravated by the discovery that even such a profitable enterprise as the Bethlehem Steel Corporation can only be financed at a cost of nearly 10 per cent. for its immediate needs. Losses in many issues ran up to 3 and 4 points. Among the steel stocks Bethlehem closed off 1¼, Crucible off 6⅝, Lackawanna off 4¼, Republic off 3¼, and United States Steel off 1⅝. Studebaker dropped 5⅝, Alcohol 5⅝, Utah Copper 4, and Central Leather 3¼. A new low record for rubles at 18.75 represented absence of any demand for Petrograd exchange rather than fresh discouragement over Russia's internal troubles. Dealings were so nearly nominal as to make the fluctuations relatively unimportant.

LONDON MARKET IS FIRM.

Money in Shorter Supply and Discount Rates Steady.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Money was in shorter supply, and discount rates were steady today.

The stock market was firm. Mexican and South African issues were prominent in the dealings, and the demand for them exceeded the supply. Nitrate shares were wanted, and Brazilians responded to the improvement in exchange.

Russians were depressed by adverse exchcange rates. Rubles made a new record at 250 for £10, reflecting the statement of the Russian Minister of Commerce regarding the economic situation. Oil stocks were firm, especially the low-priced ones. Industrials were good in spots.

Trading Quiet on Bourse.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 62 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan 87 francs 85 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Savings Banks and the Next Loan.

It is generally agreed that in the event the next Liberty Loan is put out at 4 per cent. instead of 3½ per cent., as was the first loan, there will be heavy withdrawals of funds from the savings banks by depositors desiring to invest their money in Government bonds. The rate of interest paid by savings institutions varies from 3 to 4 per cent. per annum, but none pay a higher rate. Should the withdrawals of deposits be considerable it will be necessary for the banks to liquidate some of their security holdings. Under existing conditions of the bond market sales of large blocks of securities cannot be made without a great sacrifice, and for this reason it has been suggested by some bankers that special arrangements be perfected which would permit of the temporary hypothecation of these securities. Among the plans advanced is that the Federal Reserve Banks come to the aid of savings institutions in the event of need.

War Savings Certificates.

Announcement from Washington regarding plans for the sale of war savings certificates in this country makes timely the report that certificates which sell at $8.60 and return the purchaser $10 at the end of three years, have just been placed on sale at all banks and post offices in Canada. Sales of certificates of other denominations sold in Canada have to date brought in the sum of $10,000,000, and it is estimated that more than 140,000 certificates have been sold since last January. Recent sales have ranged from $200,000 to $300,000 a week.

Conserving Financial Resources.

Merchants and manufacturers in Canada are being called upon to limit their demands for loans on the theory that by so doing they will materially help to strengthen the financial situation. "It will help to prevent a prolonged monetary stringency, and it will better enable the banks to extend the necessary financial support to the Government," remarks The Monetary Times of Toronto, which describes the measure as patriotic in character. It says that in these days of war, many important transactions are necessary and an unavoidable strain is placed on the bank resources, and for that reason it is imperative that the funds of the country should be conserved. The Canadians are also advised not to overstock for the reason that the outlook for trade in the Dominion after the war is obscure, and manufacturers and merchants should guard against finding themselves with goods on hand which were produced under fictitious conditions as regards cost of labor and material, and for which there may be little demand, even at a loss.

Holland and the Embargo.

A recent report from the American Commercial Attaché at the Hague throws some light on the manner in which, even before President Wilson's embargo proclamations, the Allies have been able, by economic and naval pressure, to limit the overseas trade of Holland, at least, among the neutrals contiguous to Germany. Before the war Holland had a growing cocoa and chocolate industry, which in 1913 imported 30,000 metric tons of raw cocoa beans; in 1914, 32,000 metric tons, and in 1915, 41,000 metric tons. But in the first six months of 1917 only 2,119 metric tons of raw beans reached Holland, and all the factories have been running far below normal capacity. In 1916 the Netherland Overseas Trust, which is the Dutch Government, agreed with the Allies to limit importations to 2,000 tons of raw cocoa beans a quarter. But actual importations have fallen below this figure, because shipping to transport them is not to be had.

Operating the New Ships.

There was great interest among shipping men yesterday in the announcement from Washington of the plan whereby W. R. Grace & Co. are to act as operating agents of the Government of the new line of 5,500-ton passenger and freight steamers between New York and Valparaiso. Shipping men have been waiting eagerly for some time for indications as to the policy of the Emergency Fleet Corporation in operating the huge fleet of new ships it has commandeered and is building, and the announcement was generally accepted as the forerunner for others. Indeed, it was learned on good authority that within a week or so these may be expected, and within a short time the policy of the Government in this highly important matter may be pretty thoroughly defined. If, as indicated by the announcement yesterday morning, this policy will be for the Emergency Fleet Corporation to leave the actual operation of its ships to existing companies, under permanent charter, on terms which safeguard the interests of both parties, it is safe to say it will meet with the approval of the trade.

DIRECTORS APPROVE ISSUE BY BETHLEHEM

New $30,000,000 Stock to be 8% Cumulative Preferred, Convertible to B Common.

WAITS ON SHAREHOLDERS

Guaranty and Bankers Trust Companies and J. & W. Seligman & Co. to Underwrite Subscription.

Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation yesterday formally approved the company's new stock issue for the purpose of raising $30,000,000 of additional capital and called a special meeting of stockholders, to be held at the company's home office in Newark on Sept. 14 next, to authorize the issue. Subject to this authorization, all details of the plan are officially announced.

The new stock is to be 8 per cent. cumulative preferred, (the present preferred Bethlehem stock is not cumulative,) convertible at any time in the option of the holder into B common stock at 115, and redeemable on ninety days' notice, any time after three years from date of issue, at 115 and accrued dividends, in its entirety or in amounts of not less than $10,000 each. It is to be offered at par, dated Oct. 1, 1917, to holders of record of the outstanding common stock on both issues on Sept. 12, 1917, subscriptions being limited to one-half each subscriber's holdings of common stock. The new stock and the B stock into which it is convertible, like the outstanding B stock, carry no voting power.

The Guaranty Trust Company, the Bankers Trust Company, and J. & W. Seligman & Co. have formed a syndicate to underwrite the subscription for the entire $30,000,000, it is reported, at 96, although no official announcement was made on this point.

"The entrance of this country into the European war," says a statement issued by Charles M. Schwab, "has produced such abnormal conditions that the corporation is now confronted with the necessity of raising a very substantial additional amount of capital in order to continue its construction program and provide for the requirements of the greatly increased business resulting from the war.

"While this year's earnings (before deducting taxes) have thus far surpassed our estimates, having exceeded the earnings for the corresponding period last year, a very large part of the earnings which we had intended to expend upon improvements this year and next must be used for the payment of excess profits taxes and other war taxes. The orders already taken for the United States Government entail an increase of about $15,000,000 in the construction program as adopted prior to this country's entrance into the war. The increase in our orders, together with the greatly increased cost of labor and materials, calls for an unexpected increase in working capital."

HOCKING VALLEY FINANCING.

Company Contemplates Issue of $5,000,000 in 6 Per Cent. Notes.

The new finance plan of the Hocking Valley Railroad Company, as announced yesterday, contemplates the issue of $5,000,000 in 6 per cent. notes maturing Nov. 1, 1918, of which $4,000,000 will be required to meet the present outstanding note issue maturing Nov. 1, 1917, and the remaining $1,000,000 to provide the company with additional capital for various purposes. This announcement confirms rumors to this effect which have been in circulation for some time. The new note issue has been taken by Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

It is also announced that all the conditions laid down by the Circuit Court of Appeals of Franklin County, Ohio, in its recent decision confirming the right of the Chesapeake & Ohio to own Hocking Valley stock, are now being complied with, and that most of them, in fact, had already been fulfilled when the decision was handed down.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

With only two speculative markets open—Minneapolis and Winnipeg—there was no feature whatever to the wheat trade. Every one is awaiting the announcement of the Government price, and cash markets generally through the West were weak and lower, Minneapolis declining 20c. No. 2 red in New York was quoted at $2.25, and No. 2 hard, $2.27, both nominal, cost, insurance, and freight, New York. RYE.—Market quiet; No. 2 Western, $1.84, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

CORN.

Reflecting a slight frost scare, the corn market was strong at the opening, and altogether advanced about a cent a bushel in the early trade, with December up to $1.09⅞ at the high point of the morning. This was followed by an active selling movement, in which Eastern and foreign interests participated to a considerable extent, and the market closed rather weak at 1¼c net loss. Domestic corn in the New York market was quoted yesterday on the basis of $2.02½ for No. 2 yellow and $1.98½ for No. 2 mixed, both cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

In the early trade oats advanced ½c on covering by Northwestern houses and the light farm offerings. There was a good domestic cash trade, but very little inquiry for export, and in the afternoon Eastern and foreign houses sold oats, as they did corn. At one time September and December contracts sold even, the September gaining on reports that by next Saturday night Chicago will have less oats in the visible than they have ever had since the records were kept. Cash oats were quiet in the local market with standard quoted at 69c; No. 2 white 69¼c; No. 3 white, 68c; No. 4 white, 67c; fancy clipped white, 72 to 74c; ordinary clipped white, 70 to 72c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

There was further strength in the provision market as a result of the support from packers, and an advance of 10c to 15c in hogs at Chicago. Receipts were only 4,000 at the latter point, with 14,000 expected on Wednesday, and this also had an influence, as did the improved cash demand. Heavy sales of October lard had only a temporary effect on the market. It was reported that Mr. Hoover had reached an agreement with packers whereby committees will be appointed and prices for meat products established. Kansas City receipts were 6,000 hogs and Omaha had 3,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market was less active, but showed considerable steadiness, with the close 9 to 21 points net higher. Increased crude offerings were at prices considerably above the views of buyers. Total sales were 30,200 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

There was very little feature in the coffee market yesterday and business was less active. Liquidation of the near month continued, but it was in much smaller volume, only three lots being exchanged for May at 64 points. The market opened unchanged to 3 points lower, and closed net unchanged to 2 points lower. Sales were reported of 14,000 bags. The local spot market was nominally unchanged, with quotations on the basis of 9¼c for Rio 7s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The market for refined sugar was unchanged, with fine granulated ranging from 8.40c to 8.50c, with all refiners again in the market, the Federal having re-entered at 8.50c. Business was again light, buyers preferring to await the action of the Food Administration in regard to prices. There was an easier tone in raw sugar at the close, with it very uncertain whether it would be possible to get 6c, cost and freight, for straight September shipment. There were miscellaneous sales as follows: 1,000 bags Porto Ricos, prompt, at 7.02c, cost, insurance, and freight; 1,000 bags Cuban molasses sugar, first half September shipment, at 5c, cost and freight; 350 bags St. Croix, in port, at 6.02c, duty paid; 1,120 bags Mauritius molasses, in port, at 4.82c, cost, insurance, and freight, all being practically at the 6c cost and freight basis for 96 test Cubas. Spot quotations are purely nominal as follows: Centrifugal, 7.40c; molasses, 6.52c; cost and freight, 6⅝c.

THE COTTON MARKET

There was continued covering in the cotton market yesterday and December contracts sold up to 22.44c. and January to 22.43c., or about a cent a pound above the low level of Monday. Bearish sentiment was still in evidence around the ring and found reflection in a late afternoon setback, but later covering was stimulated by a revival of peace talk and active months sold 35 to 40 points net higher. The close was several points off from the best under realizing, but the tone was steady at a net advance of 26 to 31 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 point to an advance of 10 points, and active deliveries sold 18 to 28 points net higher during the early trading. A private crop report making the condition 68.8, and indicating deterioration of 3.9 per cent. for the month, may have contributed to this advance, but offerings increased on private reports of showers at one or two points in the Southwest, and another private report making the condition 70.1 and deterioration only 2.4 per cent. for the month. This report was more in line with local sentiment as to the progress of the crop during August, and there was probably some fresh selling as well as realizing by recent buyers for a turn. The market soon steadied as prices approached the closing price of Monday, however, and there was a sharp advance during the afternoon.

Some Southern hedge selling was reported here during the morning, but pressure of that sort seemed to be little in evidence during the afternoon, when there was some buying from trade sources. The advance was most generally attributed to the disposition to even up short contracts before the publication of the Government's crop report on Friday. Peace talk was much in evidence in the late trading, and probably increased the tendency to cover following the big decline of the last two or three weeks.

Exports for the day were 3,251 bales, making 200,006 so far this season against 352,565 last year.

LACKAWANNA AND WYOMING VALLEY RAPID TRANSIT CO.

Collateral Trust 5s, 1951

To the Holders of the Five Per Cent. Fifty-Year Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of

LACKAWANNA AND WYOMING VALLEY RAPID TRANSIT COMPANY

Dated July 23rd, 1901:

Scranton and Wilkes-Barre Traction Corporation is now the owner of the bonds and capital stock of Lackawanna and Wyoming Valley Railroad Company, all of which are pledged to secure the payment of the bonds of the Lackawanna and Wyoming Valley Rapid Transit Company dated July 23, 1901, and issued under the deed of trust of that company to the Standard Trust Company, now merged with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee. As such owner the Scranton and Wilkes-Barre Traction Corporation has agreed that it will create a sinking fund for the purchase of said bonds and will enter into an agreement with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee under said deed of trust, upon the following terms and conditions:

1. CREATION OF A SINKING FUND.

The Company by the agreement will agree to pay unto the Trustee to create a Sinking Fund for the purchase of said bonds in each and every year during the continuance of said deed of trust the sum of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) in cash, or in lieu thereof will deliver to the Trustee said bonds to the face amount of fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000). All moneys so received shall be applied by the Trustee as follows:

To call by lot bonds of this issue which shall become subject to this plan, for the Sinking Fund, at the price of 105 and accrued interest, provided sufficient bonds can not be purchased through tenders after due advertisement by the Trustee in newspapers in Scranton, Pa.; Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and New York City, once a week for four (4) weeks, at less than 105 and interest prior to drawing by lot bonds for redemption. All bonds called or purchased are to be forthwith cancelled.

2. ESTABLISHMENT OF A CALLABLE PRICE OF 105 AND INTEREST.

Under the terms of the agreement the Company shall have the right to call by lot as above provided bonds of said issue for the sinking fund at 105 and interest, and shall also have the right to call for purchase independent of the provisions of the sinking fund, at 105 and interest, upon thirty (30) days' notice by public advertisement any or all of said bonds.

Except as above provided, the rights of the bondholders shall be in no way affected and their security shall not be impaired.

This agreement shall become operative only in case bonds to the amount of ninety per cent. (90%) of the total issue of $888,000 of said bonds outstanding are deposited with the GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK CITY, TRUSTEE, ON OR BEFORE THE FIRST DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1917. The Company, however, reserves the right to extend the time for deposit of such bonds and to declare the agreement operative in case a less amount of such bonds be deposited.

The Depositary will issue its transferable receipts against the deposit of bonds. In case the agreement becomes or is declared operative, the deposited bonds and coupons will be stamped as subject to the provisions of said agreement, and the same will be delivered to the holder of the receipt issued therefor upon the surrender and delivery thereof to the Depositary. In case the agreement shall not become or be declared operative, the bonds deposited will be delivered to the holders of the receipt upon the surrender and delivery thereof. IN NO EVENT SHALL THE DEPOSITOR OF SAID BONDS BE SUBJECT TO ANY EXPENSE.

The Sinking Fund and Redemption Agreement will be subject to the approval of Messrs. H. B. Gill, of Philadelphia; Ralph W. Rymer, of Scranton, Pa., and Stetson, Jennings & Russell, for the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Trustee.

Copies of the proposed agreement can be obtained from the Guaranty Trust Company of New York City, the Depositary above named, or from the undersigned.

The operation of the Sinking Fund should steadily strengthen the security of the issue by reducing the amount of bonds outstanding, and this, in conjunction with the additional demand created by the Sinking Fund for bonds subject to the agreement, should improve the market price for the stamped bonds.

If the Company shall exercise its right to call for purchase all of the bonds of this issue which shall have become subject to the Sinking Fund and Redemption Agreement, holders of such bonds will receive 105 and interest, a price not only well in excess of the present market price, but in excess of any price which has ever prevailed for these bonds.

The undersigned, therefore, believing that this arrangement is manifestly to the advantage of all of the bondholders, specially recommend the deposit of bonds. Bonds entrusted to the undersigned will be forwarded free of charge to the Guaranty Trust Company of New York for deposit under this plan.

August 29th, 1917.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Real weakness showed in the market on the Consolidated Exchange in the later dealings. The day had started with dullness, but signs of liquidation gradually developed. Studebaker was one of the first stocks that turned distinctly weak, but the most influential issue in its effect upon the general market was United States Steel.

Hosiery Mills Still Hesitate.

Many hosiery mills have not yet made prices on their lines for Spring, in spite of the lateness of the season. This is due largely to the high prices asked for raw materials, the labor situation, the unsettled cotton market, and the difficulty they are experiencing in getting needles. Wholesalers are still finding it hard to get deliveries of seasonable goods, the mills still being, in many cases, several weeks behind.

Shirt Men Looking Ahead.

Large shirt and collar manufacturers report that their sample lines for the coming Spring trade will be ready for display on or about the middle of next month. A number of new and attractive designs and styles are looked for at about the same prices as prevailed last year, though there may be a slight advance in some of the higher grade silk shirts. An extensive line of soft collars will be offered to meet the growing demand in this direction. Considerable optimism prevails throughout the trade over the prospects for the coming season, despite the conditions growing out of the war.

Are Filling Our Own Wants.

Milliners who specialize in mourning goods have been having considerable difficulty, since the outbreak of the war, in getting from abroad the high grade tulles and crêpes which are used so extensively in their various creations. During the last year, however, American manufacturers have made marked strides in producing these goods in qualities equaling the imported materials. Their last great difficulty, due to inferior dyestuffs that gave off, in some instances, a disagreeable odor, finally has been overcome, and now, according to one of Fifth Avenue's leading milliners, it is no longer necessary to look to Europe for these materials.

Jewelry Export Meeting Set Back.

Secretary Laurence Gardner of the National Jewelers' Board of Trade announced yesterday that the meeting of manufacturers and jobbers interested in the Government's movement to increase American export business in jewelry and silverware with South America will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 5, at 2:15 P. M., instead of tomorow at that hour, as previously had been planned. The meeting, which will be open to the entire trade, will be held in the rooms of the board at 15 Maiden Lane. Mr. Gardner would appreciate advance notice from those who intend to be present at the meeting, in order that the necessary arrangements may be made.

Crude Rubber Buyers Mark Time.

Large buyers of crude rubber continue to mark time here so far as spot and nearby positions are concerned, but there is said to be plenty of inquiry for 1918 shipments of the plantation grades at prices sellers are not keen about accepting. The shipping situation also is said to be a factor in the unwillingness of sellers to tie themselves up on long contracts at this time. Yesterday first latex was quoted at 65¼ to 66 cents for all positions up to the end of 1918, while the same was true of smoked sheets at 64½ cents. In the Brazilians, 68½ cents was the asking price for spot up-river fine, with similar lots of up-river coarse and upper Caucho ball quoted at 48 and 40½ cents, respectively.

Hard Coal Men Satisfied.

The Coal Trade Journal will say today that the fixing of prices for anthracite domestic sizes by the Government has not disturbed the market any, since it was only a confirmation, in the main, of the company circular and a 75-cent premium which the individual operators have been charging for several months past with the approval of the Federal Trade Commission. In view of the radical reductions ordered in bituminous prices, the anthracite producers are very well satisfied with the way they have been treated by the Government. The immediate effect of President Wilson's proclamation fixing a price of $2 per net ton for soft coal at the mines was to paralyze the market so far as buying and selling of spot coal was concerned.

Trench Coats in Demand.

Military supply dealers here report a growing demand for the British trench coat on the part of recently-commissioned army officers from Plattsburg. The coat in question has been designed especially for use in trench warfare. It has a high collar with a wide turnover, and is close-fitting to the waist. Below the waist it flares out to eighty-four inches around the bottom. As for length, it comes down about to the soldier's ankles. The wide skirt effect gives plenty of leg room for running or climbing in and out of trenches. The coat is rainproof and has a sheepskin lining, which may be unbuttoned and taken out when desired. It is expected that a coat very similar to this, if not this particular coat, will be included in the men's regular equipment when the American forces finally arrive at the front.

Colored Cottons More Active.

Reports from the colored cotton goods trade show a further stiffening of prices, together with a better demand, not only from all sections of this country, but from Central and South America as well. The good buying reported is evidently in anticipation of still further price advances in the near future. It is said also that mill conditions are becoming more difficult every day, due to the practical impossibility of obtaining and keeping labor in sufficient quantities, at anything like reasonable wages, to keep the mills running up to full capacity. A number of mills, especially those situated in localities where cantonments are being built, or in shipbuilding centres where Government work is being done, report it impossible to keep more than 70 or 80 per cent. of their looms running.

Gray Goods Sales Light.

Trading in the local gray goods market continued to lack snap yesterday, in spite of the increased willingness on the part of several first-hand sellers to meet the price views of buyers. It was said that practically all of the staple printcloth constructions could have been shaded yesterday by an active buyer, especially on goods wanted for the later deliveries. Second hands again did the bulk of the day's business, small as it was, at prices on a par with those paid on Monday. Little activity is looked for now until after Labor Day, and in some quarters a period of dullness lasting over the coming Jewish holidays is predicted. Spot prices on printcloths closed this way:

39-inch, 68-72s	11⅛c	38½-inch, 60-52s	9c
39-inch, 56-44s	8c	38½-inch, 60-48s	8⅝c

THREATEN ONE-DAY STRIKE.

Jewelry Workers in Newark Talk of Demonstrating Their Power.

A strike involving 4,000 jewelry workers in Newark may be called by the unions as a result of the action of the leading manufacturers in publishing advertisements backing up the firm of Carter, Gough & Co. in refusing to concede the demands of their employes for a closed shops. One employe left the union but the company refused to discharge him and the rest of the men walked out.

Other jewelers published an advertisement yesterday stating that they would do likewise if the same conditions arose in their factories. The union leaders will meet and consider calling a one-day sympathetic strike to show the employers that it can be done.

Sweater Demand is Fair.

While reports from various factors in the sweater trade who sell direct to the retailers do not agree as to the amount of business passing in women's goods at the moment, the best indications are that it is larger than some of the more pessimistic sellers say it is. For instance, in certain quarters a nice duplicate business is told of on fibre silk and Shetland sweaters for late Summer and early Fall wear. For late Fall and Winter, a good demand is told of for sweaters in Cardigan and novelty stitches, as well as in a kind of double Shetland effect that combines great warmth with limited weight. Large collars and cuffs of striped or contrasting materials, many of them brushed, mark most of the best-selling goods. Belts and sash effects also are seen. In some of the latter the sashes run up to three yards or more in length. Another feature is the number of light colors that are selling for cold weather wear.

RIVES ESTATE $500,000.

Bulk of Property Goes to Widow and Son.

The will of George Lockhart Rives, formerly Corporation Counsel of New York, who died at his Summer home at Newport, R. I., on Aug. 18 last, disposes of an estate estimated at about $500,000. He gave $50,000 to Columbia University, of which he was a trustee, but an instrument filed with the will stated that part of this sum was paid by Mr. Rives during his lifetime.

The decedent gave to his wife, Sarah Rives, of 907 Fifth Avenue, all his personal effects, as well as his stock in the Newport Casino, the Bowery Street Land Company, Newport Reading Room, Newport Fishing Club, and Sprouting Rock Beach Association. Mrs. Rives also receives two-thirds of the residuary estate amounting to about $300,000. The other third went to George Barclay Rives, son, of Cobham, W. Va.

Francis Bayard Rives, another son, of 103 East Seventy-fifth Street, was not mentioned in the will, but was made one of the executors. He filed a renunciation of his appointment and also consented to the probate of the will. It is understood that his father made other provision for him.

W. R. S. Spooner Left Only $100.

C. W. Watson Left $300,000.

The will of Charles White Watson, formerly Civil Service Commissioner, who died recently, disposes of an estate of about $300,000. He gave to his wife, Anna H. Watson, of 500 Madison Avenue, $50,000 and the income from the residuary estate for life. On her death $80,000 goes to the testator's brother, Frederick Watson of Pittsfield, Mass., who also gets $30,000 outright. A trust fund of $20,000 is left to his sister, Mary E. Hopkinson of Cambridge, Mass.

FLORIDA—FOR SALE OR TO LET.

FLORIDA
Winter Season

Prospective visitors to Palm Beach should know that a villa life has grown up there distinct from the hotel life and as fascinating colorful and intimate as the smart season of Trouville, Dinard or Cannes.

As not a house remains for rent this winter we desire to inform the public of the ease with which it is possible to build a villa there.

Send your architect's plans through us to The Farmers Bank & Trust Co., Palm Beach, which will undertake to secure a builder, check up his expenditures and provide that the work is done according to specification. The builder will receive 10 per cent. of the cost as his profit. Or the bank will invite competitive bids and check up the contractor as the work progresses. Local labor and costs are low. On completion the bank will hire and install excellent trained, local servants, and if desired during the owner's absence attend to all repairs and act as caretaker.

The bank, interested in increasing its deposits, will undertake these details because it is eager to prove Palm Beach an ideal home, free from care to the absentee owner. It volunteers its services in the capacity of banker, superintendent, steward, housekeeper, and finally local friend. Result: a freedom from domestic cares unequalled in any part of the world.

The luxurious living conditions at Palm Beach are catered to by branches of smart Fifth Avenue shops, a cafe whose cuisine rivals Armenonville and all the gay pleasurable atmosphere of the French Riviera.

MURPHY ATTACKED BY CITY DEMOCRACY

WANT MORE CANDIDATES

Workers Report Dissatisfaction at the Large Number of Places on Ticket Given to Republicans.

The City Democracy, that organization of independent Democrats which hopes to overthrow the present leadership of Tammany Hall and bring about the election of the Fusion ticket, started its campaign last night at a meeting of its Executive Committee at headquarters, 30 East Forty-second Street. Speeches were made by Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, Fusion candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, and other candidates.

A number of the rank and file of Tammany, including the Sullivan clan, have already gone over to the organization. It was announced last night that two or three district leaders, dissatisfied with the Tammany ticket headed by County Judge John F. Hylan for Mayor, intend, within the next few days, to join the new organization and announce their support of Mayor Mitchel and the rest of the Republican-Fusion ticket. At last night's meeting Charles F. Murphy's leadership of Tammany Hall, was bitterly attacked by all the speakers.

"Murphy paid an unconscious compliment to Fusion when he borrowed its name to bring about so-called Tammany fusion," said Commissioner Adamson. "So far as I have been able to learn, however, Murphy has only fused with William F. Schneider, the head of the Democratic Fusion Committee. Investigation of the list of the 170 members of the Democratic Fusion Committee shows that it contains the names of many battle-scarred warhorses of Fourteenth Street. The present city administration can well afford to stand on its own record. It has been intelligent, progressive, and sympathetic, and has given the City of New York the best government it has ever had. Judge Hylan, the Tammany candidate, says it is an administration of experts. You have only to read the outgivings of Judge Hylan to understand his aversion to experts. They say the administration has been extravagant and that the city budget has steadily increased. During the campaign the people will be told just why this is so. I want to insist upon the necessity of electing a full Board of Estimate in order to back up Mitchel and Prendergast.

"The time is ripe for an independent organization of Democrats that represents the conscience of the Democratic Party. I feel sure that the City Democracy will become the dominant Democratic organization of the city. We feel that the Democratic Party in the city is without a leader, and we want to give it a leadership that self-respecting Democrats can follow."

Martin W. Littleton, Chairman, presided, and said he was in the Southwest when he heard of the selection of Judge Hylan "by that federation of unrelated prejudices known as the Democratic Fusionists," and that he received the news with surprise and pleasure. "At least," he added, "his nomination will elevate the tone of the County Court Bench in Brooklyn, for he will have to resign to engage in the campaign."

Other speakers were former State Senator Thomas C. Whitlock of Brooklyn, Eugene J. McGuire, Fusion candidate for Sheriff in the Bronx; Patrick J. McMahon, Bronx candidate for County Clerk; Magistrate McGuire of Queens, Joseph Truesdale, candidate for City Court, and Charles Steckler.

The organization plans to hold a city convention at Cooper Union after the primaries to ratify the Fusion ticket. A Law Committee and a Speakers' Committee were named last night. The former will take up the question of choosing an emblem to go on the ballot. This committee consists of Francis Lynde Stetson, Frederic R. Coudert, George S. Hornblower, Sidney Newborg, A. Mitchel Leslie, Nathan D. Levy, Thomas C. Whitlock, I. Harry Huber, Lester L. Callan, Felix H. Levy, and Thomas C. Larkin. The Speakers' Committee is headed by John W. A. Kelley of Brooklyn.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee in the afternoon, organization workers in various parts of the city reported that there was a demand for a fuller representation of independent Democrats on the ticket. As the ticket now stands, the only independent Democrats are Mayor Mitchel, Commissioner Adamson, and Joseph Truesdale. There is not a single Aldermanic or Assembly candidate on the ticket, and the leaders of the organization feel that Samuel S. Koenig, Republican County Chairman, was too well treated in the selection of candidates. The independent Democrats have asked that several of the Republican Aldermanic candidates be withdrawn by Friday night, the last moment for such withdrawals, and that Democrats be substituted.

Insurgent Republican and Democratic Mayoralty candidates won out yesterday in the drawing for positions on the primary ballot made in the office of the Board of Elections. William M. Bennett, who is leading a revolt against Mayor Mitchel, drew first place on the Republican primary ballot. William R. Hearst won first place on the Democratic ticket.

For the Republican nomination for Controller William A. Prendergast will lead Judson G. Wall, candidate on the Bennett ticket. For President of the Aldermen Fire Commissioner Adamson, the Fusion nominee, won from Frank D. Wilsey, the Bennett candidate, and for District Attorney Frank Moss, another Bennett candidate, won over William M. Ransom, the Fusion nominee. For the Democratic nomination for Justice of the Supreme Court John V. McAvoy, the Tammany candidate, will lead Thomas E. Rush, Surveyor of the Port, who bolted Tammany as a protest against the Murphy method of selecting candidates.

Strong pressure is being brought to bear on William R. Hearst to enter the Democratic city primaries and make a fight for the Mayoralty nomination against Judge John F. Hylan. A report, received in Democratic circles yesterday with much interest and more surprise, was that among those most insistent that Mr. Hearst should enter the Mayoralty fight is former Mayor George B. McClellan. When Mr. McClellan was a candidate for a second term, in 1905, Mr. Hearst organized the Municipal Ownership League to oppose him, and came within 4,000 votes of winning. Mr. Hearst accused Mr. McClellan of having won the election by fraud and started recount proceedings. While these were in progress and all during Mayor McClellan's second term he was made the target for attacks in the Hearst newspapers.

Ex-Mayor McClellan, at meetings of the Democratic Fusion Committee, where candidates were being discussed, strongly contended for the nomination of Mr. Hearst, urging that he was in a position to make a stronger fight against Mayor Mitchel than any other Democrat in this city. The committee, it was said, would have chosen him but for the opposition of the handful of Tammany men.

Judge Hylan was at Hunter, Greene County, yesterday. From there he sent a message to his headquarters in this city that owing to the illness of his wife he would probably be compelled to remain at her side for a few days, but that if her condition should improve he would return tomorrow.

C. H. EBBETS PUT ON TRIAL.

Court Refuses to Dismiss Case Growing Out of Sunday Game.

Charles H. Ebbets, President of the Brooklyn Baseball Club, and Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Robins, were on trial yesterday in Special Sessions on a charge of violating the Sunday law. They are accused of holding a baseball game at Ebbets Field on Sunday, July 1, to which the public paid an admission fee.

The only witness called by Bernard J. York, counsel for the defendants, was James D. Campbell, who testified that the proceeds of the entertainment arranged for that Sunday at Ebbets Field were for the benefit of the Militia of Mercy. Following this testimony Mr. York asked the Court to dismiss the case against the defendants. Justice Salmon denied the motion and gave both sides until Friday to submit briefs.

AS TO LUCK.

Benjamin Franklin did not believe in luck, except as you earn it by deserving. So he said:

"Diligence is the mother of good luck."
"There are no gains without pains."
"God helps them who help themselves."

And more like these. A greater knowledge of the Thrift Sayings of Franklin is much needed in these days. Do you know that the government statistics show far less saving by people in this country than by European peoples?

To make folks acquainted with the Franklin Society of New York, which for 30 years has been leading people to profit by Franklin's philosophy, the best of "The Proverbs of Franklin" have been published in a neat pamphlet. Sent for the asking.

KKK "Keep Kolynos in Your Kit"

In buying your khaki toilet case—a most compact and useful member of your outfit—you will see a little loop meant for a tube of tooth paste.

The tooth paste to put in there is Kolynos Dental Cream—freely testified to by the best equipped and most experienced soldiers on the other side. Its extra efficiency for war use is universally recognized by the military dentists and military hospital authorities.

This bears witness:

"British Red Cross Society,
London.

"With further reference to your call here to-day, the Committee have instructed me to offer you our very sincere thanks for your generous gift of Tooth Paste.

"The good qualities of your Tooth Paste are, of course, generally known, and therefore your gift will be most useful and highly appreciated by the sick and wounded.

Keep Kolynos in Your Kit! It will be fully as much appreciated by you while you are sound and well—and it will help to keep you so.

On all trips

Wherever you go use So-CO-ny gasoline (accent on the second syllable). You will find that it pays.

SOCONY gives freedom from carburetor trouble. It gives real service, real economy, more miles per gallon and more power per mile.

SOCONY Motor Gasoline is absolutely uniform in quality. Every gallon is like every other gallon, here or a hundred miles from here.

In town or country, look for the Red, White and Blue SO-CO-NY sign. You'll find one nearby. It stands for gasoline that is absolutely pure—power in every drop.
